BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

BIG STEEL CASTINGS FOR QUEBEC BRIDGE

Sixteen castings for the new Quebec Bridge are worthy of note because they are much larger than any steel castings previously made in Canada. The weight of each is about 43 tons. Each is 21 ft. x 6 ft. 3 in. x 4 ft. in dimensions. Owing to the intricate design of the interior of the castings necessitating a large number of cores the making of the moulds required a high degree of skill and accuracy. The material used in them is a high grade of steel, being scrap metal procured from the wreck of the old Quebec Bridge. They are bolted in pairs, two pairs to each concrete pier carrying the main columns of the bridge

"The smaller objects comprised an amethyst necklace of very deep color with lion-claw pendants of gold, five motto pendants of gold with inlaid carnelian signs; a necklace of rhombic beads of blue amazon-stone and carnelian; eight gold lions and nine knots from necklaces and bracelets; seven quadruple lion-heads; two inlaid scarabs; gold-handled razors; fragments of two caskets of ivory inlay, with gold emblems in the panels; and over 10,000 minute beads of gold, carnelian, and amazon-stone, belonging to the bracelets. Lastly, in a massive limestone box, were found the four canopic jars of alabaster, with carved heads, giving the name of 'the King's Daughter, Sat-Hathor ant.'

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $90,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $90,000 worth of stock for themselves. $30,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

LIST OF SURVIVERS CONTINUES TO GROW

Twenty-seven Officers and a Large Party of Men Held in Holland.

London, Sept. 23.—Telegraphing from Amsterdam, a correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company says a special train arrived there today having on board 266 survivers, including 27 officers, of the three British cruisers sunk in the North Sea.

The party was guarded by a detachment of Dutch Infantry. Refreshments cigars, cigarettes and chocolate, were offered the survivors, who were not permitted to leave their train. Later the train pulled out for Gaasterland, in the southwestern part of the Province of Friesland.

As the train was leaving the station the spectators and survivors exchanged repeated cheers.

2 Officers, 31 Men At London.

London, Sept. 23.—The arrival in port of a trawler with two officers and thirty-one men, survivors of the North Sea disaster, leads to the hope that the toll of victims will prove less than was at first feared!

According to the report of the trawler, the fishing fleet rescued a total of 350 men from the three warships. These were ultimately all transferred to a steamer, with the exception of the 33 brought in by the trawler.

Cost Was $12,000,000

London, Sept. 23.—The swift and silent destruction of three big cruisers which cost $12,000,000 has brought home to the foremost naval people the risks and possibilities of modern naval warfare.

The survivors who have been brought to Dutch and British ports declare there were three German submarines in the attacking force, some say five, and that the cruiser Cressy or the Lowestoft accounted for two of them.

The experts say that a submarine might easily slip from Emden, on the upper mouth of the channel and attack any British ship it happened to meet and return home.

BRITAIN'S FISH TRADE

Value of Sea Fish in One Year Over $50,000,000—Growing Export Trade With the Continent

The value of the sea fish landed in England and Wales for one year amounted to $51,685,000, and reckoned in terms of human food, the year's catch amounted to some 16 million hundredweight, exclusive of "shellfish," which for statistical purposes includes lobsters, crabs, and other edible crustaceans.

Not all this quantity of food went to supply British markets, for there is a great and growing export trade with the Continent in herrings and other fish. It is probably not generally recognized how large a part the fisheries play in our foreign trade, and it may, perhaps, come as a surprise to most persons to learn that approximately eleven million hundredweights of fish were exported from the United Kingdom in 1913. The herring plays by far the larger part in this export business.

The Prolific Herring

The outstanding feature of the year has again been the record herring fishery. In the year 1912 the landings of herrings in England and Wales exceeded those of any previous year by some 380,000 hundredweight; the landings of 1913 exceeded the record total of 1912 by little short of 2,000,000 hundredweight, and the value increased by more than $3,000,000. It is a matter of considerable interest that this phenomenal rise in the take of herring should have occurred at a time when serious apprehensions are being entertained and vigorously expressed of disaster to the herring industry through the operations of those who are taking herring by means of the trawl.

The fishing industry is a great employer of labor. The number of men and boys regularly employed is given as 37,442, while occasional labor brings the total up to 44,804. For the whole of the British Islands the total number employed is 99,520. It appears that this population is fairly constant, and the prosperity of the industry has in all probability had a stimulating effect on employment in allied trades, especially shipbuilding and engineering.

Wonders of the Soundograph

A veritable box of tricks is a new instrument called a soundograph, which furnishes all the sound effects used in conjunction with the operation of moving picture machines. Producing the sounds which take place in real life, it adds to the realism of the scenes depicted on the screen.

By operating twenty-seven different devices, fifty-four effects can be produced with it, among them the tramping or running of horses, a thunderstorm, the wash of the surf, rain, wind, locomotive exhaust, train whistle, automobile, fire apparatus in action, running water, crash of glass or dishes, fall of heavy articles, the firing of arms from a single shot to a fusilade, and many others. The instrument is 3 feet 6 inches in height.

English Aviators Raid German Camp In Cologne

Antwerp, Sept. 23.—A successful raid by a squadron of five English aviators on the German aviation camp at Bickendorf, near Cologne, is reported by The Handelsblad. Bickendorf is the centre for the Zeppelin air craft, and according to the story, the Britishers from a height of 1,500 feet, dropped bombs that set fire to the hangers. Four of the aviators returned to the point of their departure, while the fifth was obliged to descend owing to engine trouble. He succeeded however, in landing in Belgium.

LONGER WAR LASTS BETTER FOR CANADA

Saskatoon Board of Trade is Exceedingly Optimistic for Immediate Future—Should Smile Through Our Tears at Folly of Recent Tears

Saskatoon, Sask., Sept. 22.—Since early in 1913, a concatenation of unwonted conditions sharply contrasting with the unbroken, phenomenal prosperity of the previous years, induced Western mental attitude which, at the outset, unresistingly accepted war as the final straw. The very suddenness of its outbreak appalled. The characteristic optimism of the people failed them, for a time. Profound despondency spread like a fell epidemic. Hard-time talk was all one heard on every hand; and, for a while, even the steadier heads murmured with the mob. A little later, however, thinking people sought to analyse the prevailing depression; to subject it to the test of reason and actual fact. As a result, it was speedily diagnosed as what might be termed an effect lacking any logical basis of cause. Certainly, there was nothing whatever the matter with the country. True, the crop was smaller than originally anticipated; but then, the phenomenal increase in live stock, and the record prices ruling for everything, far more than compensated. And, had not Mr. George Bury, Vice-President, Canadian Pacific Railway, —one of the most conservatively accurate of Western authorities,—stated that 1914 would do better for the farmer than last year? Was it not so that the grain itself would induce an influx within the next few months of over one hundred million dollars to the farmers of Saskatchewan alone, while the stock and other products would easily amount for another twenty-five millions? Obviously therefore, the agricultural resources of this purely agricultural country had in no sense failed us. Why therefore, despondence? By and by, the people echoed "WHY?" Then, metaphorically speaking, they sat up, and scratching their heads with an embarrassed smile, frankly admitted that they had cried out before there was even the slightest danger of being hurt. And so, having reached this stage, the characteristically hopeful, cheerful courageous spirit of the west again dominated with a rapidity swiftly reflected upon every line of activity. The strong and tranquil assurance of men such as Sir William Van Horne no longer failed to inspire confidence: "I do not imagine any harm can come to Canada," said he; "and the longer the war lasts the better it will be for the Dominion and the United States. Our crops of wheat, oats and coarse grains will obtain prices that will more than recoup Canada for any outlay she may decide to make on behalf of the Empire." And thus it is that today, like children, we smile through our recent tears at the folly of our recent fears.

Defrauding Butcher Punished

Butchers are very prone to label foreign meat as "Prime Scotch" and "English." Albert William Adlington, who has shops in Walton street, Chelsea, and High road, Chiswick, did this and at Westminster was fined $100 with $31.50 costs, the magistrate saying he regarded the offence as one which must be taken notice of in a serious way. Adlington was no doubt trying to steal a march on other tradesmen, and to a certain extent he was defrauding and misleading the public.

PALATIAL NEW C.P.R. STEAMSHIP

In keeping with the spirit of progressiveness which characterizes all proceedings of the C.P.R., that Company announces the completion of another Trans-Atlantic ship of magnificent proportions and equipment.

The name of the new monster is the "Missanabie." She is 520 feet in length and 64 feet in breadth, has a displacement of 18,000 tons and a gross tonnage of 13,000 tons, with a passenger carrying capacity of 1720 people. All the cabin accommodation is amidships, composed of 2, 3 or 4 berth rooms. A feature of these rooms is the great height which accordingly gives increased air space and ventilation. A novel note is struck in the drawing room and lounge by the provision of bay windows and having comfortable recess seats.

The dining room smoking room, card room, drawing room and lounge were specially designed by George Crawley, the eminent London architect. The general scheme of decoration is of the Georgian period, the furnishing being executed by the well known firm of Wylie and Lochead of Glasgow. Great attention has been given to the heating and ventilating of the ship, and is an outstanding feature representing an entirely new departure. The system is a dual one consisting of two distinct methods whereby every space on board is assured of a sufficiency of heat and fresh air.

In the most important matter of safety the arrangements for the launching of lifeboats are very complete and anticipate every contingency which human ingenuity can provide for. It is worthy of note that there are no collapsible lifeboats on board, all being rigid open lifeboats.

It is anticipated that this splendid specimen of marine architecture will be added to the Company's fleet of what are called "One-Class" Cabin ships which have become so markedly popular during the last two or three years. These ships carry only two classes of passengers (namely second cabin and third class). The second cabin is situated in the best part of the ship and includes all the parlors, ladies' nooks, smokerooms, etc. The requirements of those who while desiring the best the ship can give, are not inclined to pay the higher rates demanded for such accommodation in ships having two classes of cabins, are thereby splendidly provided for.

The ship will make her initial voyage in her sailing from Liverpool on October 7th and returning from Montreal on October 22nd.

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

OIL VERSUS COAL

Canada Occupies Eighth Place as Crude Petroleum Producer

The world's production of crude petroleum per year according to the last available figures is 53,321,750 tons, with Canada in eighth place as a producing country. The sources, respective quantities and percentages were as follows:

Country.	Tons	Percentage of total production
United States	33,297,060	62.16
Russia	10,278,560	19.23
Mexico	2,910,000	5.50
Roumania	1,987,200	3.76
Dutch East Indies	1,672,000	3.16
Galicia	1,298,620	2.45
India	1,101,450	2.08
Canada	38,750	0.073
Other countries	841,250	1.59

If the whole of this crude petroleum were employed as fuel in steam raising it would not replace, allowing for its higher thermal efficiency, much more than 5½ per cent. of the world's output of coal, whilst if used in internal combustion engines it would be equivalent, as a source of power, to about 16 per cent. of the coal.

Only a small proportion, however, of the crude petroleum can be regarded as available for use as a source of power, for by far the larger part is in demand as an illuminating agent and as a lubricant for machinery.

As the United States produces over 62 per cent. of the world's production of petroleum, it is interesting to note that Dr. Day, of the United States Geological survey, considers that, at the present rate of increase of the output of petroleum, the known oil fields of the United States will, on the basis of the minimum quantity of oil obtainable, be exhausted by the year 1935, while, even if only the present output were maintained, the supply would, on the same basis, not last more than [illegible] years.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

PRODUCERS RATHER THAN MIDDLEMEN

W. H. Cushing of Calgary, Alberta, Speaks of the Need of Settlers on the Land

Mr. W. H. Cushing, in referring to Alberta as the land of opportunity, says:

"There is no country like it for the young man providing he is sensible and does not insist on getting rich quick. Think of it! 100,000,000 acres of the finest agricultural land in the world, and only 2,000,000 acres of it under cultivation! Too many are going to the cities and too few back to the land. We want producers more than middlemen in the West. Industry and patience are all that is necessary to win for the ambitious at least a comfortable competence in Alberta." Mr. Cushing does not see any danger ahead because of exhaustive wheat growing. Optimist that he is, he says that it is questionable whether the sponge-like soil of the prairies could be robbed of its virtue no matter how many crops were taken from it. Certainly it would not deteriorate if given proper care and a rest occasionally. Even admitting that the wheat growers were taxing their land in the effort to grow wealthy quickly, the danger faded away when it was remembered that but little over 2 per cent. of the agricultural land had yet been ploughed. "Alberta," concludes Mr. Cushing, "stands on immense beds of coal, deposits of gas, oil, etc. In the north, there are large tracts of practically pure salt and other valuable minerals abound. All this is in addition to her agriculture. Who can predict what lies in front of such a storehouse of natural wealth? As I said before, I am firmly convinced that, for the young man, Alberta is the land of opportunity."

LIFE AFTER FORTY

The best half of life is in front of the man of 40, if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hands of a master and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man is the world so new and the future so fresh as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in striving to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and beautiful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thing as staleness in life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes each year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.

VICE-ADMIRAL R. H. S. STOKES who was appointed to succeed Vice-Admiral Sir C. H. Coke as senior officer on the coast of Ireland.

Perpetuating Game

Large game preserves have recently been set aside in Somaliland, Uganda and other British protectorates in Africa, in which the hunting is prohibited of elephants, giraffes, rhinoceroses and other valuable game in danger of extinction. This policy has also proved successful in perpetuating the game supply on certain Dominion Forest Reserves in Western Canada, and as occasion demands the number of these game preserves will be increased.

Our Timber Wealth

The Philippine Islands, which are extremely heavily wooded, are supposed to contain 200,000,000,000 feet, board measure, of timber. This is about one-third the estimated timber wealth of Canada, not including pulpwood, of which there are approximately 400,000,000 cords.

Mack Not Infallible

When John J. McGraw said under his own signature that Eddie Collins was the greatest second baseman, he did not mention that he let a glowing opportunity to get this remarkable player slip through his fingers. When Collins was playing with the Columbia University team, both McGraw and the late Fred Knowles were fairly begged to give Collins a trial. It may not be called bad judgment, perhaps, but the fact remains that the Giants had the first chance not only to get Collins, but also Eddie Plank.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

TRAINING ARMY HORSES

Severe Schooling Required Before They Are Ready For War

For Army purposes, in addition to learning certain things, a horse must also be accustomed gradually to carry heavy weights and to sustain considerable fatigue. When young horses are suddenly plunged into the work of actual warfare, without previous careful training, they are sure to die in great numbers. This was the case in South Africa.

The young Army horse will probably begin his training in the riding school, two of his first lessons being obedience to the reins and proper balance. He is put on to long reins and sent round in a circle from right to left, with his trainer in the middle. Afterwards he is made to go in the opposite direction, from left to right. With regard to balance, it is necessary to teach him to hold his head up, and to keep his limbs well under control, instead of sprawling carelessly about in the way natural to young animals.

Another lesson the young horse has to learn is that of pulling himself up briskly in answer to a light signal from the reins. The instructor walks behind his pupil with a rein in each hand, and at a light pressure on his mouth the horse learns to come to a halt. Jumping is the next step in his education, and he is taught this still on the long reins, sometimes with the help of an old charger, who will give him a lead over the obstacles. By this time the youngster should be obedient to the long reins, and so the time comes for him to be mounted for the first time by his instructor. A man is placed at either side of his head, and the instructor, standing at the horse's left side, jumps up so that he is lying, face downwards, across the saddle. This is probably done several times before the man actually mounts, so as to accustom the animal to the unwonted weight on his back. Then at last the trainer actually mounts, being particularly careful not to touch the young animal with his toe, as this would scare him and make him nervous. Amongst the many lessons yet remaining to be learned by the young horse is that of lying down with a man on his back. The rider throws his left stirrup across the withers. He gathers the reins and a handful of mane into his left hand drawing his horse's head to the right. Meanwhile, the man puts his weight on the horse's left side, grasping the back of the saddle with his right hand. As the horse sinks down the rider opens his legs and steps from his mount as the animal reaches the ground.

In actual battle it may be of the utmost importance that a horse shall remain where he is left, with the reins thrown over his head. To the end of the reins a sack is tied, and the horse is then left. If he moves forward, he treads on the sack, with the result that he gets a good hard jab in the mouth, which he does not forget, and in future, when left with the reins in that position, he is content to stand still until his rider's return.

MODERN METHODS OF SAVING TIME

Machinery Replaces Human Brains and Hands—Office Work Reduced to Minimum

Novelties in the line of devices to save time and trouble in offices have come out in great numbers recently.

A new adding machine has an adding capacity of 10,000,000 and a weight of 13½ pounds. It adds, subtracts, and multiplies. It has seven keys, and an error-correcting device.

Another adding machine has a "Mezzanine" attachment, a keyboard on runways above the regular keyboard, which is said to make easy the solution of involved arithmetical operations.

An electric calculating machine, automatic after the necessary key has been depressed, multiplies, divides, and subtracts with astonishing speed.

Another calculating machine computes pay rolls, total time, and total pay, based on wages per week, per day, or per year.

An addressing machine about the size and weight of a typewriter prepares an address on a metal plate almost as quickly as it could be written on paper with a typewriter.

A special paper for the stencil addressing machines can be placed in any typewriter and written on in the usual way. The striking of the type makes the necessary perforations in the paper, which can then be placed in an ordinary stencil addressing machine and invoices, wrappers, cards, and other matter can be addressed by the thousand in exact facsimile of typewriting.

Presses for baling waste paper effect great savings in offices and large buildings, as every scrap of waste paper is utilized and sold.

A new carbon paper has an uncarbonized strip five-eighths of an inch wide, running lengthwise on the surface edge. This obviates soiling the hands and the paper.

A check machine writes a word at a stroke, impressing the same in indelible characters in the body of the check. It is impossible to remove the letters to raise the amount.

A coin counter will count hundreds of coins in a few minutes and deposit them in tubular containers.

A coin-banding machine will deliver a given amount of change in any variety desired, from one cent to $200.

There are several new envelope sealing machines with capacities for sealing from 1,000 to 10,000 per hour sealing from 1,000 to 10,000 per hour.

A compact machine has been devised which will sign five checks simultaneously in exact facsimile of the original.

A new stencil machine will cut the name and address of a customer, name of shipper, routing, and special marks in a material much like cardboard. It cuts from five-eighths to one inch high.

A new typewriter model has two sets of keys. The turn of a knob immediately gives a complete change of type. Many different fonts can be used.

CAUSE OF TIDES

Many people regard the rise and fall of the ocean as a profound and baffling mystery. The mystery is not very hard to understand. As all know, the surface of the ocean rises and falls twice in every lunar day, this rise appearing along a coast to be a horizontal motion always ebbing or flowing.

Now the lunar day consists of about twenty-five hours. Thus, of course, the "time" of the tides varies each day. The tides, moreover, do not always rise to the same height. Every fortnight, with the new and full moon, they rise very much higher than at other times.

These high tides are called "spring" tides, the alternating low tides being termed "neap." When the moon is nearest the earth, the rise and fall of the ocean is markedly increased. Thus the spring tides are greatest at the equinoxes—that is, at the end of March and the end of September.

Yes, you say, but what has the moon to do with it at all? Surely [illegible] sun which attracts the earth.

That is so. But, although the sun's attraction on the earth is far greater than the moon's, the moon is so very much nearer to the earth that the difference between its attraction at the centre and on the surface is three times as great as the sun's. And it is this difference which causes tides.

Big Customer of Banks

City auditor Sterling of Toronto compiled figures to show that the municipality's transactions with the banks for one year totalled over forty millions of dollars.

Black-throated Loon

A black-throated loon was shot on Bridgeport dam, near Berlin, by Herman Wagner. The black-throated loon is a very rare visitor in inland waters of this latitude, its habitat being far north. It has a full purplish black throat, in distinction from the more common loon, which has a white streaked band around the coat. McIlwraith, in his "Birds of Ontario," speaks of only one loon of this variety which he saw amid ice floes in Hamilton Bay one spring, and of another as having been shot on Sandusky Bay in the fall of 1890. Former Stockbroker Fenner Given Heavy Sentence in Old Bailey Court

Sentence of four years' penal servitude was imposed by Mr. Justice Rowlatt, at the Old Bailey, upon Charles Edwin Fenner, aged fifty-six, formerly a stockbroker, whose malversations involved among other amounts a large sum belonging to the funds of the Liberal party.

Fenner was indicted for the fraudulent conversion of moneys entrusted to him for investment. Mr. A. H. Bodkin, K.C., said the total amount of money or securities misappropriated amounted to $330,985, the transactions ranging from 1910 up to March, 1913. On May 7 last Fenner, who had been a member of the Stock Exchange, and carried on business in the name of "H. L. Montmorency and Co.," was adjudicated a bankrupt, the claims against his estate amounting to more than [illegible]. The estate realised $5,750. He was arrested in Paris, and extradited.

Mr. Bodkin added that the total loss suffered by Lord Murray (who as Chief Whip had control of the Liberal party funds) in connection with the transactions he had with Fenner was $194,775.

Oil Company Fiasco

Fenner's misfortune was that after Mr. Montmorency was drowned in the Stella disaster he had to decide within a very short time whether he would attempt to carry on the business. He decided to continue it, after advice, which, counsel said, might not have been good, and the result was that from 1902 to 1912 bad debts to the extent of over $200,000 were incurred.

But the culminating disaster was his connection with the oil company, which he entered into without thinking that there was any risk. He undertook to finance it on promises made, parted with over $180,000, and had not one penny to show for it.

Fenner had lived a perfectly simple life in a small flat in London, his only extravagance being a small cottage on the river, which he occupied with his brother at a rental of $150 a year. Counsel admitted that in going as he did to Paris Fenner took a regrettable step, but urged that he did not leave the country as criminals generally did. He only took with him a sum of $500, and when in Paris lived in a room rented at $2.50 a week only.

Hardships in Paris Gaol

When arrested, counsel said that Fenner was kept for fifty-one days in Paris. During that time he suffered every hardship and indignity, and was detained under the most filthy surroundings and conditions that it would be a little difficult to believe could exist at the present day, but for the fact that they had heard similar stories from other people.

"Though I recognise the sadness of a scene like this," said Mr. Justice Rowlatt in passing sentence, "one cannot allow one's feelings of compassion in the presence of a tragedy like this to permit any weakening of the criminal law for the repression of malversations of this character. From those who are greatly trusted strict reckoning must be exacted."

Romantic Wedding Recalled

The death of Colonel P. A. Watson Carnegy, of Lour, near Forfar, recalls his romantic marriage of two years ago. At that time the colonel was seventy-six years of age. He had been confined to his bed for some time with a severe illness, and his marriage at Lour to a lady well known in London society created a slight sensation in Scotland and London. The ceremony was performed by an Hon. Sheriff-substitute of Forfarshire, and was attended only by the contracting parties and the necessary witnesses.

BIG STEEL CASTINGS FOR QUEBEC BRIDGE

Sixteen castings for the new Quebec Bridge are worthy of note because they are much larger than any steel castings previously made in Canada. The weight of each is about 43 tons. Each is 21 ft. x 6 ft., 8 in. x 4 ft. in dimensions. Owing to the intricate design of the interior of these castings necessitating a large number of cores the making of the moulds required a high degree of skill and accuracy. The material used in them is a high grade of steel, being scrap metal procured from the wreck of the old Quebec Bridge. They are bolted in pairs, two pairs to each concrete pier carrying the main columns of the bridge.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Never Questioned

Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure and wholesome. It is made from highly refined, pure, cream of tartar, an ingredient of grapes. Not an atom of unwholesomeness goes into it; not an unwholesome influence comes from it. It perfectly leavens the food, makes it finer in appearance, more delicious to the taste, more healthful.

Its superiority in all the qualities that make the perfect baking powder is never questioned.

ANTISEPTICS IN AUSTRALIAN BLUE GUM PROVE A CURE FOR BRONCHIAL CATARRH

Bad Cold In the Head, Throat Weakness and Catarrh Cured Quickly.

Medicated Air A Marvel

Catarrhozone is far superior to any internal medicine.

Its relief is almost instantaneous—just takes long enough to breathe its healing vapor into the lungs to give wonderful soothing relief.

Catarrhozone goes right to the tiniest cells in the lungs, carrying healing, soothing balsams to the places that are tainted with Catarrhal inflammation. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes—a sore throat is healed and restored in an hour or two—chronic bronchitis is soothed away and quickly disappears—catarrh of long standing is invariably cured because Catarrhozone kills the germs that cause the trouble.

As a cure for Asthma and a preventative of Grippe every doctor is delighted with Catarrhozone. One eminent throat specialist says if Catarrhozone is used two or three times each day you will never suffer from any disease of the head, throat, nose or lungs. This is good news to many of our readers who must require a safe, sure and permanent cure for their colds and winter ills. Every good druggist sells Catarrhozone. large outfit $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c.

New Separate School.

Yesterday a Times scribe had occasion to pass along Mark Street, East City, at 11 a.m. Here he saw that the former public school, since modernized, is now in active commission as a Separate School. Groups of happy rosy cheeked little girls were merrily playing during recess time. A great improvement has been affected in connection with this formerly old fashioned building.

Cobourg Battery Home.

The Cobourg battery, which arrived in Kingston from Vancouver last week, disbanded on Saturday. The special train arrived in Cobourg about midnight on Saturday and the local boys returned to town yesterday. All the guns and equipment of the battery were sent to Montreal, and the men have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for re mobilization at any time.

Patriotic Fund Augmented.

The Patriotic Fund was augmented yesterday when Mr. Adams, Treasurer, of the Fund, received a cheque for $1,000 from the Toronto Savings and Loan Company. The accompanying letter stated that should any further appeal be necessary, the Company would be glad to respond to it. A cheque for $50 was also to hand from Messrs. J.J. Turner and Sons, as a contribution to the fund. The fund now amounts to in the neighborhood of $2,500.

Two Horses Shot.

Yesterday morning a valuable horse owned by the Peterboro Fuel and Cartage Co. was shot. It seems that the horse was kicked by its equine mate, and had its leg broken. A few days ago a horse belonging to a Charlotte Street fruit store was shot. This was the result of a peculiar accident. The horse was found on Tuesday morning lying in its stall with its back broken. The animal had evidently been frightened during the night. It must have reared up and its halter was torn off. The horse's back was broken by a fall. A bullet ended its sufferings.

Looking Backward

Thirty years ago yesterday the Midland Railway safe at Port Perry, was blown open at night and $50 stolen.

Thirty years ago yesterday a rowing race was held on Mud Lake between Arthur Strickland and Frank Mercer, a local tailor. Strickland won in the dark as Mercer rowed out of the proper course.

Thirty years ago yesterday a swindle was in progress in this County. Men went round with papers ostensibly petitions for submitting the Scott Act. However people found later that they had signed promissory notes for large sums.

Lieut. Matthews Extends Thanks.

Yesterday's Cheese Board

Ninety-eight per cent. of the patrons of the cheese factories in this district have expressed their willingness to devote one day's milk to the Patriotic Fund. It was decided yesterday that the make of cheese on Sept. 30th will be a contribution toward the Patriotic Fund from many farmers and cheesemakers in Peterborough County. Mr. Switzer, Mr. Ed Hawthorne of Warsaw, and Mr. Duff, salesman, were appointed by the Cheese Board a committee to look after the securing of the money from that day's make. The bidding opened fairly brisk and the top price was offered by Mr. Flavelle who at 14⅜ cents, secured the following: Keene, Shearer, Myrtle, Indian River, East Emily, Trewern, and Fleetwood. Mr. Norton took the balance of the Board for 14 13-16 c.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, liver and bowells.

Every mother realises, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

BETTER FEELING IN THE TRADE

That the feeling in the trade is very much more assured than it was four weeks ago is the opinion of Mr. R. D. Fairbairn, president of R.D. Fairbairn Company, Limited manufacturers of ladies' outer garments and fancy dry goods.

Mr. Fairbairn believes the manufacturers of Canada as a class have largely in their own hands the matter of whether there will be good business for Canadian factories. "The business is there," said Mr. Fairbairn, "if the manufacturers will only get after it. The depression in trade which was in force before the war has certainly not increased since the war began; and, on the whole, manufacturers can be assured of good business, provided they do two things—advertise and push the selling department to the limit."

Referring to his own business, Mr. Fairbairn said he did not anticipate cutting down one hour of labor or dismissing one employe or reducing wages as a result of the war. On the contrary, the present staff of upwards of 200 is being slightly increased. This continued activity is not due to any removal of competition, but to the continued demand throughout the country.

"We are absolutely confident," said Mr. Fairbairn, "that with the business to be done at home there is absolutely no excuse for any manufacturer of garments curtailing his output. People have to be clothed; our farmers are getting big money for their produce and the $450,000,000 represented by our export business for this year must be circulated. The general trade of the country must of necessity not only hold its own, but advance."

You are Invited to Carefully Inspect the 1914 Player-Piano of "Ye Olde Firme"

Perfect Satisfaction in Buying a Heintzman & Co.
"Ye Olde Firme"
Player-Piano

The building of the Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano is an interesting piece of Piano history. Makers of the world's best Piano, we could not afford to put a Player-piano on the market bearing our name until we had brought the work of construction in the Player-Piano up to the same point of acknowledged and unrivalled excellence as is accorded the Heintzman & Co. Piano.

So we worked diligently through the years on this Player Piano until we could say that it was the best. And in our new model for 1914 we have further improved on the excellencies of 1913.

The Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano cannot be considered along with any other Player-Piano. It is a new and distinct creation, built along lines that are common to no other instrument.

The most outstanding feature of this Player-Piano is the aluminum action. By this means this instrument will withstand different climatic changes in a way that is not possible with the ordinary wood action. The swelling and shrinking of wood which takes place with climatic changes opens up minute passages, through which the air escapes, and if leakage of air takes place then the action immediately deteriorates.

Not only is the primary valve casing cast in one solid piece of aluminum, which ensures its being absolutely air-tight, but the secondary valve casing and chamber which conducts the air stream from the power pneumatic is also cast in one piece of aluminum.

Let it be known that the controlling of the air is the great consideration in all pneumatic Player-Pianos.

There are altogether some twenty interesting and distinctive features about this Player-Piano—all combining to make it the perfect instrument it is.

We place our unqualified warranty upon this Player-Piano, for we know it is more than a sweet-sounding instrument. It is good all through.

TEXTILE FACTORIES WORKING OVERTIME

The war has put new vim into the three textile factories at Renfrew, Ont.

Logans, Limited, a 60-year-old concern, which had been closed down for two or three weeks prior to the breaking out of hostilities, is now being operated at full capacity day and night.

The Renfrew Knitting Company, where only a small portion of the staff had been employed for some time before the war began, is also running at full capacity, and with as much overtime as its eighty employes can stand.

In the plant of the Renfrew Textile Company also a temporary shutting down has been replaced by the employment of a full staff and considerable overtime.

While it is true that each of these three factories secured a share of the Dominion Government's textile order the increased activities are largely due to increased orders from regular customers. All three factories report a considerable improvement in this direction since the breaking out of hostilities.

Belgians Seriously Damage Germans' Line Of Communication and Capture 3000 Prisoners-- Battle Of The Aisne Probably Not Yet Started

BRITISH AND FRENCH FORCES HAVE NOW OCCUPIED PERONNE

After Severe Fighting Over a Battle Line of 150 Miles The Germans Make Little Impression on the Allies--Russians Still Successful and Have Invested Pryemsyl --Now March on Cracow

PARIS, SEPT. 24.—The Allies have advanced considerably along their western wing, occupying the town of Peronne, despite desperate resistance, according to the official announcement of the French War Department this afternoon. At the eastern end of the battle line in France there has been heavy fighting on the River Meuse, the allies alternately advancing and then retiring. The text of the statement is as follows:

FIRST—On our left wing, between the River Somme and the River Oise, our troops have advanced in the direction of Roye. A detachment occupied Peronne, and held this position, in spite of the spirited attack on the part of the enemy.

Between the River Oise and the River Aisne, the enemy continues to maintain important bodies of troops, well entrenched. We have made a slight advance to the north-west of Berry-Au-Bac.

SECOND—On the centre, between Rheims and the Argonne district, the situation shows no change. To the east of the Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse, the enemy has continued his attacks, delivering them with especial violence. The fighting continues, accompanied by alternate retirements at certain points and advances at others.

On our right wing there has been no change of importance.

In the region of Nancy and the Vosges, certain detachments of the enemy have again attempted to enter upon French soil, driving back light covering bodies of our troops, but their offensive was soon stopped.

In Galicia, the Russians, having taken possession of Jaroslau, are completely investing Przemys., and continuing their offensive movements on Cracow.

AUSTRIANS COPY GERMAN METHODS

LONDON, SEPT. 24.—The Russian troops occupying Senisws, 18 miles north west of Jaroslau, says the Petrograd correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company, found that the town had been sacked by the Austrians. A large number of Austrian soldiers were captured.

Russians Rout Germans British Troops Help Japs

Copenhagen, Sept. 24.—(via London) —Zeppelin airships, evidently on reconnoitering duty, have been observed from various places in Jutland, the peninsula forming the mainland of Denmark.

The airships passed about 16 miles outside of the western coast.

British Troops Help Japs

Tokio, Sept. 24.—The War Office makes the official announcement that British troops, under Brigadier-General Nathaniel W. Barnardiston, commander of the North China forces, landed on September 23 in the neighborhood of Laoshan Bay to participate in the movements against the Germans at Tsing-tau.

Britishers To Leave Holland

London, Sept. 24.- The Hague correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co., says it has been announced there that in conformity with the principles of international law, the rescued British sailors from the cruisers blown up in the North Sea cannot be interned in Holland. They have been merely taken to Gaasterland, for internment in the camp there for a brief time only, pending their departure for England.

Russians Rout the Germans

London, Sept. 24.—The Paris Matin prints a despatch from Petrograd stating that the Germans, who drove General Rennenkampf back into Russia, are reported to have suffered a great defeat at Subir. The Russians have re-occupied Soldau, in East Prussia, on the Polish frontier. It is stated that the Germans are evacuating East Prussia to reinforce the line from Thorn in West Prussia, on the border of Poland, to Kalisz, a town in Russian Poland.

SICK DOCTOR

Proper Food Put Him Right.

The food experience of a physician in his own case when worn out and weak from sickness and when needing nourishment the worst way, is valuable:

"An attack of grip, so severe it came near making an end of me, left my stomach in such condition I could not retain any ordinary food. I knew of course that I must have food nourishment or I could never recover.

"I began to take four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream three times a day and for 2 weeks this was almost my only food. It tasted so delicious that I enjoyed it immensely and my stomach handled it perfectly from the first mouthful. It was so nourishing I was quickly built back to normal health and strength.

"Grape-Nuts is of great value as food to sustain life during serious attacks in which the stomach is so deranged it cannot digest and assimilate other foods.

"I am convinced that were Grape-Nuts more widely used by physicians, it would save many lives that are otherwise lost from lack of nourishment." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

The most perfect food in the world Trial of Grape-Nuts and cream 10 days proves. "There's a Reason."

OF COURSE INDIA IS FAITHFUL TO BRITAIN

His Highness the Aga Khan Laughs at Germany and Says Seven Million Men are Available to Fight Britain's Battles

London, Sept. 24.—His Highness the Aga Khan, recognised temporal leader over sixty millions of the Mohammedans of the Indian Empire sums up the attitude of his people in the present conflict, and says: "Germany made a mistake, as it did about Ireland, and anybody who counts on India to be false to England will come a cropper."

The Aga Khan has directed the Khoja Moslems, who alone number several millions and over whom he is the spiritual as well as the temporal head to place their personal services and resources at the disposal of the Government and has volunteered to serve himself as a private in any regiment of infantry on the Indian expeditionary force. The Aga Khan laughs heartily over the suggestion that a Germanistic propoganda might undermine the loyalty of the Indian subjects to their King Emperor. He remarked smilingly:

Know What Defeat Would Mean

"Many of my fellow countrymen have been in Africa and seen the German administration of the east and southwest African colonies. They know what the Germanization of India would mean, and they know, too that if England were driven out of India Germany, should she be successful in this war, would step in. The thinking element among the Indians of all classes realize that our country, divided as it is into hundreds of principalities, each inclined to be jealous of the others, could not hope to stand alone if British rule were withdrawn.

"Germany's two-fold purpose in striving to create dissention in India is, first, to give trouble to England, which might cost her the victory in the war, and, second, to seize India as a part of the Kaiser's dream of his world empire. This scheme is as well known in India as at Berlin. Indians need no assistance from England to frustrate it, because they fully comprehend the peril of being crushed beneath the mailed fist of Prussian militarism.

7,000,000 If Need Be

"After all," the Aga Khan continued gravely, "the one hope of India lies in the King-Emperor and his Government. There can be no united India until England has finished the work of knitting together into one strong nation the confusing jumble of races, religious and castes, she has governed so successfully for 150 years.

"Will Indian troops be able to stand against the German army considering they have never before been permitted to fight white men?" was asked.

"I think so," said the Aga Khan, with a quiet smile. "If need be there can be 700,000 or 7,000,000 men. That would not be a great number to offer from our 350,000,000 population. So, despite reports from Wilhelmstrasse you may rest assured there is not the slightest doubt of India's loyalty to England."

Offers of assistance from the many states of India continue to pour in.

Death of Mr. R. E. Wood

The whole community learned with extreme regret yesterday morning that Mr. R. E. Wood, who for many years has so efficiently filled the responsible position of County Crown Attorney for this County, has passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The late Mr. Wood has been a lifelong resident of Peterborough, having been born in South Monaghan sixty-eight years ago. He studied law at Victoria University, which was at Cobourg at that time. After graduating he entered partnership with the late Mr. Hatton, and after a few years he entered partnership with Mr. Geo. Edmison. Later he received the appointment as County Crown Attorney.

He was a past master of Corinthian Lodge; he was also district deputy G. M. for the district of Ontario. The late Mr. Wood served as president of the Peterborough Law Society, and as President of the Peterborough Club. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Left to mourn his death, besides his sorrowing widow are three sons, Herbert and Arthur, practicing law in Vancouver, and Edward, a physician in New York City. The funeral will be held Saturday morning from St. Paul's Church. At 11 o'clock a short service will be held, and interment will take place in Little Lake Cemetery.

His Honour Judge Huycke, at yesterday morning's sittings of the County Judge Criminal Court, made the following references to the death of Mr. R. E. Wood:

"Gentlemen of the Bar:

"I must ask your indulgence for a moment this morning before the regular work of the Court proceeds. I desire to mention a subject of very great pain and grief to us all. I have just been given, gentlemen, on coming into the room, the sad information that the friend of us all, Mr. R. E. Wood, the Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace of the County of Peterborough, has during the night that has just gone, passed into the Eternal World. It is not unexpected in a way. Before this all knew how seriously affected Mr. Wood has been for some time, and we knew the end was certain, but we did not and could not know when to expect it, whether soon or for some time. However, the end has come, and Mr. Wood is with us no more. It is a matter of great sorrow to every one in the city and county of Peterborough, but more particularly to those associated directly or indirectly with Mr. Wood in his work of the administration of justice. During the five years I have been here as judge Mr. Wood has been of great assistance to me. He was a faithful, painstaking and conscientious officer. He did his work in the plain, trying path of duty. He was conscientious in every respect, and I wish to say more, he was fair. Fair not only to the Crown, because that was his duty, but I think he was fair in connection and with persons whom it was his duty to prosecute. If at the close of a case he thought there was a sufficient case for conviction, he pressed

Both Armies Being Reinforced and are Fortifying Strong Positions--The Crown Prince Has Picked His Way Out of a Difficult Position Into One Still More Dangerous--Enemy's Right Wing is in Danger of Disaster

ANTWERP, SEPT. 24.—THE BELGIAN FORCES HAVE SERIOUSLY DAMAGED THE GERMAN LINE OF COMMUNICATIONS, AND CAPTURED SEVERAL GUNS. THIS DESPATCH IS FROM A RELIABLE SOURCE, BUT DOES NOT SAY WHERE THE ENGAGEMENT TOOK PLACE.

LONDON, SEPT. 24.—Interest in the fighting to-day centres in Wœvre, says the Bordeaux correspondent of The Times, where the enemy is making a serious effort to pierce the line of forts linking Verdun and Toul.

"To the northeast of Verdun," the correspondent continues, "east of the Meuse heights and in the direction of Mouilly and Dampierre three furious attempts have failed. In the south of Woevre they hold line-positions running through Richecourt, Seicheprey and Lironville. The general situation remains unchanged.

"On the left and centre the allies have the best of reasons for confidence in the result of the battle. Let there be no mistake, the enemy is going to give serious trouble along the line where, with striking recuperative power, they managed to gather their routed hordes, fleeing from the battle of the Marne.

VERY STRONG POSITIONS

"A week has elapsed since it first became clear that, although forced to abandon successive positions prepared for defense, the enemy had found to the north of the Aisne, north-northwest of Rheims, formidably prepared fortified positions upon which they might hope to maintain themselves for many days, while their own troops were recovering from the retreat and while the fire of victory among the allies was burning out.

"The positions, enormously strong by nature and dominating the valleys and the towns, have been turned into regular fortresses. The line of trenches built with science and the solidity of permanent works are covered by flanking trenches bristling with mitrailleuses and reinforced by masses of barbed wire and blockhouses, whose quick firers and mitrailleuses sweep the whole front. To the rear of these works the heavy artillery is placed in position and from its fire such places as Soissons and Rheims have suffered great damage.

PICKING A WEAK SPOT

"Most of the work on this line was finished while the battle of the Marne was still in progress. The Allies did their best to prevent its completion and there has been some desperate fighting along the Aisne. Gallant rushes have been made toward the trenches and fierce hand-to-hand struggles have taken place upon the top of the Craonne plateau, the side of which rises like a cliff against the allies.

"Attack and counter attack succeeded one another while the endangered Crown Prince's army has been picking a way out of a difficult country into a still more awkward position. On our right the enemy's army has been seeking for an opening or a weak link in the chain of forts between Toul and Verdun.

"The allies for their part have been progressing slowly upon the enemy's right, pushing up a wedge into the centre between Rheims and Argonne.

ONLY PRELIMINARY STAGES!

"Still the actual battle of the Aisne has not yet begun. There has already been enough fighting to constitute a half a dozen battles, but only the preliminary stages of the big struggle has been reached. The railway on both sides are massing troops along the front, the Germans coming from Lorraine, the British from the whole Empire, and the French from the south and west.

"Meanwhile the siege operations continue. The deceptive lull which preceded the battle of Liao-Yang has fallen upon the field. The situation remains unchanged in spite of the furious cannonading and the desperate fighting, but with each fresh engagement the situation becomes more clear, the plan of the staff more definite and the day of its realization more imminent."

OBITUARY

DAVID McGRATH

The death occurred yesterday morning of David McGrath in his 75th year Born in Ireland, he came to this country when very young, and has resided in this vicinity for about sixty years. He was highly respected by a large circle of friends and his death will be deeply regretted.

Left to mourn his death are two daughters, one at home, and Mrs. F. Bissonette, of East City, also two sons, John and David, both at home. His wife predeceased him three years.

The funeral will leave the family residence, Concession 12, lot 32, Otonabee, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

The Armouries should be packed tonight to help the Patriotic Fund along. The massed bands of the Salvation Army and the 57th Regiment will furnish a programme that you cannot afford to miss.

GERMANS ARE LOSING ON RIGHT, STREAM OF PRISONERS AND WOUNDED

Being Gradually Pushed Out of Western France--London Times Thinks We Are on the Eve of Great Events in This District--Steady Progress of Allies Left Justifies Confidence, Montenegrins Capture Village--

PARIS, SEPT. 24.—That the Germans are losing heavily on the right is attested by the constant arrival of prisoners and wounded here. Early this morning many automobiles were seen with wounded, both Germans and Allies, passing through the streets, but some of these were convalescents returning from the seashore and rejoining their corps. The steady progress of the Allies' left fortifies confidence here. This morning's press is unanimous that the Battle of the Aisne cannot last much longer, for the steady retirement of the German right must entail a weakening of the centre elbow that the Germans threw out along the River Oise to prevent being turned.

ON THE EVE OF GREAT EVENTS

LONDON, SEPT. 24.—The correspondent of The Times in France reports that Allies yesterday blew up the railway bridge at Miraumont, between Amiens and Arras. He adds:

"We are certainly on the eve of great events in this region whence the enemy is being gradually pushed out, but the Germans are still strong behind a line drawn roughly from St. Amand through Denain, Bouchain and Cambrai.

"The Germans are practically in touch with the French 13th Army Corps Courchelettes and Arleux, where fighting may be expected."

MONTENEGRINS TAKE VILLAGE

LONDON, SEPT. 24.—An official report given out at Cettinje, and telegraphed here by the correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company, states that the Montenegrins operating in Bosnia, after a hot engagement, took the little town of Pratzho, which is in the immediate neighborhood of Sarajevo, where the defeated Austrians have taken refuge after abandoning a large number of dead on the field.

Allies Cannot Be Diverted By Futile Demonstrations

Paris, Sept. 24.—The formidable force the Germans threw against the Allies' left is still flinching, according to the official communication, under the unrelenting blows of the Franco-the famous Guards, as in the battle British human battering ram. Even of the Marne, are unable to stand the pressure, and are giving a little more ground every day.

The diversion attempted in Lorraine having proven ineffectual, the Germans are now making a fierce drive in the Woevre district, northeast of Verdun. The object no doubt is to cut off the army operating around Nancy but the Germans already had tried to make an opening between Verdun and Toul, besieging Troyon at the same time. It is doubtful that they will succeed any better this time than they did in the former attempt. Nevertheless the manœuvring constitutes a resisting desperately and have thus far grave menace to the Allies who are repulsed attacks with heavy losses.

CANADIAN CLUB ASKED TO EXPEL HENRI BOURASLA

Members Present Resolution to That Effect, Which Was Declared Out of Order—Referred to Executive

Montreal, Sept. 24.—An attempt to expel Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, from the Canadian Club, was made this afternoon at a banquet held in the Windsor Hotel, at which the Belgian delegation to President Wilson were present. A resolution calling for Mr. Bourassa's expulsion was tendered, but the Chairman, Dean Adams, would not accept it as it was out of order.

The resolution follows:

"That this Club regrets to feel the spirit which prompted it to extend the honor of its membership to Henri Bourassa, one of the most eloquent of our French-Canadian orators, does not seem to have been either understood or appreciated by him, and that the Club now feels, in justice to those of our French and English fellow members who believe in a united Canada and who are loyally giving their time, their money and their lives in the service of their King and country, that the treasurer should return Mr. Bourassa his fee, expressing the hope that he will live long enough to realize what it means to be a true patriot and honored citizen."

The motion was cheered loudly by both French and English members.

Because Mr. Bourassa had been given no opportunity to reply to the motion, and because no notice of it had been given, Dean Adams asked that the matter be referred to the executive which was agreed to.

SHOWS BEING CANCELLED.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, proprietors of The Grand Opera House, have received the following, which speaks for itself:

"Grand Opera House,
"Toronto, Sept. 23, 1914

"J. J. Turner, Sr.,
"Prop. Grand Opera House,
"Peterborough, Ont:

"Dear Mr. Turner.—

"I have just received word that a great many of the attractions are closing, as there is no business anywhere. The theatrical business, at present, is something wild and terrible everywhere, and conditions in most parts of the United States are just as bad as in Canada.

"This terrible war seems to have a bad effect on business, and more particularly on the theatrical business, and in consequence I expect that most of the shows that I have booked over my circuit will be cancelled.

"Yours very truly,
A. J. SMALL."

Official Berlin announces that orders were given not to bombard Rheims, where the cathedral has been destroyed by German shells. Official Berlin is a liar and a hypocrite.

MYSTERY OF NATURE

Botanists do Not Agree as to What Causes Plants' Reawakening

What awakens plant life in the spring? How do plants know when winter is at an end? It is not that they feel the warmth of the sun, for many of them are so far beneath the ground that the sun's rays have had no chance to penetrate them when they start to struggle towards the surface of the ground. And when the winter lingers long in the lap of spring, it seems to make little difference to the plants, which come up just the same.

Some plants even bloom with the snow still on the ground. The aconite forces its way up through the snow. In the mountains of Southern Europe the soldanellas send up their flower stalks right through the snow, boring their way to the sunlight and blooming at the surface. When the snow is unusually deep they even bloom underneath it. Their activity is not confined to mere blooming, for often the actual pollenation takes place under the snow.

Botanists are agreed that heat has very little to do with the awakening of plants at the end of winter. The seeds have been lying buried all through the cold months, and long before any warmth can have reached them their tiny shoots have begun to work their way upward through the soil. The water plants, which die down in the fall and whose roots have been lying dormant in the mud at the bottom of the lakes and ponds, feel the call of spring and send forth leaf and flower stalks that soon show upon the surface. The water in which they awake is far colder than was that in which they died down.

As it cannot be the heat that calls things back to life, what else can it be? Leonard Bastin suggests that perhaps the light of the sun, apart from its warmth, has a reviving effect when the days begin to grow longer.

WEATHER FALACIES LONG SINCE EXPLODED

There Are Some Signs, However, Which May be Taken as Usually Reliable

There are two widespread popular fallacies in connection with the weather. One is that rain may be caused by concussion. This idea, that any loud noise, such as cannonading, or even the ringing of bells, would bring rain, was suggested centuries ago. It was fully disproved in 1892 by experiments made by the United States Government. In these tests heavy charges of dynamite were carried aloft, even into the interior of clouds, by kites and balloons and exploded there but no rain resulted. The other fallacy is that the moon has an influence on the weather. This notion has been proved, by years of careful meteorological observations to be entirely without foundation. The old belief that certain crops should be planted at a certain stage of the moon is so absurd that it is no longer held by any intelligent people.

Popular Sayings

There are many popular sayings concerning the weather. Some of these are quite unreliable, and only persist because of the popular tendency to count the hits and forget the misses. No credence should be attached to the innumerable sayings regarding the character of certain seasons as determined by the weather on certain dates of the calendar. The same is true of the saying that the early appearance of winter birds denotes a severe winter. On the other hand there are many weather signs which can usually be relied upon. An observant person whose occupation takes him outdoors can very often predict the weather from one day to the next with a good degree of accuracy. Much appears to depend upon knowing one's locality, as a person who is "weather wise" at home is often decidedly off in new regions.

Some Explanations

Smoke falls before a storm, because the condensation of vapor on the smoke particles weighs them down. This increase in humidity before a storm also causes an increase in rheumatic pains, and make the walls of stone houses damp. Dew formed plentifully after a fair day and soon dissolved the next morning indicates a strong range of temperature under the clear sky of a anticyclone, and hence may fortell a day or two of fair weather. It is said that "the northwest wind is a gentleman, and goes to bed," meaning that the nights are usually calm after a northwest wind by day; this naturally follows from the diurnal variation of velocity in the clear weather of such a wind. When the wind shifts to the north with the sun (that is "veers") we usually get clear weather. This is so because it indicates that the cyclone which has brought us the bad weather has passed. If, on the other hand, the wind backs (that is goes in the opposite direction to the sun) another spell of bad weather is coming.

DISPOSAL OF BRUSH

British Columbia Pursues Progressive Policy to Reduce Fire Menace

Much progress has been made in British Columbia in connection with minimizing fire risks through the disposal of slash resulting from lumbering operations. In one year about 20,000 acres of lumbering slash were burned in that province, and a much larger area would have been burned had it not been for unusual rain. On the Coast and in the Interior, several experimental areas were burned by the Forest Branch, which, also, in co-operation with the Department of Public Works, burned a great many miles of slash along public roads. Such inflammable débris constitutes a serious fire menace as long as it is allowed to remain undisposed of. The Forest Branch, in co-operation with private land owners, secured the burning of quantities of slash created by road and railroad construction through private lands. It was a condition of the charter of the railways building through the province, through timbered territory, that where timber is taken from Crown lands for construction purposes, the slash shall be piled and burned, scattered and burned, or lopped, according to the direction of the forest officers.

Rich Stamp Dealer

Mr. W. H. Peckitt, a famous Strand stamp dealer, retired with a fortune at the early age of forty-two. Mr. Peckitt, who specialized in British and Colonial issues, paid $120,000 for the collection of the late Sir William Avery. He also bought part of the late Earl of Crawford's collection. It is stated that the price paid for Mr. Peckitt's collection ran into six figures

WASTE FROM DESKS GOES INTO BRUSHES

Remnants From One Factory Used as Raw Material For Another

Waste wood in the manufacture of school desks is used for the backs of cheap brushes. A large manufacturer of school desks in Michigan had a considerable amount of waste material in sizes which were too short to enter into the manufacture of the smallest desks, and could not be utilised further with his machinery or in his line of work. This material was all hard maple in pieces an inch thick, a foot or so long, and about three inches wide; for a long time it had been consigned to the waste pile and sold as firewood. This waste amounted to from 1,000 to 1,500 board feet each day. A nearby manufacturer was using practically this quantity of maple, which he was sawing up into small pieces for making the backs of cheap brushes. Members of the Forest Service, investigating methods of eliminating factory waste, conceived the idea that the blocks used by the brush factory could be readily secured from the waste of the school desk manufacturer, and on this basis an arrangement of mutual benefit was soon concluded. Arrangements were made so that the brush manufacturer now places orders with the other firm for its raw material and what was formerly waste is now a source of profit.

WOUNDED IN BATTLE

Bullets Mostly Strike Heads and Hands in Modern Fighting

Dr. O. Laurent, a surgeon who served as a volunteer during the Balkan War, rendered to the French Academy of Medicine a very interesting and instructive report concerning casualties in battle.

His statistics show that, in modern warfare, 82 to 84 per cent. of the wounds inflicted are caused by bullets, 15 to 17 per cent. by shrapnel, and 1 per cent, by cold steel. The penetrative force of shrapnel bullets is, he declares, very much less than that of rifle bullets—at all events, when the shrapnel bursts at some distance from the soldier; for, whereas shrapnel is often found embedded in clothing, rifle bullets never are. On the other hand, complications arise very much more frequently from shrapnel wounds than from rifle bullet wounds.

Dr. Laurent has observed that nowadays, since the soldier usually fires under cover, lying either prone or in a trench, a large majority of wounds are received in the skull and the hands, especially the left hand.

To combat this, he suggests the use of a light, resistant shield to protect the head, and that another shield should be fixed to the left hand or the rifle itself. A third might be placed in the region of the heart. Indeed, many British soldiers who fought in the Boer War owe their lives to the chance presence of a cigarette case or wad of papers in the left breast pocket.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

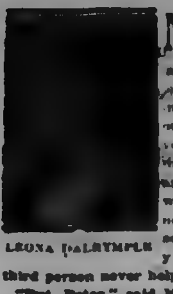
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest

No. 100.

Mother Love vs. Idolatry.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

"MARY," I said gently, after we had at last smoothed away our misunderstanding, "there is just one thing I wish you would do for me. When things are going wrong with us, and you're not sure of yourself, don't run to your mother! A third person never helps things along."

"But, Peter," said Mary, "I—I was so used to going to mother with everything that I—I can't stop it all at once."

"Everything," I insisted, "is a matter of viewpoint. And when you add to a tense situation the viewpoint of some one who—er—is apt to be swayed by emotion and sentiment alone—some one who merely gets the facts second-hand—why—er. Well, to tell you the truth, Mary, I simply don't want you to run to your mother with all our domestic mishaps, and there's an end to it!"

Mary bit her lip.

"Peter," she said very slowly, "every single thing that you're not sure about you talk over with your mother, don't you?"

I do. But how am I to explain the difference to Mary? Mother and I talk things over on a basis of absolute equality. Mrs. Penfield doesn't. She simply dominates Mary. There are some women who never can believe that a child has at last grown up. Mrs. Penfield is one of them. She thinks ahead for Mary just as she did when Mary was a youngster, with the result that her daughter grows more and more dependent upon her and runs to her for everything. Mary was never taught to think for herself.

My experience with mother was very different. Even now I can hear her saying "Little son, just go over there in the big chair and think that out for yourself. Then come tell mother and we'll talk it over."

So there is a difference. Mother and I balance pros and cons. Mary's mother merely says: "Mary, it's this way. I'm your mother and I ought to know!" and Mary, mother-bound as she always will be, hears and believes.

Mrs. Penfield, I know, selected most of the furniture for our apartment. There are times when she selects the food. She still goes with Mary on shopping expeditions and selects her clothes.

What chance has Mary to develop independence of thought?

"Why can't you pick out your own table linen?" I asked one night.

"Well," said Mary, "I—I'm never sure about patterns. I think I like one and then I don't, and if mother's there with me she just says: 'Why, that's the prettier of the two, Mary,' and I take it. It saves me a great deal of trouble. Everybody likes somebody else's opinion, don't you think so?"

"Maybe," I conceded. "But it makes you have a lazy mind. Surely your mother ought to realize that it isn't justice to you to make you so—so dependent on her for everything—advice, clothes, how to run your house. It's merely pandering to her sense of—of indispensability. She was necessary to your existence so long that she can't bear the thought of your getting along without her. And you ought to."

"Peter!" said Mary indignantly, "you don't seem to realize that it's because mother cares so much for me that she takes all the trouble she does. And when she scolds about you or—or takes my side of things, it's natural, isn't it?"

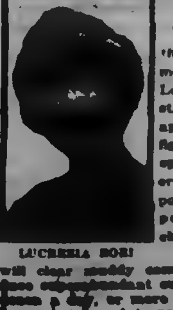
"Natural," I owned, "but trying."

Maternal love is a beautiful thing, but after all there is a maternal idolatry that is ludicrous in the extreme. A big, strong, fine maternal love must have as its basis clear vision, a sense of values and common sense. A maternal affection induced merely by sentimentality and emotion isn't big—it's sickly. It's the sort that makes spoiled youngsters and fool men and women. After all, it takes a woman of big calibre to be a big mother. Mrs. Penfield wasn't up to the job.

BEAUTY FOUND IN FRUIT

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.



LUCREZIA BORI

THE flowers of the field and the fruits of the earth shall make you beautiful. Lemons, oranges, strawberries, pineapples, apricots, figs, watermelons, spinach, cucumbers, lettuce, roses, pond lilies—all hold potent beauty charms.

A diet of oranges will clear muddy complexions and reduce superabundant curves. Eat half a dozen a day, or more if you like them. Lemons taken internally quench thirst and prevent the bad habit of over-indulgence of ice water, clear the skin, assist digestion and have a tendency to rid one of obesity. Applied externally they are a bleach which removes stains from fingers or neck, freckles from arms or cheeks, and other sallow blemishes.

Strawberries are as good for a complexion restorer as for a shortcake. For a few nights rub two or three over the face and neck when retiring and see the annoying spots flee before the treatment.

Our French sisters make a strawberry rouge which they esteem highly. First they place three quarts of strawberries in a glass jar with a pint of distilled water and boil it over a slow fire for three hours, placing it in a porcelain pan of water, much as one would if the contents were to be preserved. Then, when the fruit is reduced to a pulp and all the juice is extracted, they strain it through very fine cheese cloth. It should be left to stand, and, if it is not clear, may be again strained. Then 25 grains of Russian isinglass is dissolved in 10 ounces of the finest grade alcohol, and with 10 grains of carmine is added to the strawberries. This is best kept in the ice box, and should be applied with absorbent cotton. However, if you live right you won't need the rouge.

Pineapples will sweeten the voice, restore its quality if it has grown husky, and aid digestion, which means they will beautify the complexion. Apricots are used for the same purpose, and are favored by the Orientals.

Watermelon water has a whitening effect if used on the hands and face, and will fade freckles if applied persistently.

Figs act on the liver.

Spinach is the most valuable of all the green vegetables. It has a large proportion of iron, and is a cleanser and blood purifier.

I have given so many rules for cucumber and lettuce lotions that you must all know them, but if you don't wish to make cosmetics, take a slice of cucumber and wash the face and neck with it, renewing the slice frequently, and see what a delightfully cooling, softening and whitening effect it has. As for lettuce, eat it as often as you can. It is good for the blood and excellent for the nerves.

Flowers form the basis for some of the most fascinating and time-honored beauty lotions known to "beautifiers."

One can imagine Cleopatra sending her slaves to the Nile for lily bulbs from which pond lily paste is made. It is too complicated a process to make it after the old recipes, but we have modern substitutes for it.

Iris cream is made by extracting the juice from the fragrant blossoms and the white portion of the stems, by pouring boiling water over them, pounding the flowers to a pulp, straining through a cloth and adding two ounces of the juice to four ounces of almond oil, one ounce of spermaceti, and an ounce of white wax.

Rose petals scattered through one's linen or laces give delightful perfume.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going—with a young man for a year and a half and we have been engaged to be married for eight months. Sometimes I think I truly love him, and other times I feel as if I do not care what happens, and the only thing that I can account for is this: No matter what subject we talk about he always imagines he knows it all, and he generally talks and talks until I get weary. Do you think that he can be cured of it, or is it a habit he will always have? He is 24 years of age. BETTY.

I DON'T believe you're in love with him, Betty. I don't believe you're in love with him at all.

If you were, you'd think he did "know it all," and you'd love to have him tell you about it. Of course, you'd wake up some time and find out the truth, and that wouldn't be pleasant, would it? So you might as well be thankful that your eyes are open.

You seem to be rather an intelligent sort of girl, and don't you know, dear little sister, that a man who "knows it all" will never stay in love with a girl like you very long? He doesn't want a companion, he wants an audience.

Now, if you were a nice, comfy, cuddly, little girl, with a love of embroidery and a fad for making fudge, you'd be just the sort of person to make just that sort of man perfectly happy, and you would be perfectly happy with him. You wouldn't have to read or think at all. You could find out all about the news of the day—from him. He'd tell you what was happening in Mexico, and why it happened, and who ought to be ashamed of themselves about it.

Cured? Why, you poor child, you can't cure a man of any habit by marrying him. Either take him as he is and love him so, or let him go and find some one who doesn't have to have so much making over to fit him to your idea of comfort.

DRESS TO SHOW INDIVID'UALITY

Olga Petrova

Dancer Tells Secret of Her "Mystery Clothes"

By ELEANOR AMES

MYSTERY clothes—gowns that set beholders thinking—gowns that repress instead of express moods and emotions and characteristics and ideas—these are the successful dress creations, according to the fascinating Russian, the theatrical sensation of the year, Olga Petrova.

Of course, the flippant-minded will say there is always a mystery about woman's clothes to every other woman—the mystery of why she gets what she does, or how she gets all she wears. But it is no such petty, sordid mystery to which the graceful and exotic Petrova refers.

She means the clothes which give every evidence of being simply surcharged with meaning—and let the world wonder what the meaning is.

Such a gown was the blue and rose and green and gold shimmering one-piece robe which draped the sinuous curves of the lovely lady from the Czar's domain when I called on her.

It was a veritable chameleon of a gown. Once I thought I had its secret. It trailed like flame over the black velvet carpet and curled itself about her feet, but just as I started to define it Petrova moved. It was not a flame at all. It was a wave of the sea, the blue-green sea after a storm, with the setting sun slanting across its crest. Another move and the sea had vanished, and in its place was a bit of dawn sky with the sun just peeping up into the rosy east. Then I gave it up, for it suddenly changed to a plain blue dress.

Mlle. Petrova made it herself. She makes all her clothes. And—they "cost such a little bit," she confided in me. "I can save much money making my own clothes. Besides, who knows so well what I want to wear as I, myself?"

"All clothes should have a meaning," she continued in a voice like honey, soft and mellow and liquid. "They should have a meaning, but it should not be noisy. No, no, rather it should be mysterious. Mystery fascinates. It is woman's duty to be fascinating. The obvious woman may have a useful place in the world, but she does not make men think and wonder and worry. Moods are woman's right, moods that change, that chase one another all the time, that never let themselves be quite understood. The moment we thoroughly understand anything it becomes less alluring, is it not so? It is the mystery that holds. Repression may count more than expression. Silence is often more eloquent than words. Repose more effective at times than gesture. We rise to a height of fury, or passion, or joy. But—isn't the calm which follows just as full of meaning?

"That is what I mean by 'mystery clothes.' Clothes which arouse admiration, envy if you wish, that fit the wearer, her body, her style, her nature, clothes that make you sure they have a story to tell, a message to give—and make you find the message out for yourself.

"Always make your gowns with long, graceful lines and of the finest materials. If you get materials fine enough, wonderful enough, you will not need trimming. They will be sufficient in their own richness.

"Lace, jewels, they are all the trimmings I wear. My gowns are always in fashion—for defiance of fashion is not mysterious—but they do not follow the lines of fashion when you try to analyse them.

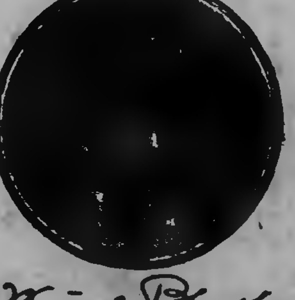
"The lines of fashion are not my lines. If they are yours, it is for you to follow them. The woman who is wise will suit her clothes to herself. Then they will always be in the fashion.

"Women are first of all individuals. Then they must be distinctive. When we copy we must have the cleverness to adapt so the copy is not apparent. Originality is more often than not skilful adaptation."

Near-Bohemia and the False Gods

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

SEE no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil. There they are up over the great, clear window—the three, fetid, foolish, vacuous monkeys from the fetid, foolish, vacuous civilization that invented them.

I'm tired of them—the three, silly, inane, insincere, stupid, boresome things. You can't move without seeing them. Every cheap little shop in town has a group of them in the showcase. Every near-Bohemian that you know puts them up on the mantelpiece, with the cigarette paper and the tobacco; and all the shady women, who are one thing and try to pretend to be another, set these three idiotic symbols of an idiotic creed upon their dressing tables—and are, in their own hearts, justified.

And now there they sit above my own broad, clear window, leering at me like the raven in the heart-shaking poem we used to speak on Friday afternoon, when Lochiel gave his warning and we heard of Bingen on the Rhine. Who put them there, I wonder? Some friend wanted to give me a pleasant surprise I suppose. It's a surprise sure enough. But pleasant—ugh!

Come down from the shelf, Mr. Monkey, you and your brethren. I don't believe in you for a minute.

See no evil—why not, pray? My eyes were given me for sight—not for blindfolding. If there is evil around me I see it, I hope—and I want to see it.

More than that, I want to know it for what it is when I do see it.

I don't want to call it by some other name and deceive myself and every one else about it. A snake is a snake, and you can call him a turtle dove as long as you like—he will still be a snake. And if he's there I want to see him, thank you, in time to get out of his way.

Hear no evil—why not, in the name of common sense? If evil speaks, how can I help but hear? And if I do not hear when evil speaks, how shall I know the voice of evil, and when to flee from it?

Speak no evil—why not? If a man's a thief, why shouldn't I know it, and if I know it, why shouldn't I say so? I always distrust the man who is so willing to throw the mantle of his charity over every scoundrel. It always seems to me as if he were looking for a little corner of that mantle for himself.

Blind—deaf—and dumb—what these lovely companions for a trip through the world. I'm glad you came from across the sea, and not from this country, oh, symbols of a strange and dying cult.

"Faith, Hope and Charity"—where is the old-fashioned copy of that old-fashioned picture? Up in the garret, I suppose, with "Pharaoh's Horses" and "Wide Awake and Fast Asleep" and "Washington Crossing the Delaware." Well, I'm going right straight up to the attic and find the old picture and bring it down, and hang it where I can see it every time I turn in that direction.

Out you go—deaf, dumb and blind! Into the fire with you now, once and for all. I hate you and all the evasions and the trickery and the subtle self-deceit that you stand for.

Here comes my friend, the near-Bohemian—she'll be horrified.

There, take them, child, if you want them, and set them up on your queer little mantel in your queer little, smelly studio. You have a copy of the Mona Lisa there; of course, no studio of your kind is complete without that these days. Is that where you got that strange imitation of the smile you wear since you turned near-Bohemian? Put them in your studio with the Russian samovar and the vestments from somewhere, alongside somebody's prayer beads from India, and the nudes—why, you couldn't live without the nudes, could you, dear child? You don't understand them in the least, but you have got so now you don't blush when you look at them—and that's something, isn't it?

And the steins and the cigarette ashes and the little red satin mask and the old gloves—and the letter from your mother at home half read and thrust back into its discouraged little envelope; and the picture of the real man, back there in the real town, whose heart aches whenever he thinks of you smoking cigarettes with one of the imitations, who is trying to take you away from him because he's so primitive and impossible.

Why, he wants to degrade you by shutting you up in a nice, clean, fresh little home with a nice, green garden at the back of it and a vine over the porch, with Love singing in the kitchen and Trust stirring the fire and Peace at work in the sunny window as if she lived there. Oh, yes, that's where they belong—all those queer things—right up in your "studio," dear, foolish, wild-hearted, light-brained, little near-Bohemian. Take them and be happy—near-happy, I mean—in your near-Bohemia.

Some day you'll wake up out of your confused dream. I hope he'll be down at the foot of the stairs, waiting for you, when you run out of your near-studio—the real man with the real home in his heart for you.

If he is, whisper—I'll get you a really good copy of the old-fashioned picture I'm going to hang today.

"Faith, Hope and Charity"—and you'll never think of the three miserable blind, deaf and dumb monkeys again as long as you live.

Is it a bargain?

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Is "Mind Over Matter" a Truth or a Fallacy?

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

VIRGIL in the Aeniel, some thousands of years ago, was even then very late when he averred "Mens agitat molem," or "Thought moves material things." Perhaps when the first ape-like man thought to use the spark which flashed from flint he was led to say what Virgil said hundreds of thousands of years later.

So be it! Peace to his ashes! But because thoughts direct, guide, move and manipulate matter is no proof of the exaggerated dictum, "mind over matter." The unvarnished truth is that thoughts are the upshot of outside matter.

Nevertheless, the stern fact stares us in the face that effects, once produced, are prone to react and influence in a powerful way, the very causes which brought them forth.

It comes, therefore, to pass that thoughts—wrongly dubbed "mind"—do, in a manner, affect the sterner stuff.

Love, Hope and Joy, fair Pleasure's smiling train,
Hate, Fear and Grief, the family of pain,
These mixed with art, and to due bounds confined,
Make and maintain the balance of the mind.

Even in the most quackish cults and in the most defective jumble of philosophical pot-pourris, there is usually a mote of truth. In transcendental propagandas and humbugs of current prevalence there is, forsooth, a speck of possible fact.

Proofs in Error?

This is not a sop to the gullible, but an honest testimonial in undogmatic freedom. Yet the difficulty with these medical Baals and physiological gold calves is that the devotees and adherents maintain that their particular "mind" or "matter" cure is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

The futility of thoughts, or religion, as exclusive "cures" of pneumonia, hydrophobia, tuberculosis, the hookworm, correctly diagnosed cancers, and dandruff would seem to be too self-evident for dispute. Yet the votaries of each separate and distinct pathy, mind cure and thought treatment will fight like trapped rats under the belief that "absent treatment" or laying on of thoughts rids the body of such maladies.

Citation of such facts as this, to wit, that blood will flow faster or the nerves will tingle more if you, like a hen on an egg, "set your mind" upon such parts of the flesh, are conjured up to prove the "mind over matter" fallacy.

The experience is correct, but the superficial and rash explanation is in error. It is only in part, just as death from joy or fright are but, indirectly, the consequence of thoughts and feelings.

Even when your appetite and your physiological functions of indigestion, heart action and mental initiative are influenced favorably by cheerfulness, though your social position, your commercial success and your conquests are aided and abetted by good humor and good cheer, all in the final analysis, can be traced to some chemical bounding like a gazelle over the rocks and crags of your blood stream.

What Sensations Are.

The physical basis of the emotions, like Huxley's physical basis of life, is the juice of the tissues, of the bone marrow, of the near-kidneys, thyroid gland, para-thyroids, and the other human glands that bear even more forbidding names. These are easily proved guilty of many so-called thoughts, feelings and the much maligned "mind."

All you need do is to purchase some of the dried extracts at a pharmacy and swallow them for a few days to grow angry, joyous, depressed, excited, apathetic, sympathetic or otherwise. They prove beyond a doubt the sure effects of matter over mind.

The Good Night Story

The Magic Rape Seed—By VERNON MERRY.

LONG ago, when magic still was common on the earth, a poor farmer who was ploughing went to sleep under a tree, and when he woke up the horns upon his oxen's head had grown to great size. He did not know what to do about it because he could not get the oxen through the stable door, so when a butcher came along and offered to buy them he was glad to make a bargain.

The butcher agreed to pay for the oxen $1 for every rape seed that the farmer brought to his town shop the next day. The farmer knew this to be a good bargain, so he gave the oxen to the butcher, and, early the next morning, filled a quart measure with rape seed and started out to town. You may be sure that he took good care not to spill one seed out of that measure.

And yet, with all his care, he did lose a seed. He did not know this until after the butcher had paid him $1 for every seed he had brought, and he was on his way home. Then he knew he had lost a seed, for there was a great tree growing right in the middle of the road where he had passed.

Now the tree was so tall that its branches reached way up into the skies and the farmer seeing this was curious to know what was to be seen away up there. So he climbed up that tree right to the top and peeped into heaven.

All his life he had thought his lot a hard one because he had to work in the field, but what he saw made him feel better satisfied with his life. Strange folk were reaping grain in peculiar looking cloud fields.

Suddenly he felt the tree tremble. He clutched the top branch and peered down to the earth. There he saw that hundreds of men were chopping at the tree to clear the roadway.

The poor farmer did not know what to do. He feared that if he fell that long way to earth he would die. Once more he looked into the fields of clouds, and close at his hand he found a flail and an axe. Beside them was a long ball of binding twine. Grasping them in his trembling hand he let himself down by the cord, but it was not long enough and he fell.

When he came to himself he found that he was down in a deep hole made by the crash of his fall. It was mighty lucky that he had the axe, for he had to cut steps in the side of the earth to climb out into the daylight again.

He took very good care to take the flail and that axe up to earth with him, so that when he told his story he would have them to prove that he told the truth.

An Open Confession.

He—I made a fool of myself over you.

She—That is one thing I admire about you. You never try to appear different than you are.

BETTER FEELING IN THE TRADE

That the feeling in the trade is very much more assured than it was four weeks ago is the opinion of Mr. R. D. Fairbairn, president of R.D. Fairbairn Company, Limited manufacturers of ladies' outer garments and fancy dry goods.

Mr. Fairbairn believes the manufacturers of Canada as a class have largely in their own hands the matter of whether there will be good business for Canadian factories. "The business is there," said Mr. Fairbairn, "if the manufacturers will only get after it. The depression in trade which was in force before the war has certainly not increased since the war began; and, on the whole, manufacturers can be assured of good business, provided they do two things—advertise and push the selling department to the limit."

Referring to his own business, Mr. Fairbairn said he did not anticipate cutting down one hour of labor or dismissing one employe or reducing wages as a result of the war. On the contrary, the present staff of upwards of 200 is being slightly increased. This continued activity is not due to any removal of competition, but to the continued demand throughout the country.

"We are absolutely confident," said Mr. Fairbairn, "that with the business to be done at home there is absolutely no excuse for any manufacturer of garments curtailing his output. People have to be clothed; our farmers are getting big money for their produce and the $400,000,000 represented by our export business for this year must be circulated. The general trade of the country must of necessity not only hold its own, but advance."

TEXTILE FACTORIES WORKING OVERTIME

The war has put new vim into the three textile factories at Renfrew, Ont.

Logans, Limited, a 60-year-old concern, which had been closed down for two or three weeks prior to the breaking out of hostilities, is now being operated at full capacity day and night.

The Renfrew Knitting Company, where only a small portion of the staff had been employed for some time before the war began, is also running at full capacity, and with as much overtime as its eighty employes can stand.

In the plant of the Renfrew Textile Company also a temporary shutting down has been replaced by the employment of a full staff and considerable overtime.

While it is true that each of these three factories secured a share of the Dominion Government's textile order the increased activities are largely due to increased orders from regular customers. All these factories report a considerable improvement in this direction since the breaking out of hostilities.

Citizen Soldiers

Let those who have refused to do their militia training in their youth do it now. In Toronto men fifty and sixty years of age are joining rifle associations. This may satisfy their conscience for having refused to be patriotic earlier, but it is a mere waste of time. They would be better employed attending the business, which needs all the attention it can get just now. But all the men under forty-five who have not served in the militia should be enrolled and trained. A lot of them would be useless, but it would establish the principle that every man should know the elements of drilling and shooting. That principle has enabled Australia and Switzerland to do without regular soldiers and yet always have an army ready for the field.

Canada should have universal training and have it at once. Then every young man between 18 and 26 will be trained for two weeks every year. In a short time every citizen of 26 and over would have served his eight years in the militia. This voluntary service, where a man drills if he likes or pokes fun at the militia if he prefers, is blankety blank nonsense.—Canadian Courier.

Britain's Tremendous Power

The first impression made by the news from London that the British army is to be increased by an additional half million men is that the British government anticipates a long war and wishes to be prepared fo every eventuality. On the other hand it is just as reasonable to suppose that in bringing the army up to the unprecedented strength of 1,400,000 men the government wishes, by striking hard, to bring the war to a speedy conclusion.

In either event the unanimous action of the British Parliament, in adopting the proposals shows what the spirit of England is and how determined her government and people are to put the whole strength of the empire into the scale. We are reminded by the preparations of Great Britain to vanquish the enemy of the refrain so popular in England thirty or forty years ago, when Disraeli was threatening Russia with the power of England:

"We've got the men,
We've got the ships,
And we've got the money, too."

In his speech Mr. Asquith gave some figures of the number of troops already enlisted for the war which will probably astonish the Germans, who believed that patriotism was dead in England. He stated that 439,000 men, exclusive of the territorials, had joined the army since the declaration of war. On one day, he said, 33,240 men had been enlisted. It seems that Berlin has been fed by the official German press bureau with the lying statement that in a British city of 700,000 population, only 100 men had volunteered.

Cure Children's Colds By External Treatment

Mothers Will Find Nothing So Speedily and Reliable as Old-Time "Nerviline"

It's really a shame to upset a young child's stomach by internal dosing, when external treatment will so promptly break up a cold.

When your boy comes in after play with his feet soaking wet, his throat hoarse and sore, his little chest tight and congested, just apply Nerviline. Give him a vigorous rubbing over his throat, and put lots of Nerviline on his chest and rub it right in. To make Nerviline penetrate more quickly cover his chest and throat with a hot flannel bandage. This treatment WON'T fail. Your boy will be feeling better in half an hour, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have warded off perhaps a cold, or grippe, or illness that might have laid him up.

Nerviline is mighty good for preventing colds and for breaking up a bad one, too. For general family use it cures all sorts of external aches and pains—you simply can't beat it. Try it for earache, toothache, neuralgia, sciatica, lame back, rheumatism, or lumbago. Wherever there is congestion, inflammation or pain in the joints or muscles, Nerviline will cure mighty quick. The large 50c. family size bottle is so economical, so useful, it should be in every home. There is also a small 25c. size. Dealers anywhere sell Nerviline.

The North Sea Incident

The disaster in the North Sea is an incident of small matter so far as the vessels lost are concerned, although the loss of life is to be deplored. The vessels were of an out-of-date class, and their use in the duty assigned them shows that the British admiral expected the enemy to resort to submarine attacks. However Admiral Jellico must not allow such an incident to occur too often. Britain has hundreds of millions invested in her navy, and for the past hundred years or more her officers have had nothing else to do but keep the fleets in training and study out such propositions as are now facing them. All the world knew the situation of Germany's naval base, all the world knew of the use mines and submarines could be put to, and all the British Empire expected our naval leaders to have studied out such passable situations, and to have formulated plans of campaign to meet vessels; altogether Britain has a navy has always been an active unit for defence and aggression. In the North Sea there is a fleet of upwards of 200 vessels; altogether Britain has navy of over 700 vessels; all of which are manned by men who want and know how to fight in Britain's interests. But they won't stand for being picked off vessel by vessel by an unseen enemy, without counter attacks. Our submarines outnumber Germany's submarines nearly three to one, and their use is expected if submarine tactics are to be the enemy's exclusiv means of aggression. The admiralty, however, does not take kindly to the use of submarines and mines, preferring the more honourable open and above-board warfare. Yet, if Germany imagines she can keep her proud (?) fleet idle within a protected base throughout the war, relying upon the use of submarines and mines only, the British navy will most likely force her retention in that base by mining the sea contingent to the Kiel canal, and thus protecting her cruisers against the possibility of submarine attacks from that quarter, while the British fleet is at liberty to divide and attack, may be by way of the Baltic. The Empire may rest assured that the German navy will in the near future be dealt an object lesson by the mistress of the seas, and one from which it will not readily recover.

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares ?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000 ; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report :

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time ; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

RANCH MANAGER—ARTHUR McKINNON

General Contractor, Rollo Bay, P. E. I.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300.000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old; proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15.000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalise your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Temper Of Russian People Is Serious, Exalted, Religious

A feature of the world struggle is the serious and exalted temper of the Russian people—an utter contrast to the indifference or aversion with which they regarded the war with Japan. That was an adventure into which the government blundered in carrying out a policy in which the people took no interest; this is a fight of the people. The wonderful scene at Moscow at the opening of hostilities showed that the most religious people in Europe entered upon the war as upon an act of religion. After the war had been in progress about three weeks the well-informed Petrograd correspondent of the London Morning Post made some striking remarks:—

Y Wave of Sobriety.

The term during which all the drink shops of every class in Russia were closed under mobilization orders expires a week to-day. The extraordinary sobriety witnessed throughout this period inspires reformers with the hopes that the people may be brought to realise its advantages. It must be understood that this sobriety is less due to the mere closing of the drink shops, which has always been done before without materially affecting drunkenness, that to the sudden consciousness of the people themselves that in the face of a great national crisis the sacrifice is just and right. Upon this consciousness the reformers build, and the Government proposes to extend the absolute prohibition of the sale of alcohol for another month. The new police orders forbid the serving of drink even in restaurants except as an accompaniment to food, and absolutely prohibits its sale in bottles for taking away or the supply of persons who have had enough already. All places trading in alcohol in any form are shut and sealed, and new supplies can be got only on the production of a police certificate.

The enormous revenue from the drink monopoly, which amounted in 1913 to $400,000,000, is by far the largest item in the Russian Budget, but it is recognized that even its total sacrifice would be rapidly compensated by the increased earning power of the whole nation. The police report that in St. Petersburg nearly two million inhabitants have appealwhen sobered. During the prohibition a striking argument in favour of its continuance. There have been no cases of hooliganism, knifing, robbery with violence, and only a dozen ordinary thefts. During the whole period only eight cases of drunkenness have been detained. The hospitals alone usually have several score of cases of delirium tremens, while the ordinary cases of drunkenness are beyond estimation, as they are merely flung into the cells and released when sober. During the prohibition there have been only five cases in the Hospital of the Incurables, who made themselves mad by drinking menthylated spirits, furniture polish, and such like.

Canadian Factory Bidding For Germany's Foreign Trade

One of the smaller manufacturing concerns of Canada—R. E. Thorne & Co., of Montreal and Valleyfield—has adopted an aggressive policy in view of present industrial conditions that might well be emulated by other and larger Canadian manufacturing industries.

This company operates the Canadian Bronze Powder Works, which supply most of the Canadian consumption of bronze powders, gold paints, and bronze liquids, as well as a portion of the demand for these articles in the United Kingdom. Germany has been the principal competitor of this company both in Canada and in the United Kingdom, and the company is making strenuous efforts to secure the trade in both countries that was Germany's. While one member of the firm remains in Canada to direct those efforts in this country, the other member is now on the Atlantic, en route to Great Britain, to take charge of an aggressive campaign there. In the meantime, in order to cope with the increased orders that are already coming in, double shifts are being employed in the company's plant at Valleyfield. If the expectations of the company regarding the extension of its business in the United Kingdom are realised further increases in its staff will be made.

Interviewed just before sailing for Great Britain, Mr. R. E. Thorne said:

"We have many enquiries from all parts of Great Britain for our products, and we expect that our business will be very much increased on this account. We are making arrangements, should this business warrant it, to increase our factory, and we expect to retain a good share of this trade."

This young Canadian industry has set some of its elders a good example in the matter of ensuring a supply of raw materials also. Until a few years ago the Canadian Bronze Powder Works was dependent upon Europe for most of its raw materials. The efforts of the company were directed to the securing of this raw material in Canada. As a result, much of it is now being made in the company's plant at Valleyfield, and practically all raw material required is produced in Canada. Thus this Canadian industry is practically self-contained, which is a matter of great advantage under present conditions.

German Count Is Horrified By The Kaiser's Tyranny

[illegible]

Will it not surprise you that I, a German born, and a lover of the central Europe civilization, am a dissenter to the mad enterprise commanded by the present tyrant of Germany?

This despotic man gives to himself the air of a militarist, but to him his soldiers are only so many tons of flesh, which he exposes to the enemies' cannon to shield his own pathway to the victorious result he seeks. German soldiers do not know why they go to fight. They know only they are fed with horse flesh.

For a long time a mask has covered the real character of this vampire from the view of his own people and those in foreign countries. In Germany he connived to make friends in all classes, especially in the low and immoral classes. His protections have been extended to such objectionable persons, which if I were to mention them here he would cause the Angel of Honesty to cover his face.

I remember this Kaiser in Naples when, at the side of the proud King Humbert, he glanced with his oblique eyes and greedy expression at the evolutions of the splendid Italian fleet. I well remember his manner on that occasion, this pseudo-hero. While the King of Italy was keeping a sober, correct and dignified composure, this killer of children and harmless citizens was continually busy in moving his sabre, fidgety in all directions and longing to possess that navy as his own.

The result of that trip to Italy was the intrigue with Austria by which Italy became an ally, with all to lose and nothing to gain. Why was Italy tricked into this alliance? Because the Kaiser wanted the strong Italian fleet and the powerful Italian armies. Italy awoke to find herself the ally of her old oppressors. The Austrians, and bound to one day aid this German juggernaut in his massacres in Belgium, France, and even in England—Massacres which could have been averted, together with the commercial disasters that have resulted, by the civilized nations on this and the other side of the Atlantic. Happily, Italy has slipped away from that alliance.

By declaring themselves for the cause of justice the civilised nations would have paralyzed this evil. The Kaiser would have been compelled to think better of the business and go home. However this war ends he has irreparably ruined his country. Our Germany will become the worst, the poorest, the most abject place of the world, with no hope of sympathy, thanks to the great Kaiser.

But a great majority of well thinking Germans, including myself, think that to save Germany and other peopl from further ruin it is urgent to create a German Republic, with the annihilation of the hateful military party, in which the majority are worthy only of the titles of outlaws or inhuman monsters.

The German Republic may expect support from the best Governments where their flags stand for humanity, not stupid ambitions and cruelties.

The German people are good if well guided. Away with the barbaric militarism and Europe will be liberated from a horrible nest of reptiles. The republic, if there is need, will have soldiers proud but generous, and educated above all not to employ false truce flags, nor to shield themselves from their enemies with children and women.

The exclusion and banishment of the Hohenzollerns by the republic will purify the conscience of the Germans, stained by the sorrows they were induced to inflict.

I am leaving my country horrified by the barbarism inflicted upon humanity by this ruler. I must rest my brain. I will return to Germany when governed by a republic. But I will work for it.

Count Erik Vanbergen.

P. S.—I have managed to translate this in Amsterdam into English. I will post it in a town where I will be sure it reaches you. I beg you, sir, to publish it in your well-credited journal. You will do it for the justice and for the right of the people of Germany, and for humanity. Accept my hearty, anticipated thanks. E. V.

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). of a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

TOWN CHANGED NAME

Benefactor of Old Quebec Municipality Honored After Years

To travellers between Montreal and Levis, Stanfold has been for half a century a well known point on the Grand Trunk railway, being almost midway between Quebec and Richmond. Clustering around the station there grew up a thriving community of nearly 3,000 people. But while the station has been called Stanfold since the line was built, and the Post Office has also been known as Stanfold, the township took the name of Princeville, being incorporated in the list of municipalities under that title and transacting all its business under that guise. One of the first settlers in the district bore the name of Prince and by his donations of land for public purposes and other acts, did much towards the upbuilding of the township. When incorporation was sought it was decided to honor this benefactor and the municipality took the name of Princeville, although the postal and railway address was Stanfold, but in accordance with the wishes of the people in the community, the railway authorities decided to change the name of the station to Princeville.

Bearded or Shaven Face

We need not go so far back as the 18th century to find Englishmen who held that shaving was "agen God and Nature." In the 19th, James Ward, Royal Academy, in a "Defense of the beard," set forth 18 reasons for retaining it, mainly Scriptural reinforced by artistic considerations. "What would a Jupiter be without a beard? Who would countenance the idea of a shaved Christ?" As late as 1860 Theologos published a treatise entitled "Shaving; a breach of the Sabbath and a hindrance to the spread of the Gospel." One of his points was that Providence had manifestly designed the beard as a protection for the throat and chest. But what about the woman's throat?

Nowhere was there more prejudice centuries ago against beards than at Inns of the Court. The "black books" of the Inns tell us how offenders were fined for wearing beards, and sometimes were even compulsorily shaved by order of court. And the prejudice against the bearded barrister still lingers. Vice-Chancellor Bacon carried his dislike to bearded or moustached barristers so far that he always refused to hear them. Even now there are very few leading counsel with beards, and I can remember only one unshaved barrister of the greatest eminence, the late Judah Philip Benjamin, Queen's counsel—Silver-tongued Benjamin, who wore a moustache and a goatee.—London Chronicle.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

Alligator Veal

The average man, asked if he ever ate reptiles, would reply, with a shudder: "Certainly not!"

Suggest to him that it was possible that he might have tasted green turtle soup, and he would admit that, after all, there were reptiles fit to grace a table.

Dr. Livingstone wrote enthusiastically of the great African frog known as the "mattarnete." It is six inches long, tastes like chicken, and is caught during the dry season, when it can be dug out of the mud at the bottom of dried-up pools.

African natives eat many specimens of reptiles. The common green lizard, either baked or fried, is considered a dainty by most of the inland tribes. In the market of Sennaar and many other towns crocodile meat is always on sale.

A large number of travellers have compared the flesh of the crocodile and of the alligator to veal, but its peculiar, musky odor makes it unpleasant to the average white person. If the musk glands are not cut out before cooking the meat is quite uneatable. Physicians of the Middle Ages prescribed boiled crocodile meat for coughs and sciatica, crocodile blood for ophthalmia, and crocodile fat in fever.

Food For Fowls

Those who experience any difficulty in providing the necessary greenstuff for their fowls—as many do in winter—can provide an excellent substitute by sprouting barley or oats. The method is as follows. Place a layer of the grain in a shallow box and over the top, instead of the lid, place a piece of canvas, keeping it constantly moistened. Place in a warm place for a week, when the grain will swell and throw out long, succulent shoots. It is a food that is eagerly devoured, and greatly assists egg production.

QUEER HUNTING CUSTOM

Unfortunate Marksmen Well Flogged For Missing the Game

There is a curious hunting custom among the Coorgs of Southern India. When a hunt is arranged among the villagers they usually meet early in the morning at a prearranged spot with their dogs. According to the Coorg custom, they all sit down for a while. Having rested, they proceed to discuss and decide which part of the surrounding jungle they are to beat. This being decided, the hunters station themselves at points of vantage and the beaters endeavor to drive the game, if any, towards them.

If, before the hunt commences, any of the dogs lie down and rub their backs against the ground, it is considered a good omen and the hunters are sure of a "kill" in the jungle they are about to beat.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. HANDLING OF HORSES

Every man who handles horses should have the fundamental gift of common sense.

A young, highly-bred, trotting-bred mare was working on a farm for two years with an aged horse of lighter weight. The young mare fretted and fumed, always half a length ahead of the old horse. Then the man handling the team changed to open bridles. At once the young mare fell into her proper place, accommodating herself to the older horse. She could see what was going on, and seemed to realize what was expected of her. The man showed brains and responsiveness.

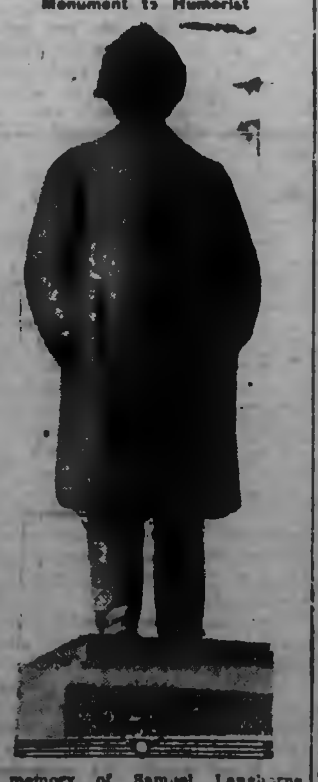
Be sure to give each horse exercise every day, in harness or yard—except, of course, during storms.

Box stalls are the ideal ones, and every stable should have several, at all events one or two. On stormy days during winter horses can be changed to these boxes and given a chance to move around.

Gait is a matter largely of breeding. Think of this before it is too late.

Lounging along in the harness is bad for any horse, young or old. It is a sure sign of a slouchy driver. Either drive or let it alone.

Monument to Humorist



In memory of Samuel Langhorne Clemens, "Mark Twain," a monument has been erected at Hannibal, Mo. The monument is so situated that it overlooks the spot on the Mississippi river made famous by the humorous activities of "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer."

Huge Sums For Racing

Statistics relative to prize money allotted by the various racing clubs at Australia show the great strides made in the Commonwealth of late years. For one racing season the prize money amounted to a grand total of $3,111,165, while the combined race clubs of Great Britain and Ireland disbursed $2,792,965, a record amount.

AN ECCENTRIC PLAYER

Recruit Catcher Had Queer Ideas and Had Trouble With Trunk

Most ball players have peculiarities of one kind or another. But it remained for a player named Evans, a former Cub catcher recruit, to have a number of them. On a spring training trip several years ago he had the boys wondering what he would do next. Evans was a confirmed pipe smoker. It was seldom out of his mouth. When the other men would be rehearsing on the ball field Evans would be sitting on the bench pulling at his pipe. One day Frank Chance, becoming irritated, ordered him to get behind the plate during batting practice.

The recruit lazily donned his shinguards and chest-protector. Then, keeping his short black pipe between his teeth, he caught for nearly fifteen minutes, puffing away in a most contented manner.

At Vicksburg, Miss., one day some of the Cubs noticed Evans dig up a little dirt near the plate, place something carefully in the hole and cover it up with exceeding care. He repeated this trick at every stop. Finally they discovered it was a signet ring. He chose this method of protecting it against loss or injury.

He also carried an old trunk along on the trip, bearing a large sign. The motto was, "Handle with care." In this he had nearly five quarts of beef, iron and wine for the purpose of building up his system. He had nearly as much dope as Trainer Semmons had for the entire team. This extract he took religiously three times a day.

One trip his trunk was badly smashed by the baggagemen and several of the bottles broken. It was exceedingly annoying but Evans insisted on lugging the affair along until Secretary Charley Williams objected.

"The railroads absolutely refuse to accept that trunk," said Williams.

So Evans had to purchase another. On this he placed a new sign. It read, "Handle with care, you smashed my last one."

GOLF HAS MANY THRILLS

Making a Hole In One Stroke Enough to Make Any Player Excited

It has been said that golf is not lively or exciting; that it presents few opportunities for either individuals or outsiders to enthuse; that it is too quiet, etc. While there are those ardent devotees of driver and cleek willing to admit that their favorite diversion is not wildly exciting; that opportunities rarely occur for partisan crowds to display their feelings, it is also claimed that golf unquestionably has its thrills.

For those having once experienced the sensation of making a hole in 1 it is needless to attempt to describe the feeling of exhilaration experienced by the lucky player as he sees his ball disappear in the cup. Many holes have been made in a single stroke that have always been more or less doubtful. Players have played over rising ground to blind greens and after searching for a considerable length of time have at last found "a ball" in the hole. On such occasions there is always an element of uncertainty.

Furthermore, jokes have been played on unsuspecting golfers, probably the most cruel one being that at the expense of a fat man and woman at a match several years ago. As a passerby stood near one of the greens of the course in question he noticed two balls, one after the other, land on the green in front of him. They had evidently come from the tee, which could not be seen from the green. Scarcely had the balls come to rest ere a couple of boys dashed from behind a clump of bushes, picked up the balls, dropped them in the hole, and scampered away as quickly as they had come. In a few moments the pair unsuspectingly came to the green and began looking for the balls. Finally the man casually beckoned his companion to see what he saw.

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "We have both holed out in one. Did you ever see anything like that?" Then they proceeded to rush to the club house to tell the wonderful tale, which undoubtedly they are still relating.

A Nautical Innovation

A novel feature of the Royal Holland Lloyd liner "Gelria" is the manner in which the name of the liner is displayed, either when passing stations or other ships or when lying in crowded harbors, says "Electricity."

The boat is fitted between the two funnels with an electric sign lantern 22 feet long by 5 feet deep, made of galvanized iron and bracing angles. The letters are fixed on both sides, and are colored red on the port side and green on the starboard, with white enamelled lettering for use in the daytime. The lettering is illuminated by lamps aggregating 3,000 candle-power.

Vean Craig, the Cleveland southpaw spends his off seasons acting as a sleuth in a Cleveland department store. The experience he has had in determining just the moment when Ty Cobb is going to steal a base makes him fairly skillful in detecting a shoplifter in the act of making off with the firm's goods.

RAINBOW POTATOES

New Variety of Tubers Boast a Vivid Color Scheme

All interested in the culinary art, will hail with delight a new potato that has been placed upon the market. Branched like a spruce tree, fluted like a shell, some specimens being as small as marbles, the new potatoes also reflect every color of the rainbow. Blue-purple potatoes with red centres, scarlet potatoes, and yellow potatoes recently flaunted their hues for the first time in public, when their propagators were awarded a gold medal at London, England. They make a welcome addition to salads, which they improve in both color and flavor.

Many people avoid the use of potatoes in the belief that they contain an excessive quantity of starch. This is a fallacy. In reality they contain less than a quarter of the quantity of starch included in bread. Potatoes can be used as the only item of diet if taken in sufficient quantities. Nevertheless, they should never be eaten alone, but consumed with other flesh forming foods, when their value is inestimable. It is the alkaline mineral salt contained in the potato that is so valuable to man, and which cannot be obtained to the same degree in any other food.

The Humble Onion

Many unsuspected virtues reside in the humble onion. To ease neuralgic or rheumatic pains there is nothing better than an onion poultice. Very few people know that. As a remedy for sleeplessness, try the effect of eating a Spanish onion before retiring. A few leaves of parsley steeped in vinegar and eaten afterwards will prevent any disagreeable taste or smell.

Scorched linen can be restored by squeezing the juice of an onion on thue marks. The smell of paint can be removed if a saucerful of sliced onion is placed in the room overnight.

For a wasp sting there is no better remedy than the juice of an onion. The onion is an excellent blood purifier, and its continued use makes the complexion peculiarly smooth.

A sliced onion placed in a sick room on a sheet of paper will absorb infectious odors. Burn, and renew daily. Flies will not disfigure gilt picture frames or mantels if the latter are washed in onion water.

Testing Cigars

A well known cigar expert dispels some popular misconceptions about the fragrant weed. He alludes to the belief that the whiter the ash and the longer it holds on, the better the cigar. This is quite wrong, he points out. The length of the ash depends on the size of the pieces used in the filler, and a clear steel-grey ash denotes the best Havana. Then, again, nearly every man will reject a spotted cigar, but the spots mean absolutely nothing as regards quality. Most men think they can tell a cigar by squeezing it or smelling. Neither test is the slightest good. And every smoker believes that color denotes strength—that a dark wrapper denotes a strong cigar, a light one a mild cigar. The color has nothing whatever to do with the strength. As a matter of fact, for the average smoker there are practically no outward indications of the quality of a cigar. The only test for the non-expert is in smoking it.

Prescription by Wireless

How a ship's doctor prescribed by wireless for the sick captain of another ship was told on the arrival of the liner "Orduna" at Liverpool. Just before the vessel entered the Straits of Magellan a wireless message was received from the British steamer "Bredstone" saying that the master was ill, and asking the doctor of the "Orduna" to prescribe for him. Dr. Aylward first asked five questions, which were put and answered in twenty minutes. The doctor then prescribed for the patient, who was at least 100 miles away.

Local Men Get Lindsay License.

The request of Messrs. Andrus and Pappas for a billiard license, which has been before the Council for some time came up again at a special meeting of the Council last night, but was again referred to the Police Committee. It will be remembered that some months ago this firm made a request for a billiard license, which was refused by the Council on the ground that the town was well supplied with billiard parlors. Since that time, however, the firm have made extensive improvements to their places of business and a number of their patrons have asked them to instal billiard tables. It is likely the license will be granted. —Lindsay Post.

DEATH OF R. E. WOOD

for a conviction strongly, but if he thought there was a doubt about it he was fair enough to admit it, and to deal with matters accordingly. I am satisfied to say that does not apply to all Crown officers. I think it does to most of them, but I feel that it does not to all of them. The loss of Mr. Wood in his public capacity will be a gap not easily filled in this city and county. It is not for us, for me or any of the rest of us, to trespass beyond, into the relationship of his family. To those who have lost a father and the sorrowing widow who has lost a husband, the touch of sorrow is so great and deep and so tender that I would fain not draw the veil aside. Speaking specially for myself alone, and all the officers of this county, I tender all sympathy to Mrs. Wood and her sons in this very sad hour."

Mr. Gordon addressed the Court also, as follows:—

"Your Honor: As I am a senior member of the Bar present in Court, many members not being present on account of being unacquainted with the fact of Mr. Wood's death, which has just only been announced to me, I feel it is incumbent on me to say a few words respecting the relations of the late Mr. Wood to the Court and to the members of the Bar of this County. During my nine or ten years stay in the city of Peterborough, I have been intimately acquainted with Mr. Wood by reason of being frequently in the Courts where he acted as a Crown officer.

"As Your Honor has said, his treatment of those accused was always fair. In every instance where there was that reasonable doubt mentioned so often in Criminal Courts and Mr. Wood was satisfied of it, he always fairly and frankly was willing to allow it and concede in consequence, the right of the accused to his liberty. Knowing him as I have for a number of years, as a fellow solicitor and neighbor, I feel very deeply indeed the loss that I have personally sustained. During my whole practice in the City of Peterborough I have heard from no one, solicitor or layman, aught but words of kindness and respect for our late fellow solicitor, and as I believe he has been in practice here since the 70's that would appear to me strikingly to speak for his many good and sterling qualities, especially as it came within his duty very frequently to set the law in motion against those who might be personally acquainted with him. It is a matter of very great regret to me that on this sad occasion we have not a greater number of our Bar present, but that is because the sad news is yet not generally known, the President of the Bar Association however informs me that he is about making arrangements for the whole Bar in the County to attend the funeral service of our late associate and to pass resolutions fitting the sad occasion to be sent the members of Mr. Wood's family."

Mr. Joseph Wearing, Mr. Wood's partner, speaking of his business and social relations with the late Crown Attorney, says: "Since entering into partnership with Mr. Wood at the beginning of the year, I have proved him to have been a man of sound legal learning, unquestionable probity, and sterling worth. In his work he was painstaking and conscientious and as a partner he was considerate and helpful. The strong character of the man was displayed throughout his sickness, for I never once heard a complaint, or saw a sign of discouragement or fear. He was without a doubt a Christian gentleman beyond reproach, and his death is a great personal loss to me, his partner."

THE WORLD'S BEST

Perfect Satisfaction in Buying a Heintzman & Co.

"Ye Olde Firme"

Player-Piano

The building of the Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano is an interesting piece of Piano history. Makers of the world's best Piano, we could not afford to put a Player-piano on the market bearing our name until we had brought the work of construction in the Player-Piano up to the same point of acknowledged and unrivalled excellence as is accorded the Heintzman & Co. Piano.

So we worked diligently through the years on this Player Piano until we could say that it was the best. And in our new model for 1914 we have further improved on the excellencies of 1913.

The Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano cannot be considered along with any other Player-Piano. It is a new and distinct creation, built along lines that are common to no other instrument.

The most outstanding feature of this Player-Piano is the aluminum action. By this means this instrument will withstand different climatic changes in a way that is not possible with the ordinary wood action. The swelling and shrinking of wood which takes place with climatic changes opens up minute passages, through which the air escapes, and if leakage of air takes place then the action immediately deteriorates.

Not only is the primary valve casing cast in one solid piece of aluminum, which ensures its being absolutely air-tight, but the secondary valve casing and chamber which conducts the air stream from the power pneumatic is also cast in one piece of aluminum.

Let it be known that the controlling of the air is the great consideration in all pneumatic Player-Pianos.

There are altogether some twenty interesting and distinctive features about this Player-Piano—all combining to make it the perfect instrument it is.

We place our unqualified warranty upon this Player-Piano, for we know it is more than a sweet-sounding instrument. It is good all through.

General French Strongly Reinforced From Ostend And Boulogne--Indian Troops Reported at Front

USSIAN TROOPS ADVANCING WIN AGAIN AND TAKE ARTILLERY

ave Seized the Fortified Positions of Crzyschky Which Which Covered Khyroff, and Other Positions in the Radymno Region. Przemysl Garrison Repulsed--No No Fighting in the German Front

The latest official communication from Paris was even more laconic an usual. It said that the battle was developing on the left wing of the ine, that there was a lull in the centre, and that the attack on the lies' right had been repulsed.

Petrograd reports that Russian troops in pursuit of the Austrians are w within one march of the River Vistula, and the city of Tarnow, which only two marches from Cracow, and connected by rail with Budapest d Vienna.

Copenhagen reports a great battle in East Prussia, the despatches de- ring also that a Russian army is marching on Breslau.

Despatches received from Nish, Servia, report a continuous advance into nia, saying also that all the efforts of the Austrians to cross the River have been checked after furious fighting.

THE RUSSIAN STATEMENT

Petrograd, Sept. 26.—An official communication from Grand Duke Nica- s, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian forces in the field, says:

"On the southwest front the Russian troops have taken possession of fortified position of Cayschky and Foulstyn, which covered Khyroff, and er positions in the Radymno region (between Jaroslau and Praemysl), ing all the enemy's artillery.

"The Praemysl garrison has evacuated Bourgade and Medyka, and has n repulsed in the eastern segment, toward the line of forts.

"There has been no fighting on the German front."

22 CHARGES IN ONE NIGHT

London, Sept. 26.—Speaking of the numerous charges made daily by the rmans near Soissons, the correspondent of The Express in France says:

"Sunday night there were no fewer than twenty-two cavalry charges un- the personal supervision of the Crown Prince. The object is to ar out the Allies, and keep them from sleep."

WHERE RUSSIANS ARE TO-DAY

London. Sept. 25.—The Petrograd correspondent of The Post says that Russians have captured Praworsk, eight miles from Jaroslau, and Lan- , twelve miles further west.

"Probably by now," the correspondent continues, "they have also tak- zow, another important strategic point, ten miles to the westward thirty miles from Jaroslau.

"The Russian pursuit of the Austro-German forces is proceeding at a id rate. By crossing the River Vialok they got within one march of the tula and the town of Tarnow, which is only a couple of marches from , and has direct connections by railway with Budapest and Vien- "

Allies Capture Liege Guns Intended For Paris Siege

London, Sept. 25.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail says that in the hurried retreat from Paris the Germans lost several of their big siege guns with which they had intended to reduce the Paris forts. Owing to the rains they were left stuck fast in the mud. French sappers have since been engaged in digging them out.

They will be brought back to the French base.

Switzerland Emulates Belgium

Rome, Sept. 25.—The Giornale d'Italia publishes a report from Basel to the effect that Switzerland has refused a request from the Germans to send three army corps across Swiss territory.

Italy to Defend Swiss

In the diplomatic field the pressure on Italy to join the cause of the Triple Entente increases daily. The Allies point out that in case of their victory Servia must be given a port on the Adriatic and the Bait of Avalona, on which port Italy long has cast hungry eyes, is being held before the Servian Government as a possible reward, particularly if Italy fails to join the Allies.

Germany is reported to have requested Switzerland's permission to send forces through that country. This was refused, and in case Germany moves forcibly to this end, Italy is said to be prepared to defend Swiss neutrality.

SIR JAMES WHITNEY PASSED AWAY SUDDENLY IN TORONTO YESTERDAY

That Ontario's Premier Was Ill Was Generally Known, But His Death Came as a Severe Shock to All, He Was Conscious Till the Last--His Life-Long Friend Dr. Pyne Was With Him at the End.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—The following was the official bulletin of the death of the Premier, given out at his house on St. George street, at 0 o'clock to-day:

"Toronto, Sept. 25,1914.

"Sir James Whitney passed away suddenly at about twelve noon to-day owing to a cerebral hemorrhage."

(Signed) H. J. Hamilton, M.D.

The first definite word of the illness which led eventually to Sir James' death was received here on January 4th, from Hon. Dr. Pyne, with whom Sir James had been spending some time in the southern states. Sir James was then moved to New York, where he lay very seriously ill till January 19th, when he was brought to the Toronto General Hospital. He was reported several times close to death's door, but on March 9th he recovered sufficiently to walk home. Then followed the strenuous days leading up to and through the Provincial general elections, when with Sir James at the leadership the Conservative party was again returned to power. Since that date, Sir James has attended his duties at the Parliament Buildings more or less, but it was frequently hinted that he was far from well. Something was said in the Toronto papers last week about the Premier being very ill again but to-day's announcement of his death came as a startling surprise to most people. Yesterday, it is said, that the attending physicians regarded Sir James' condition as quite favorable. Another severe hemorrhage this morning brought the end.

The late Premier was conscious to the last. At his bedside when death came were Lady Whitney, Miss Norah Whitney, his daughter, and his life-long friend and fellow cabinet minister, Hon. Dr. Pyne.

Cabinet Meeting Called

The Lieutenant Governor was at once notified and he called a special meeting of the Cabinet for this afternoon to consider the details of the funeral and other necessary details to be taken up at once. One feature is that on the death of the Premier there is no longer a Cabinet, though several of the members are in town. Those here are Hon. W. H. Hearst, Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon. I. B. Lucas, Hon. R. A. Pyne, Hon. R. F. Preston, and these are enough to form the government.

Praise From the Opposition

Toronto, Sept. 25.—Owing to the death of Sir James Whitney all the Osgoode Hall Courts were adjourned this afternoon. In all probability the different Courts will be closed until after the funeral of Ontario's late Premier.

Mr. N. W. Rowell is out of the city but on behalf of the Liberal Opposition, Mr. Chas. Bowman, M.P.P., said: "To me the sudden death of Sir James P. Whitney has come as a shock. Though politically opposed to each other our personal relations were of a most cordial character. Many strong and admirable qualities were in this way revealed to me, which greatly increased my respect and admiration for Sir James. He has served Ontario well as Premier, and his death will be a distinct loss to the Province. The general good of the Province was always uppermost in his mind in connection with legislation promoted by him."

OBITUARY

NORA SHEVLIN

A life-long resident of Peterborough passed away yesterday morning at 231 King street, in the person of Mrs. Nora Shevlin. The late Mrs. Shevlin was born at 229 King street, now occupied by her son, Mr. J. P. Shevlin, in 1840. She is survived by one son, above mentioned, and one sister Mrs. Margaret O'Connor. The funeral will take place at 9 o'clock on Monday morning at St. Peters Cathedral and from thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

Another British Army For Gen. French--May Be Indian Troops

Air of Great Expec ancy at War Office Last Night--Thought That Irresistible Attempt Will Now Be Made to Isolate and Destroy Von Kluks' Army, Reports Also Say That the Germany Are Planning a Retirement From Western Belgium

LONDON, Sept. 25.—IT WAS LEARNED THIS EVENING THAT ADDITIONAL BRITISH TROOPS ALREADY HAVE REACHED THE SCENE OF THE FIGHTING IN FRANCE. THEY ARE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN LANDED AT OSTEND AND BOULOGNE, AND TO BE SUPPORTED BY A NEW FRENCH ARMY SENT NORTH FROM THE MOBILIZATION CENTRE IN THE SOUTH. IT IS THIS ARMY UPON WHICH THE ALLIES ARE NOW BELIEVED TO BE DEPENDING TO COMPLETE THE ISOLATION OF THE GERMAN RIGHT AND TO ENVELOPE THE ARMIES OD GENERAL VON KLUK AND VON BOEHM.

THERE WAS AN AIR OF GREAT EXPECTANCY ABOUT THE WAR OFFICE TO-NIGHT AND A GENERAL FEELING THAT THE BEGINNING OF THE END OF THE BATTLE OF THE AISNE NOW IS IN SIGHT. WHETHER THESE FRESH TROOPS ARE THE INDIAN TROOPS, WHO WERE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SENT THROUGH THE SUEZ CANAL, IS KNOWN ONLY TO THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES. IT IS CONSIDERED HIGHLY SIGNIFICANT, HOWEVER, THAT THE DUKE OF WESTMINSTER AND THE DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH, BOTH ON THE PERSONAL STAFF OF SIR JOHN FRENCH, ARRIVED HERE TO-DAY WITH IMPORTANT DESPATCHES FOR EARL KITCHENER. IMMEDIATELY AFTER THEY ARRIVED THE SECRETARY OF WAR HELD A CONFERENCE WITH THE PREMIER.

Reports received here late this afternoon also indicate that the Germans were planning a retirement from Western Belgium. They have blown up a number of bridges west of Liege that might be of strategical value to an enemy.

VIOLENT FIGHTING ON WEST WING

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The following official communication was given out in Paris this afternoon:

First—On our left wing there has begun a general action of great violence between those detachments of our forces that are operating between the River Somme and the River Oise, and the army corps which the enemy has grouped in the region around Tergnier and St. Quentin.

These army corps have come, some from the centre of the enemy's line, and others from Lorraine and the Vosges. These last named corps were transported by rail to Cambrai, by way of Liege and Valenciennes. To the north of the River Aisne, as far as Berry-Au-Bac, there has been no change of importance.

Second—On the centre we have made progress to the East of Rheims, in the direction of Berry-Au-Bac, and Moronvilliers.

Further to the east, as far as the Argonne region, the situation shows no change. To the east of the Argonne the enemy has not been able to move out of Varennes. On the right bank of the River Meuse the enemy succeeded in getting a footing on the heights of the Meuse, in the region of the promontory of Hatton Chatell, and, forced in the direction of St. Michael, he bombarded the forts of Paroches and of Camp Des Romains. To offset this, to the south of Verdun we remain masters of the heights of the Meuse, and our troops, moving out of Toul, advanced until they reached the region of Beaumont.

Third—On our right wing, Lorraine and Vosges, we have repulsed attacks of minor importance on Nomeny. To the east of Luneville the enemy has made some demonstrations along the lines of the River Vegus and the River Blette.

PETERBORO'S YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Registration For Membership Now Open—Opening Rally October 2nd, Splendidly Equipped Institution Admirably Conducted

The Young Women's Christian Association, situated at the corner of Aylmer and Simcoe streets, is an institution affording incalculable benefit to hundreds of young women in this City, and to which the fullest measure of credit and support is due. It is undertaking a grand work in keeping with twentieth century ideals and the teachings of Christianity in offering a home to self-supporting young women and the stranger within our gates, and also in providing opportunities for culture, entertainment and education, not otherwise attainable to hundreds of Peterborough young women. The magnitude of the work of this admirable association entails the employment of two Secretaries — Miss Agnes Peacock, chief, and Miss Clara Betts, assistant—under whose capable executive administration the institution's association work is effectively meeting the demands demanded of it.

Opening Rally and Registration

The opening rally for the fall and winter term about to be started will be on the evening of October 2nd, on which occasion a vocal and instrumental entertainment will be rendered, coupled with refreshments. Miss Peacock will give a talk on "Association Work," and Misses Cameron and Denne, members of the girls' auxiliary, will report on the conference of Y. W. C. A.'s delegates at Muskoka last June. These rally nights have heretofore proven intensely interesting and appreciably entertaining, and unquestionably the coming one on October 2nd will prove no exception to the rule. The period for registration as members of the Association is now open, commencing yesterday and closing on September 30th. It is hoped that a large number will take advantage of this opportunity to affiliate themselves, and thus enhance the growth and prosperity of an institution in which the happiness and well-being of so many young women can be profitably centred.

Privileges and Departments

Membership in the Y. W. C. A. entitles one to the use of the building and library, attendance at socials, entertainments, and lectures; membership in clubs, night school classes, choral club and Bible classes. Membership in the Association is required for all classes in the physical and educational departments. The building is handsomely and comfortably furnished throughout; complete in all appointments, with a splendidly equipped gymnasium hall. Its educational department affords excellent opportunity for instruction in English subjects, mathematics, commercial course, literature, etc., with special classes for foreign business girls, and domestic art, including dressmaking.

A Junior Department, for girls under fourteen, is open Saturday's from 2 to 1.30 p.m.

The Boarding House

This department of the Y. W. C. A. is under the direction of Mrs. Barnes, whose kindly disposition and charming affability gives to the self-supporting young women under her care that sense of home-comfort and protection which, together with congenial companions, goes a long way toward making life worth living. The Boarding House will accommodate 60 persons, and offers a very acceptable and inviting home for business girls, together with desirable transient accommodation for those visiting or travelling.

The Y. W. C. A. is a local institution of which the whole community might well feel proud, and the splendid opportunities offered by it should be loyally supported and patronized.

SURVIVORS FROM NAVAL DISASTER MAY LEAVE HOLLAND

Nothing in Hague Convention to Hold Them Since Landed by Neutral Ship--Will Probably be Sent Home

London, Sept. 25.—It is announced officially from The Hague that the British survivors of the cruisers Aboukir, Creasy and Hogue, lost in the North Sea, who are at present being held by the Netherlands Government, will be released and sent home. Their interment is contrary to The Hague Convention.

Here Is Law on the Case.

In a despatch from Amsterdam the correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company says that the following semi-official statement has been received there from The Hague:

The international agreements, according to which there can be no interning of rescued British sailors, were framed at the Peace Conference of 1907. Generally, if the battle (the loss of three British cruisers in the North Sea) had been fought inside Dutch territorial waters, would the Dutch be authorized to intern the survivors? Article XV of the Red Cross Convention, prescribing interning, if neutral Powers do not otherwise agree, has reference only to sailors landed by war vessels of belligerent Powers, but not to sailors who as in this case, were landed by neutral merchant ships."

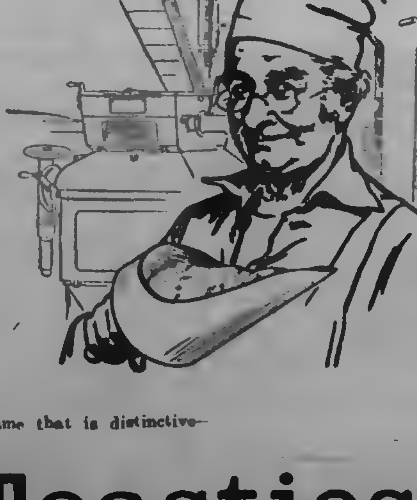
The Wise Old Miller

knows there are many grades and kinds of Corn Flakes as there are grades and kinds of flour.



To tell the best—the kind that affords the biggest money's worth and most satisfaction to the consumer—is easy for the old miller or food expert.

But the purchaser who doesn't know, must be protected. That is why the producers of the very finest Corn Flakes didn't call them "Jone's Corn Flakes" or "Smith's Corn Flakes."

These Superior Corn Flakes were given a name that is distinctive—

Post Toasties

The average housekeeper has, likely enough, tried some of the various "Corn Flakes" on the market. To the perfection of taste in toasted Indian corn—cooked, rolled and seasoned with sugar and salt just as ought to be—one should order Post Toasties.

These famous Corn Flakes have been the favorite for years among chefs and food connoisseurs. They come to eat in sealed packages with an inside Container that keeps this delicious food crisp, fresh and for the table. And the price is no higher than the cost of ordinary kinds.

Insist on your grocer supplying the Superior Corn Flakes—

THE WEALTH OF BRITAIN

A British Bluebook on the occupations of the people of England and Wales, recently issued by the Census Bureau, gives figures which indicate how large a proportion of the population is engaged in personal service ministering to the wants and whims of the rich. Female domestic servants number 1,260,673. In one borough, that of Hampstead, a suburb of London, 757 families out of every 1,000 keep one or more domestics. The other extreme is found in the industrial north. In many small Lancashire and Yorkshire towns there are less than 30 domestics per 1,000 families. The charming gardens of the well-to-do cost an enormous sum to maintain. There are no less than 118,739 gardeners employed under the classification of domestics. The result of the labors of this army is the most delightful countryside to be found in the world. A summary of the total number of persons, male and female, engaged in domestic service gives the following figures:

Male indoor service	41,765
Female indoor service.....	1,260,673
Coachmen and grooms......	67,228
Motor car drivers...........	23,151
Gardeners	118,739

The Needs of Life

DR. RICHARD C. CABOT

Work and play and love—these are the triple keys to the secret of life. This is the conclusion of Professor Cabot of Harvard in his book, "What Men Live By." "With these any life is happy, despite sorrow and pain, successful despite bitter failure," is his creed.

Freaks of Lightning

The antics played by lightning are sometimes almost beyond belief. A comparatively common trick is that of undressing its victims. In 1898 two girls and an elderly woman were standing by a reaping machine during a storm. A lightning flash struck the woman and killed her on the spot, while the two girls were stripped to the skin, even their boots being torn from their feet. Otherwise they were safe and sound—and astonished.

In 1855 a man was struck by lightning near Vallerois, in France, and stripped naked. All that could be found of his clothes was a shirt sleeve, a few other shreds, and some pieces of his hob-nailed boots. Ten minutes after he was struck he regained consciousness, opened his eyes, complained of the cold, and inquired how he happened to be naked.

Such instances have been recorded again and again. In one case a man and two oxen were struck simultaneously and all three killed. The man was found stripped to the skin, and his boots had been carried thirty yards away. "In other cases," says Camille Flammarion, the astronomer, "lightning has been known to split men in half, almost as with a huge axe. On June 20, 1868, this happened to a miller's assistant at a windmill near Croix. The lightning struck him and split him from his head downwards in two."

REV. DR. JUDSON

Dr. Edward Judson who has spent most of his life on Oriental mission fields, has found a new way to interest the heathen in religion. He is going to tell the story of the gospel on the screen. Some pictures will be used to instruct the pagan and others will inform civilized nations how the pagan lives at home.

Sheep as Warming-pans

The high temperature of birds enables them to resist cold more effectually than they could otherwise do. Whereas blood-heat in man is 98 degrees Fahr., it is 107 degrees in the domestic fowl, and more in some other birds. Nevertheless, they feel the cold very much, and display a remarkable amount of ingenuity in finding means to warm themselves. A farmer in the uplands of Lanarkshire one winter observed a number of chaffinches entering an outhouse where bullocks were stalled. He went in and found them nestling in the straw against the flanks of the reposing beasts. Birds are fond of using sheep as warming-pans, regardless of the risk attendant. Snuggling down into the long wool, they are apt to get their feet entangled, when the result may be starvation.

FORESTS AND NAVIGATION

Equality of Water Flow Dependent on Forest Cover

It has been urged that in the interests of navigation the Dominion Government should purchase such denuded forest land in the Eastern Provinces as might be necessary to reforest in order to prevent floods and the filling up of streams with sediment. In this connection the report on the Trent Watershed Survey, published by the Commission of Conservation, is of considerable interest. In this region of Ontario, as a result of fires, 150,000 acres are practically a desert and the report urges a policy of forest conservation under Dominion, provincial or municipal control, in order to preserve the usefulness of the Trent Valley canal, in which over $10,000,000 is invested. There are many such barren areas in the eastern provinces, which with the assistance of the Dominion Government might be made to produce valuable forest crops.

In Canada disastrous floods and low-water stages have been largely prevented by the timely action of the Dominion Government in setting aside as forest reserves the wooded slopes where the great rivers of the interior of the Dominion have their origin. On the east slope of the Rocky Mountains over 20,896 square miles of non-agricultural land have been thus reserved, for the double purpose of regulating the run-off and of providing a perpetual supply of timber to meet the ever-increasing needs of the prairie settlers. In the Railway Belt in British Columbia smaller reserves have also been set aside, chiefly for the purpose of maintaining a steady flow in the streams on which the fruit-growing industry is absolutely dependent.

New Head of Forest Laboratories

Mr. John S. Bates recently appointed Superintendent of the Dominion Forest Products Laboratories in connection with McGill University, was born at Woodstock, Ont., and is a graduate of Acadia University in arts and science. After leaving Acadia he went to Columbia University, New York, and graduated in chemical engineering, specializing in pulp and paper. He made a study of the utilization of Southern pine waste while at Columbia, and after the conclusion of a brilliant course there had practical experience with several big paper and chemical companies.

Strength of Hickory

Hickory is the strongest Canadian wood. When properly seasoned a hickory column will support a weight of twelve tons per square inch cross-section, which is considerably more than what could be borne by a pillar of cast iron or steel of the same length and weight.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

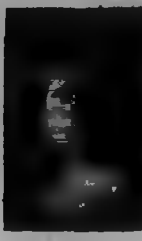
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 106

What a Card Brought.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

AN ironic sense of malice has gotten me into a peculiar mess. Having dropped my card in a trolley car so that two women who were somewhat cattishly discussing my wife might find it and have an attack of conscience, I now learn to my sorrow that it was an exceedingly unwise thing to do. It has precipitated a domestic upheaval.

My first inkling of the situation came one evening when I found Mary in tears.

"What is the trouble?" I asked. When a woman cries it really is a great conundrum to know what to do. If you ask her what the trouble is she merely cries harder—if you don't ask her she'll cry anyway, and there you are.

Accused of Flirting.

Mary's tears came considerably faster when I inquired the cause of them.

"Peter," she said, "I—I never supposed I'd married a horrid flirt. I—I never supposed you'd go around flirting with women in trolley cars—I——"

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed, aghast. "I haven't flirted with a trolley car woman or any other kind of a woman. What are you driving at?"

Mary flung back her head defiantly.

"Didn't you drop your card as you were passing some women in a trolley car Tuesday?"

The situation dawned upon me in an instant. I looked blank.

"There!" triumphed Mary, with a sob. "I—I know you did. Oh, Peter!"

A married man once told me that these things inevitably come to every married couple. I'm sorry for that, for they're mighty unpleasant. Why is every woman prepared to believe the worst of her husband on the frailest of evidence? Why will she never give him the benefit of the doubt until she's put him on the rack and spoiled a few hours of his life. I told my little story over 12 times at least before Mary really began to believe me. Even then she had spasms of back-sliding.

"It's true," I insisted. "They were club friends of yours, and they were talking rather cattishly. I was pretty sure they didn't know who I was, and I wanted them to. Who saw me drop the card, Mary?"

Protest Innocence.

"I—I don't know," said Mary, wiping her eyes and looking for the first time as if she really did believe me. "The telephone rang just a little while ago, and—and some strange woman told me that you—you'd been flirting and dropped your card in a trolley car so that two women behind you could pick it up, and—and, at first I didn't believe it, Peter, honestly! It was so silly—but I kept thinking about it and—called mother up—and she said to leave it all to her—that she'd talk to you——"

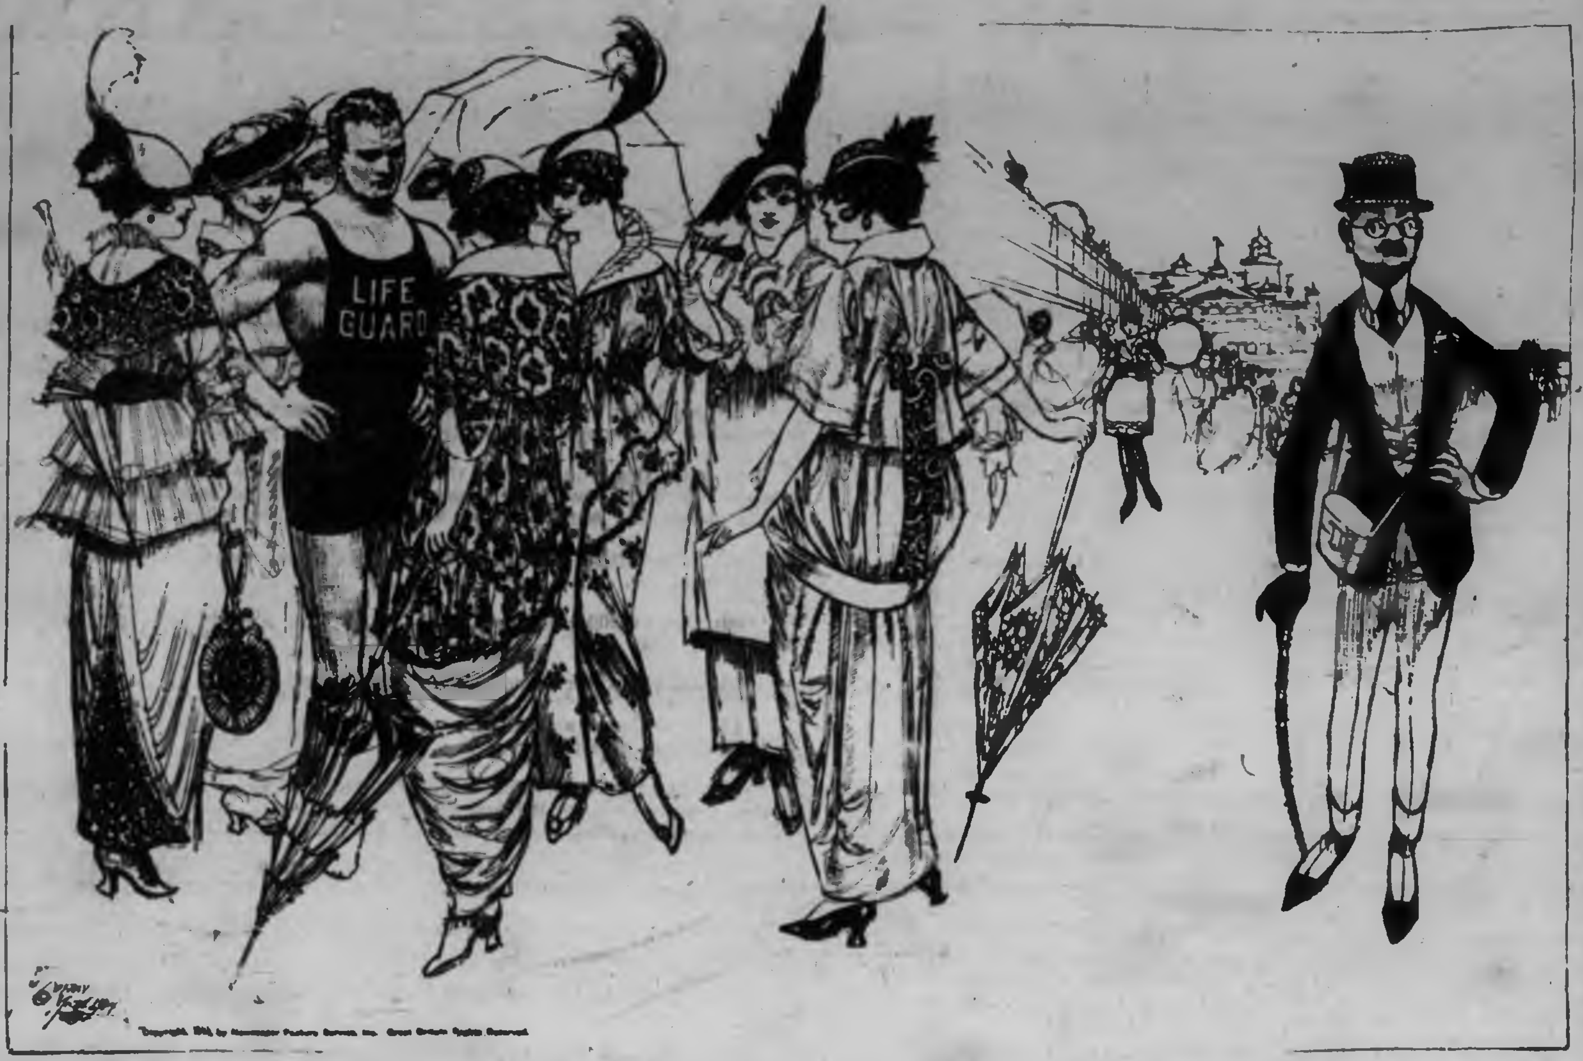
"Great Guns!" I breathed fervently—but I resisted a strong temptation to say something acrid, and changed the subject. "Mary," I added, "I believe your two club acquaintances picked up the card and were so appalled at the fact that I had overheard them that one of them has deliberately 'phoned just to get back at me. It was a very neat revenge—but——"

"And you're quite sure it wasn't true, Peter, the—the flirting? Mother said no one would take the trouble to phone unless there was some truth in it."

Blessing on my zealous mother-in-law! Somehow I feel pretty positive that without her maternal purr over the telephone Mary would have had more faith in me. It isn't the first time Mrs. Penfield has permitted a bristling maternal instinct to run away with her common sense, nor likely will it be the last. But I wish Mary would learn to stand firmly on her own two feet and not fly madly to the parental nest in times of doubt. It merely complicates an otherwise plain situation.

THE SUMMER HERO

By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

BROWNED by the sun, shining like a bronze god, he takes it all very complacently. Admiration does not bother him at all. He doesn't have to be introduced. He is the guardian and friend of all femininity.

Conqueror of the undertow, master of the slippery sea, he is a kind of austere Neptune to all mermaids—mermaids of the sand as well as mermaids of the sea.

Do you wonder that a perfectly dry fashion plate girl sometimes wonders whether a slight gurgle in the deeper place beyond the breakers might not be rewarded by a real thrill, one of those experiences you remember all your life?

To be SAVED! It must be superb!

Yet after the sun goes down a chap with a heroic car and a heroic bank roll is known to seem quite like a hero. You see, there are so many kinds.

Secrets of Health

Why All Milk For Your Baby Must Be Boiled

By Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

"AND what is so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, come perfect days; Then heaven tries the earth if it be in tune, And over it softly her warm ear lays."

This glorious healthful, happy, bridal month is full of beauties that lull the unwary, buoyant one into a sense of security, which may conceal a danger. 'Tis the month when joys, like beauty, may prove to be only skin deep; when the temptation of dazzling pastures and azure skies may lure you to some physical undoing.

To Avoid Sunstroke.

"Insulation," or sunstroke and heat stroke, may be a sword of Damocles, suspended for hotter days of the summer, but the split-curl which dangles on the bald head of Father Time must be grasped now, because the old fellow has a well greased skull. You cannot seize him from behind, because a billiard ball compared with him is like a regiment of bayonets or a picket fence. Take him, then, by the forelock, and see that you perspire freely at all times. Sunstroke cannot live with perspiration.

It is, however, to infantile pabulum that you must look most carefully in these early days of cholera infantum, "summer complaint," acute dysentery and the other bad milk and water assassins of baby life.

There is no such imaginary danger as the "second summer" superstition for little ones. There is an eternal summer danger for all babies for at least five summers. Every summer has the same danger of its own. The "second summer," like certain marital troubles, seems worse.

Boil Baby's Milk.

It seems to be a lesson slowly learned by fond parents that because a bottle looks "clean," a milk is rich and tastes "sweet," that it still can cause a Caesar's legion of infantile deaths. Yet it is true; proved beyond denial.

The deadly germs of summer diarrhoea are more insidious than a stiletto in an alley. Their first signs are loose bowels, their second follows quickly—it is death!

Mother's milk, which passes from the breast directly and without delay into the baby's mouth, is dependable at all times. No certified, "Pasteurised-at-the-dairy" or "fresh cow's milk" contains any immunity to the terrible bacterial demons of infant ailments in summer.

Boiling milk for babies has its defects, but death to the child has never been among them. This cannot be said of any other plan to protect the child's milk.

For the nonce, then, let me command all young mothers, uncontrolled by ancient errors and neighbor's tales, to nurse their babies with their own heart's milk throughout the summer.

If this is not feasible, by all means boil for 20 minutes the milk that is left on your doorstep. The trivial disorders, such as a sluggish alimentary canal, which comes from boiled milk, can be corrected by orange juice, grape juice, yolks of eggs and oatmeal gruel.

Once the diarrhoea appears, even in what some grandmothers will tell you is "a natural form," stop all food for a few days. Give nothing but boiled water.

Is it required in this day to emphasize the need of absolute sterilization of bottles, nipples and anything that approaches a child's mouth? Hardly. Even in the remote backwoods they now know this must be done.

Word Origins

Presently formerly meant instantly, immediately, and is used in this sense in scores of places by Shakespeare and other writers of his time. It is a curious illustration of the dilatoriness of human nature that a word which once meant instantly should come to be universally considered as meaning after a time.

The shrew was originally the shrew mouse, which, when her young were helpless, would fight desperately in their defence, and so well known was the courage of this little animal, which would even go out of its way to seek an enemy at times when the nest needed protection, that the word became applied to a woman who was ever ready to seek a quarrel.

The expression blackguard originally indicated the scullions, kitchen boys and pot washers who brought up the rear when a great man's household was moving from place to place. As these persons were by no means choice in their language or elegant in their deportment, the word was soon applied to those who in speech or action resembled them.

The word treacle has undergone an odd modification. At first it was applied to such decoctions of roots or other substances as were deemed beneficial in medical practice; then, as these were frequently sweetened, it came to mean any sweet concoction or confection; and lastly, as molasses was the sweetest of all, this name was exclusively applied to syrup.

The word prevaricator is from the Latin, and originally meant a straddler with distorted or misshapen legs. In the Roman courts of law the expression was applied to one who in a suit was discovered to be in collusion with his opponent to compass some dishonesty. As falsehood was the necessary part of such a performance, the word by and by came to have the significance at present attached to it.

Suspendered Gowns Now the Craze

By MADGE MARVEL

WITH the generous adaptation of the waistcoat by womankind it is comparatively easy to take a step further in purloining masculine garments, and add suspenders to feminine costuming.

There is considerable logic in the occasional use of suspenders, for, made of the same material as the skirt, they join the contrasting blouse into a harmonious whole, and become a relative and efficient part of the gown. Worn with a tailored frock of serge or linen they give a desirable note of smartness. I have seen them developed in tulle and worn with evening gowns, but in such instances they were designated as bretelles, and their use was entirely ornamental instead of practical.

Suggests Jumper Dress.

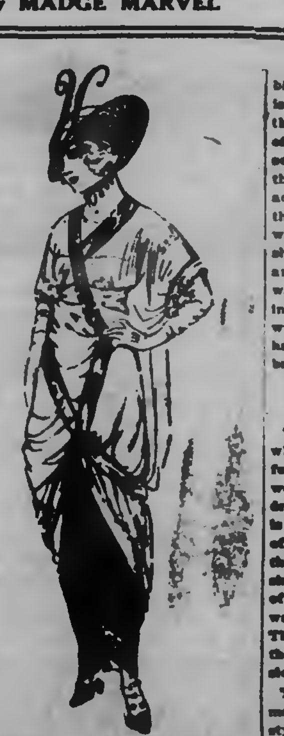
The gown shown is a recent Paris importation, and is applicable to all the linen and cotton weaves so much used this season, as well as to the serges, taffetas and poplins.

There is the suggestion of the once favored jumper dress in the suspendered frock, but in this costume the straps are carried down to the skirt, where they do the work of the sash, so they become more important than mere suspenders.

They very cleverly confine the panniers which are as bouffant as is consistent with grace of outline.

The material is a fine silk and linen weave in one of the new bronze shades. From this model, one of the noted modistes tells me, she has made several very smart costumes for the Newport season.

One in particular was developed in canary yellow French linen with the blouse of fine organdie. Another was in deep rose, so deep that it suggested the old-time cardinal, the material, one of the new cottons and the blouse of voile, white with a stripe of the color of the gown.



Suspenders and Pannier Straps.

Another way in which the thin, white blouse is made one with the linen frocks is by having the underarm pieces of the material of the skirt, cut in square effect, which makes the sheer blouse seem like a deep guimpe. In many of these gowns there is also a little square across the back which comes about to the shoulder blades. This is a style which only the flat-backed woman should attempt, for it will accentuate any rounding tendency. In the same way judgment should be used in adopting the crossed suspenders and sash. It will break long lines, and unless one has the height and the litheness to brave it, the effect will not please.

Long Tunics and Lace.

Two or three black taffeta gowns which I have particularly noticed made for the summer vacation trips, to be worn for the informal dance or the semi-dress occasion where full evening dress is not permissible, have the long tunic of the taffeta, and the upper portion of the blouse and the lower edge of the skirt of sheer white lace. The portion of the taffeta which extends above the waistline is applied with a slight puffing. The tunic reaches within six inches of the edge of the lace petticoat. The sleeves and guimpe are also of the lace.

There are some stunning turbans, made in the close fitting, high crown style which was so much worn earlier in the season, offered by exclusive milliners for midsummer wear. One of them accords beautifully with the black taffeta and lace frock or the suspendered gown. It is completely formed of white violets sewn thick upon a tulle or net foundation, and at the side are two lacquered white wings.

Three Minute Journeys

WHERE TWO PRIESTS BRING LUCK

By TEMPLE MANNING

OF all the people of the earth I would give to the Maori the palm for hospitality. Never shall I forget the delightful marriage feast it was my good luck to attend one warm New Zealand day.

A runner came to my camp from up country with the invitation smiling on his lips. He bade me hasten to the "hui," or feast, for there were many invited guests, and the festivities would soon begin. Nothing loath, I mounted my unshod native pony, and followed him up through the hills to where the smoke of many cook fires hospitably beckoned.

Loud cries greeted us. "Tena-koe" (How d'you do?) and "Kia-ora" (Welcome) sounded on all sides. Everybody stopped to smile and make me feel at home, although they were all busy at one thing, or another, around the 20 "kupas" (ovens), from which rose the most appetizing odors. At the chief's house I drew rein, and was surprised to find a Catholic priest of my acquaintance.

With mock annoyance he told me how he happened to be there. The couple about to be married were not Catholic. Some time before they had embraced the Baptist faith, but their own pastor was away. Differences of creed mean nothing to a Maori; all they wished was to be married by a white "tohunga" (priest). My friend happened to be travelling near, and some of the bridegroom's friends went over to his camp and kidnapped him. He protested, laughingly, but the good smells from the ovens made him glad he was there.

At 12 o'clock a bell rang out from the little "whare-karakia" (church), and we took our places near the altar. Great masses of greenery, white clematis and the crimson "pohutukawa" flowers, made the [illegible] lovely bower.

The good Catholic father was amazed when a native Maori priest stepped to his side to help him perform the ceremony. But his share in the marriage soon was finished. He handed the bride a woven flax leaf cup filled with water. She took a sip and then handed it to the bridegroom, who emptied the cup at one draught. Whereupon the native "tohunga" in a loud voice pronounced the pair man and wife. Then they turned to the good father and he made them one in the sonorous language of the ancient church.

As we emerged from the chapel a soft-toned horn rang out through the grove, and a sweet-voiced "kotiro" (girl) chanted a song of happy invitation to the feast that was ready spread. We sat down to dinner, 400 strong, and over the clatter of the tables soared the songs of the birds in the branches overhead, the musical tinkle of a nearby waterfall, and the happy laughter of the bridal party.

To them it was the height of good fortune that an old "tohunga" of their fathers' faith had wed them, and that a white man's priest had made them one.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

For grit in the eye apply a drop or two of castor oil; it relieves the irritation.

Pickles may be kept from becoming mouldy by laying a little bag of mustard on the top of the pickle jar.

A little vinegar placed in the rinsing water on washing day will prevent the hands from becoming rough and chapped.

To clean brass flower pots or trays, rub them with a piece of lemon; then pour boiling water over them, and finally polish with a soft dry cloth.

When ironing it is a very good plan to get a clean brick, a white one if possible, as a stand. The iron will retain heat much longer than if an open iron-stand be used.

When boiled and unboiled eggs get mixed, spin them, and the boiled ones will spin around quite fast; while those which have not been cooked will hardly spin round once.

Permanganate of potash will cleanse dirty filters of all impurities. A solution should be passed through the filter until it comes out as pink as when it was poured in.

Sal-ammoniac will clean a furred kettle. Fill the kettle with cold water, add a little sal-ammoniac to it and boil. All the fur will dissolve. Well rinse the kettle afterwards.

Tar may be removed from the hands by rubbing with the outside of fresh orange or lemon peel and drying immediately. The volatile oils dissolve tar so that it can be rubbed off.

Cayenne pepper is excellent to rid cupboards of mice. The floor should be gone over carefully and each hole stopped up with a piece of rag dipped in water and then in cayenne pepper.

When making a pie, the juice from the fruit very often soaks through the undercrust, and spoils the appearance of it. This can be prevented by brushing the undercrust over with the white of an egg.

Like Their Surroundings.

"So, their attachment proved a rope of sand."

"Yes. They did their courting on the beach."

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

Perhaps you could advise me what to do. I have been going with a young man for nearly six years. We are not engaged yet; but he says there is a good time coming for me. Last month he came back from the West and stayed for a night and a day at my house, then he went off some place else. He seldom writes me, yet he does not want to break off altogether. He wants to keep on, but he will not say when he intends to marry me. He thinks I'm going to marry some one else. Now he has gone back West.

I am very lonely. I know hardly any one in the city. Please tell me how to meet some nice young men and women. I would like to have some nice young man to go out with, or some nice girl friend with whom to go to church. I go to church morning and evening, but I seldom meet any young people and I am a little lonesome. Please help me.

DARK HAIRED LASSIE.

SO he's going back West. And he says he hopes you'll write—once in a while—and he didn't ask you to marry him, after all. And he didn't say he loved you, and now you are heart-broken and don't know what to do.

Why, you say yourself that the man thinks you're going to marry some one else. Who told him so—did you? Why? Did you think it would make him come to time?

Well, it didn't, you see, and now you wish you had never seen him at all—poor you. Well, so do I, little girl, but you can't help that now.

What you can help is writing to him any longer or paying any more serious attention to him whatsoever. He isn't the only man in the world. Just forget him and, before you know it, you will find some one who really loves you—some one who will appreciate your faithful heart.

You say you are lonely and know no one in your church. Why don't you go and see the minister about it? Tell him you are a stranger in town and want to meet some nice young people. He'll arrange it somehow—that's one of the things he's there for.

Life is a long road, you know, and you just happen to be in a shady place right now. The sun is shining farther on—never fear.

Just go singing along through the dark places—and first you know you will have someone singing with you.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

CANADIAN CLUB ASKED TO EXPEL HENRI BOURASLA

Montreal, Sept. 24.—An attempt to expel Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, from the Canadian Club, was made this afternoon at a banquet held in the Windsor Hotel, at which the Belgian delegation to President Wilson were present. A resolution calling for Mr. Bourassa's expulsion was tendered, but the Chairman, Dunn Adams, would not accept it as it was out of order.

The resolution follows:

"That this Club regrets to feel the spirit which prompted it to extend the honor of its membership to Henri Bourassa, one of the most eloquent of our French-Canadian orators, does not seem to have been either understood or appreciated by him, and that the Club now feels, in justice to those of our French and English fellow members who believe in a united Canada and who are loyally giving their time, their money and their lives in the service of their King and country, that the treasurer should return Mr. Bourassa his fee, expressing the hope that he will live long enough to realize what it means to be a true patriot and honored citizen."

OF COURSE INDIA IS FAITHFUL TO BRITAIN

London, Sept. 24.—His Highness the Aga Khan, recognized temporal leader over sixty millions of the Mohammedans of the Indian Empire sums up the attitude of his people in the present conflict, and says: "Germany made a mistake, as it did about Ireland, and anybody who counts on India to be false to England will come a cropper."

The Aga Khan has directed the Shoja Moslems, who alone number several millions and over whom he is the spiritual as well as the temporal head to place their personal services and resources at the disposal of the Government and has volunteered to serve himself as a private in any regiment of infantry on the Indian expeditionary force. The Aga Khan laughs heartily over the suggestion that a Germanistic propoganda might undermine the loyalty of the Indian subjects to their King Emperor. He remarked smilingly:

Know What Defeat Would Mean

"Many of my fellow countrymen have been in Africa and seen the German administration of the east and southwest African colonies. They know what the Germanization of India would mean, and they know, too that if England were driven out of India Germany, should she be successful in this war, would step in. The thinking element among the Indians of all classes realize that our country, divided as it is into hundreds of principalities, each inclined to be jealous of the others, could not hope to stand alone if British rule were withdrawn."

Official Berlin announces that orders were given not to bombard Rheims, where the cathedral has been destroyed by German shells. Official Berlin is a liar and a hypocrite.

Moratoriums Unwise

The Canadian Courier says: A moratorium is possible in Britain, because all Britain's creditors are her own people. The British consols, which represent her public debt, are held in Britain. All stocks and mortgages on public or private properties are held by other Britishers. But in Canada the case is different. Many mortgages on Canadian properties are held by British investors. Some are held by Canadian loan companies, but the loan companies in turn get this money from abroad. Hence a moratorium here would be a serious blow at Canadian credit abroad.

In the East many people believe that the moratorium on mortgages passed by the Manitoba Legislature last week is a great mistake, and that no other province will imitate it. Saskatchewan is reported to have decided that such action would only add fuel to the fire and would ultimately reflect unfavourably on investments in that province. Ontario has decided not to pass a moratorium, but to leave the judges the power to relieve any extreme cases.

Canadians must remember that our greatest asset is our credit abroad. To destroy that is to set Canada back a generation. Therefore the Dominion Government refuses to declare a moratorium, although parliament gave it the power to do so. This should be a warning to the nine provincial governments that the safest way to safeguard their credit is to avoid even the mildest form of moratoriums. If there are extreme cases, let the Provincial Government take care of them temporarily. Shifting the burden to the loan companies or banks is only a subterfuge.

Cavalry in Modern War

In an official statement from Berlin concerning the military operations in Galicia, the following estimate is made of the Russian forces in that part of the theater of war:

The Austrians have assumed the offensive in the region of Lemberg. During the nine days of fighting it is estimated that the Russians have had engaged 500,000 infantry, 400,000 cavalry, 1,500 machine guns and 2,000 field guns.

The striking thing about these figures, aside from the magnitude of the armies engaged, is the large proportion of cavalry in the Russian army of invasion. In Western Europe the proportion of cavalry to infantry in the armies of Germany, France and England is said to be about as one to four. If Berlin's estimate of the Russian forces in Galicia is correct, the Russians have sent into that region almost as many cavalry as infantry, and as many cavalry as are engaged at this time in the combined German, French and English armies in France.

While the propotion of cavalry to infantry is larger than had been expected, it has been known for years that the Russians proposed to rely more heavily upon cavalry than any other military power in Europe in the event of war. Part of this is due to the fact that the Russian armies are required to move much longer distances to get at their enemies than the armies of any other European power and cavalry is able to move faster than infantry.

The peculiar character of the people from whom the Russians draw so large a part of their army is, however, equally important in bringing about this result. Over one-third of the Russian army is made up of Cossacks and for centuries Cossacks have preferred to fight on horseback, and they make equipment easier for the government by furnishing their own horses. A large proportion of the Cossacks come from the vast regions of the Caucasus, and these men are familiar from boyhood with the care of horses, and they are doubly valuable as soldiers for the reason that many of them prefer military service to any other. They do not have to be drafted, but enroll themselves in a mounted regiment voluntarily and remain in the service until retired by age. The Cossack regiments are, therefore, more than any others made up of experienced soldiers.

Our Point of View

A glance at the war news is sufficient to convince us that our old friend Mars is a very busy man.

"After you, my dear Von Kluck," is the polite way in which General French puts it.

There is one respect in which a woman has the advantage of a man. She doesn't have to mobilize with a safety razor three times a week.

Kaiser Bill has demonstrated to the civilized world that the most dangerous of all bosses is the boss of a war machine.

Yes, Clarence, you may if you wish call an Irish aviator a Sky Terrier, but we advise you not to do so within his hearing.

"Germany Over All" is the song of the Kaiser's soldiers, but before the war is ended they may find things all over Germany.

The Crown Prince Frederick was given command of the flower of the German army probably because he is a better florist than a soldier.

We are inclined to believe that Kaiser Bill has forbidden the wearing of mourning in Berlin because it is a visible reminder of the awful slaughter for which he is responsible.

The football teams are beginning to mobilize and in a short time the newspapers will be publishing another list of casualties.

Kaiser Bill took his son, Prince Frederick, to task for getting too near the firing line. "You must not risk your life," said the Kaiser. "Let Hans, Fritz and Heinnie do it."

The other night a German truck farmer near Kenner was aroused from his slumber by the wild scent of a polecat under his window. He tried to wake up his wife, and failing, said: "Mein Gott, haf I got to schmell it all py meinself?"

If the theater of war should shift so as to compel our printers and proofreaders to struggle with Russian names we shudder to think of the volleys of profanity that would pour out of the windows on the third floor.

A Local Dog Story

A good story, and a true one is told of a former resident of Ashburnham. It seems that this former local citizen owned a dog which had inherited the physical and mental peculiarities of a long and varied ancestry. Its name was Friday. The former Peterboro man had also a big decanter and two intimate friends who lived in Belmont township. As the friends were unloading one Friday night, the decanter, the dog sat beside the stove. The owner of dog, decanter and Belmont friends remarked, "That dog won't eat meat on Friday." One of the Belmont men made a bet that the dog would not eat meat on that day of the week. He flung a piece of meat to the dog of varied ancestry. The dog made for the meat, when its owner sharply called "Friday!" Friday came to his master's side and its master won the bet.

A fourteen year old girl at Tonawanda has committed suicide because her parents prevented her marrying. Had she been a Peterboro girl a slipper wielded by her parents and applied at the right place would have saved a life.

Best Liniment of All Destroys Every Pain But Never Burns

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Wetaskawin, Alberta. "In this faraway section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck,—you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache, or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has its living examples of the wonderful curative properties of Nerviline which will cure pains and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares ?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000 ; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report :

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25.".

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time ; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

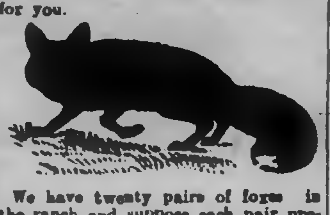
Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.



We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Fox Dividends Declared to Date

THE FROZEN SHIP

A Gruesome Legend of Lake Superior

One of the most gruesome legends of Superior relates to the "Frozen Ship," which recalls almost "the schooner Hesperus, that sailed the wintry sea." This trim schooner weighed anchor in Duluth just before a November storm, which made mariners everywhere run for cover. For six long weeks no tidings whatever was heard of the ship. Then, one day, a lonely trapper making his rounds in the wilderness came across her on the shore. Frozen stiff in their bunks were two of the crew, and the fate of the others was surmised with a shudder as the trapper noted the tracks of wild animals on the snow-covered deck. And the annals of the Great Lakes contain the records of fully as many deeds of heroism, in proportion, as do the logs of old ocean, while millions of treasure lie hidden beneath the waters. When the time comes for the "sea to give up her dead," the great multitude which no man can number, will be bravely recruited from the gallant souls whose bones lie at the bottom of Superior and its kindred fresh water seas.

The Canadian Match

Canada is a fine country, some day it will be a great country. Undoubtedly it will always remain a large country! And like most large countries its drawbacks are on a large scale. Take for instance the Canadian match. It is without exception the largest and most ornate match the world can produce. Wood being cheap and plentiful in Canada, each match is made on the reduced scale of a substantial fence post; the business end of it is adorned with a large and highly colored blob of some sulphurous compound chiefly noted for its inflammable qualities—anywhere but in juxtaposition with the strip of sandpaper pasted on the box, presumably for the purpose of igniting the said match. As a rule the match flatly declines to be lit on its proper place, but after you have scratched it on the box, on the stove, on the floor, on the door lintel, and on the sole of your shoe without any apparent effect, it will suddenly, and without any warning whatever, break in half and burst into flame. Whereupon the lighted end flies off into some inaccessible corner and continues to burn while you frantically endeavor to extinguish it with the extreme end of the broom handle, or the flaming portion thereof lodges upon your hand and holds thereto with a tenacity that is truly remarkable, never consenting to be displaced until it has burned a deep hole through the skin during the process of which the screams or curses of the victim (according to sex) and the mingled odors of sulphur and burning flesh add considerable excitement to the prearranged harmony of the family circle. Also, in order to carry out the general largeness of the idea, these matches are put up in large boxes, and suffer from a tendency to spontaneous combustion if inadvertently placed too near the stove.—Mrs. Donald Shaw.

JOURNALIST'S QUICK WIT

A London Editor's Retort to a Captious Neighbor

The late Archie Bremner, for many years editor of "The London Advertiser," was noted for his ready wit. For a long time his home was in one of the suburbs and next door resided a chronically cantankerous individual never happy except when in a scrap with somebody. One day after dinner Archie sauntered for the office with his old silk hat tilted at the regulation angle. But neighbor "Bone" was lying in wait for him leaning over his front gate.

"Mr. Bremner, are you aware that your line fence is two inches over on my lot?"

"Well, no, to tell the truth, I hadn't noticed that," was the diplomatic answer.

"It is then, and I want to know what you are going to do about it?"

"Well, now," observed the imperturbable Archie, lifting his pipe from his mouth, "if you are going to move the fence just put it full six inches over on my lot and then there'll never be any chance for trouble."

And there never was. Neighbor "Bone's" wrath flattened out more quickly than it had risen and he discovered a sudden engagement back in his own onion patch.

Girl at the Plough

At Wivelsfield, near Haywards Heath, a young girl, named Lily Burtenshaw, took to ploughing. She is seventeen years of age, and her rosy cheeks indicate that life in the open agrees with her. She can drive a plough as straight as a man, and can cut and bind corn and pull mangels. Her employer admits she is more use on the land than many lads who find employment there.

TALK ON STORMS

R. F. Stupart Says Temperature is the Disturbing Element

Mr. R. F. Stupart, director of the Meteorological service of Canada, gave an interesting illustrated address before the members of the Canadian Institute, Toronto, on "The Canadian Storm-warning System." By means of charts, the distribution of atmosphere over the globe's surface and the resulting winds were explained. "The great disturbing element is temperature," said the speaker. "There is a difference in temperature between the Equator and the Poles of about 80 degrees, and in winter the difference is much greater. The air near the surface over the equatorial regions is greatly heated, and expands, with the result that over the Equatorial regions any given barometric surface is at a greater height above the earth than it is over regions both north and south, and in consequence of this the upper air flows away both north and south and surface air from north and south flows towards the Equator. The air in the upper regions, as it goes north and south towards converging meridians, accumulates between 25 degrees and 35 degrees, and the effect of this is the high barometer of this sub-tropical zone. Another important agency affecting the movements of air currents is the rotation of the earth, which causes a deflection to the right of the initial movement in the Northern Hemisphere, and to the left in the Southern. And this leads to the surface currents in the tropics being from N.-E. instead of from N., and S.-E. instead of from South. But in addition to the temperature difference between Equator and Pole there are temperature differences between continent and ocean, which are reversed by the season; and with this latter system of variable air circulation impressed on the former more stable system, there is a resultant system of vast complexity; but one in which many of the component factors are closely discernible."

Brotherhood

That plenty but reproaches me
  Which leaves my brother bare;
Not wholly glad my heart can be,
  While his is bowed with care.
If I go free, and sound and stout,
  While his poor fetters clank,
Unsated still, I'll still cry out,
  And plead with Whom I thank.

Almighty: Thou who Father be
  Of him, of me, of all,
Draw us together, him and me,
  That whichsoever fall,
The other's hand may fail him not—
  The other's strength decline.
No task of succor that his lot
  May claim from son of Thine.

I would be fed, I would be clad,
  I would be housed and dry;
But if it be my heart is sad—
  What benefit have I?
Best he whose shoulders best endure
  The load which brings relief.
And he shall have his joy secure,
  Who shares that joy with grief.

Huge Sums For Racing

Statistics relative to prize money allotted by the various racing clubs at Australia show the great strides made in the Commonwealth of late years. For one racing season the prize money amounted to a grand total of $7,411,165, while the combined race clubs of Great Britain and Ireland disbursed $2,792,930, a record amount.

SOME SHORT CUTS IN FIGURING INTEREST

The following will be found to be excellent rules for finding the interest on any [illegible] for any number of days. When the principal contains cents, point off four places from the right of the result to express the interest in dollars and cents. When the principal contains dollars only, point off two places and proceed as follows:

Two per cent.—Multiply the principal by the number of days to run, and divide by 180.

Two and one-half per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 144.

Three per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 120.

Three and one-half per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 102.86.

Four per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 90.

Five per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 72.

Six per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 60.

Seven per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 51.43.

Eight per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 45.

Nine per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 40.

Ten per cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by 36.

Twelve per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 30.

Fifteen per cent.—Multiply by number of days, and divide by 24.

For example: Find the accrued interest on $1,500.00 for 123 days at 6%. Point off two places, multiply 1.23 by $1,500, the result is $1,845.00, divide by 60, and you have $30.76, which is the correct sum in dollars and cents.

FARM SURVEYS

Some Points on Which Farmers May Make Improvements

F. C. Nunnick, of the Commission of Conservation, in referring to the work being done in regard to farm surveys and demonstration farms in Ontario, said the survey was conducted in five counties of the province and the number of farms visited was [illegible]. Information was collected which went to show that Ontario farmers could improve their methods in a number of ways. Slightly less than half were not following a systematic rotation, merely growing different crops on the land from one year to the next. Not enough attention was paid to the varieties of grain grown. In Peterboro' County, for instance, 17 varieties were grown. These could well be cut [illegible]. Weeds were gaining the ascendancy in many cases. On one farm 65 different weeds were found. One cause appeared to be that weed inspectors were lax in their duties. A fact, the significance of which could not be slighted, was that 93 per cent. of the farmers visited were taking no special means to preserve farm manure.

Blind Print For Blind

Blind women and girls of Washington are earning their living by making books for other blind persons. The work is in steady progress, and a shipment of books to the blind of other places soon will be made.

Braille type, read by the blind through their fingers, is now of international employment, and thousands of blind persons have been taught to read it. The result is that the demand for books printed in this way has far exceeded the supply.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch,

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). cf a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

THE BUSIEST STREETS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Inquiries were recently made in order to ascertain the amount of traffic passing through the principal thoroughfares of the capitals of the world, with a view to discovering which had the most congested traffic to deal with. The result goes to show that the two busiest streets in the world are the Mansion House Corner, in the City of London, and the Place de l'Opéra Paris; the former having the greater number of foot passengers and the lattir the larger share of vehicular traffic. Every week day 500,000 persons walk past the Mansion House, the number of vehicles being 50,000; compared with 450,000 pedestrians and 62,000 vehicles passinf through the Place de l'Opéra. After these most important thoroughfares comes the Broadway, New York, which is traversed by 480,000 foot passengers daily although over 700,000 pass through in tram car or motor car. The next in importance is the Puerta del Sol (Gate of the Sun), Madrid, into which nine or ten great arteries of traffic discharge their streams, and which carries 360,000 people daily. Finally come the Friedrichstrasse, Berlin, and the Vladimirski Prospekt, St. Petersburg, with 300,000, and the Graben, Vienna, with a daily average of 275,000 persons.

THE SPORT OF KINGS

Reigning German Princes Are Lovers of the Horse

In Germany racing is becoming the sport of Kings. The recently-proclaimed King of Bavaria is a good friend of the turf. He raced during the period of regency he held, and his private estate at Leutstetten includes a small thoroughbred stud, while horses have run in his colors. In Hungary he established a stud for the half-breds, following the example of his Majesty of Wurtemberg, who takes an active part in racing, and, free to follow the bent of his inclination, has made considerable and wise changes at the Well Stud, allotting the best paddocks to the Anglo-Arabian race horses which carry his colors, and removing the pure-bred Arabs to the quarters formerly assigned the racing stud.

The Duke of Brunswick has a few jumpers which he races at cross-country meetings.

Prince Von Schaumberg-Lippe races under the name of the "Fasanenhof" Stud.

The Crown Prince of Germany and Prince Friedrich Sigismund are known to have a partiality for cross-country sport, and the present Emperor and Prince Friederick Charles have both of them been owners irrespective of those bred at Gradits, the stud of the kingdom of Prussia.

Reigning Grand Dukes have during their military career raced, and possibly the advent of the Hanoverian Prince to the Dukedom of Brunswick may tempt him to draw on the resources of the Harzburg Stud, as did his predecessor, William of Brunswick, who, before leaving his throne, had a racing stable of his own to utilise the produce of the fiscal stud.

NATIONALITY REVEALED

Shape of Head Varies in Different Races

Among many interesting facts that are revealed by a study of heads is the one that the left side of a head is almost always larger than the right due, it is supposed, to the universal practice of using the right hand more than the left.

Another curious fact pointed out by a writer on the subject is that nationality considerably affects the shape of the head. It would surely be an interesting subject for a biologist to explain why it is that the nearer the equator a race resides the rounder their heads become. No one needs reminding of the round, bullet shaped skull of the negro, but the hatter will assure us that a Frenchman's head is rounder than an Englishman's and similarly an Englishman's rounder than a Scotchman's.

The average Scot's head tapers considerably towards the front, narrows at the temples and becomes square and prominent at the forehead. German heads, on the average, are rounder than English, and broader at the back. Irish heads, in general, are long, like the Scotch, but scarcely as narrow. The Slavonic head is narrow in front and very broad at the back.

MIDGETS AND DWARFS

They Simply Are Slow in Developing and Remain Childlike

Professor Hastings Gilford delivered an interesting lecture on "Infantilism" at the Royal College of Surgeons in London recently. He pointed out that many so-called dwarfs or midgets are not in reality the result of a stoppage of growth, but rather of a protracted delay of development, so that they remain infants all their lives. And when they grow old, as they often do, their infantile characteristics still persist, in spite of their wizened appearance.

So extraordinary is their slowness in passing through the childish stage that in one case Professor Gilford found it took twenty years for one of those little people to grow as much as an ordinary child grows in five years. Growth goes on until well over thirty, and at the end of that time the little "man" may be no bigger than a child of six. One case was mentioned in which one of these "infantilates" passed as a child until nearly thirty years, having no difficulty in travelling on the railway with a half-ticket. Another, a boy of fourteen, could pass as a baby in arms, and took the leading role in one of the London theatres, acting alternately as a baby and as a diminutive "man about town," with great intelligence and ability.

"It is this kind of complaint, for such is its nature, that accounts for the midgets," continued the professor. "They seem to be intelligent and captivating little people, their intelligence being of the childish pattern, such as might be expected of young children who gather years of experience. They never seem to be spoiled, nor even to be embarrassed by the attentions they receive from the public, but show quaint childish traits and a charming naïveté, which makes them great favorites with those who have dealings with them."

As light as lager,
but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¾ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

LONESOME LONDON

Colonial Official Says It Chills the Visitor From Overseas

Colonials, according to Sir George Reid, High Commissioner for Australia, have their admiration for the Motherland chilled by their loneliness when they get to London.

"You can't make 7,000,000 people think over the arrival of one Australian," said Sir George. "I make that allowance. But there is a film over the British character. When it is scratched as fine a man is struck as can be found anywhere—but it has to be scratched.

"When an Englishman visits Australia he finds himself in the midst of friends anxious to take him by the hand. I want a little more of that in London, not only for High Commissioners but for the ordinary colonial."

Among men from the Overseas Dominions who do not entirely agree with Sir George is Mr. W. L. Griffith, Charge d'Affaires at the Canadian Office in London. Mr. Griffith admits that London is lonely, for the English provincial as well as the Colonial. "But," he said, "I cannot follow—perhaps I do not understand—Sir George Reid when he speaks of a 'film' over the English character.

"It is perfectly true that an Englishman visiting one of the Dominions is taken by the hand, but I apprehend that when the Australian and Canadian centres approach London in size the same inherent obstacles in the way of good fellowship will present themselves. I don't believe it is from any lack of warm-heartedness that visitors are neglected in London. The difficulty is how to get into touch with visitors. As a matter of fact, the appreciation of the people of the Motherland for the people of Dominions has grown astonishingly during the past twenty years."

WASTED $250,000

Rich Man Reduced to Singing For Coppers and Asking For Crusts

A man who had been left several fortunes, and after spending all came to be charged with begging, found himself in the dock at Northwich, England.

He was John Marsh, aged sixty-nine, of St. Helens. He declared that he had been left by various relatives sums totalling $250,000, which had all been spent in drinking, gambling, and helping others. He had inherited his fathers's spendthrift nature and his mother's generosity.

He was formerly in a grocery and confectionery business at St. Helens, but now worked for farmers solely for his food, varying the monotony by singing in publichouses songs of his own composition, and dancing.

Reduced to hunger, he pleaded, he simply begged a crust. His one desire was to tide over another year to qualify for an old age pension, as he had an aversion to becoming a pauper. The magistrate gave him money to help him on his way, and dismissed the case.

FIFTY MILE GOLF DRIVE

Certain extraordinary facts with respect to Mars have been established by the astronomers, says an article in the "London Magazine."

It is known that the size and density of Mars are so much less than the size and density of the earth that a man weighing 200 pounds here would weigh only 75 pounds there. Lead there would weigh no more than stone with us, and stone there no more than water here.

A man on Mars would be eighty-three times more powerful than an earth-dweller. He could leap a wall 8 feet 4 inches in height with no more effort than it would cost him here to spring over a 2 foot fence, and he would be able to drive a golf ball no less than fifty miles!

Lady Street Collectors Duped

A number of the ladies who assisted at the street collection of money in Glasgow on behalf of the Lifeboat Fund were relieved of their boxes by a man who pretended that he was the official deputed to convey the money to the bank. No fewer than twenty-seven boxes were handed over to the unknown man. The estimated sum missing as the result of the theft is about $100.

FIRST CANARIES WERE NOT YELOW

Little Singers Are Quite Domesticated and Captivity is no Hardship to Them

Canaries sell in Canada for from $1 to $10 apiece, according to their singing ability, but it is not an uncommon thing at all in Germany to have $125 paid for one of the birds. Many immigrants coming to Canada have brought their canaries with them even if the cages were cumbersome to carry and other things, seemingly of more worth, had to be left behind.

The Englishman and the German is not happy unless he has his canary warbling to him when he comes home from work. Many instances have been known of people buying canaries even when they had not enough money to buy food, because they had lost their pets in moving to their new homes.

The original canary, of course, came from the Canary Isles, where the species is still found in abundance. The native bird sings sweetly, if not scientifically as its educated relations. The wild birds are not yellow in color, but are mostly of gray plumage. In confinement, due to climate, food, and the intermixture of breeds, white, grey, green, and brown, as well as yellow shades are produced.

ENGLAND'S GREAT NAMES

Interesting Debate on Which County Produced Most Illustrious Men

Many readers will probably dispute the decision arrived at by the judge at a debate on the subject of which English county has produced the [illegible] before the Society of [illegible] Folk in London, who after listening to the champions of celebrities of thirteen counties, gave their verdict in favor of Lancashire. Lancashire was the native county of John Bright, whose oratory fascinated and enthralled men, among other famous statesmen which it claims being Gladstone, who was born at Liverpool, Sir Robert Peel, born near Bury, and Lord Morley, who claims Blackburn as his native place.

In literature the county is very strongly represented: De Quincey, Mrs. Hemans, the famous poetess, Hall Caine, Harrison Ainsworth, and Richard Le Gallienne, being among other famous authors who were born in Lancashire. Neither must one forget Sir Richard Arkwright, the inventor of the cotton-spinning frame, Romney, the famous painter; and such actors as John Kemble, Sothern, and Edmund Kean, three of the greatest who ever appeared on the English stage.

Hampshire and Derbyshire

Hampshire is proudly referred to by its people and admirers as the cradle of the English race—the cradle of the ecclesiastical system, cradle of the English Navy, and the cradle of the national game of cricket. Palmerston, Thomas Arnold, Charles Dickens, George Meredith, Millais, and Tennyson, who, though he was born in Lincolnshire, had his favorite residence in the Isle of Wight, are men who have added lustre to little Hampshire.

Mr. Morice Gerard (the Rev. J. Jessop Teague), author of many popular books, proudly claims for Derbyshire that it is the county which started everything. In other words, that its famous men were the pioneers in all things. It produced James Brindley, founder of canals; Sir Francis Chantrey, one of the finest sculptors who ever lived. Herbert Spencer, the founder of that school in which Huxley and Darwin graduated; Sir Hugh Willoughby, the first of a long line of explorers who set out in the sixteenth century from Deptford to find the Northwest passage; Sir James Outram, the Bayard of India; and last but not least, "Little John," Robin Hood's great small man.

Claims of Warwickshire

On the other hand, Warwickshire claims to have produced Robin Hood himself, and among other greater celebrities Shakespeare, acknowledged to be among the greatest of Englishmen, Walter Savage Landor, George Eliot, Sir Edwin Arnold, David Cox, Sir Francis Galton, Burne-Jones, James Watt, Richard Baxter, and Cardinal Newman.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain was certainly born in Camberwell, but his finest work was done in Warwickshire, where he spent the greater part of his life.

Gallant little Sussex, however, not only claims to have produced the man who evolved the mangel-wurzel, but such men as Cobden and Shelley is also not a little proud of the fact that F. W. Lillywhite, one of the fathers of cricket, was a Sussex man. But the Channel Islands do not feel inclined to give way to any English county in regard to sporting champions, for it was from Jersey that those two wonderful golfers Ray and Vardon came.

Good old "Zummerzet" claims Henry Fielding, father of the English novel, who was born a few miles from Glastonbury. It also produced Roger Bacon, father of science; Chatterton, the boy poet; Sebastian Cabot, the great explorer; Sir Henry Irving, too, came from Somerset, as well as John Locke, one of the greatest philosophers of his time, not to mention John Bull, who was erroneously believed to be the author of "God Save the King," and who was a Somersetshire man and a notable scientist.

Nelson a Norfolk Man

Those pioneers of liberty, Coke, Walpole, and Tom Paine, as well as Nelson, Lord Cromer, and George Borrow, hailed from Norfolk; while Yorkshire is represented by the two famous explorers and pioneers, Captain Cook and Frobisher. William Wilberforce, too, was a Yorkshire man, while mention might also be made of Lord Hawke, the famous English admiral.

That Bob. Liquor Case

The prisoner, Redmond, of Bobcaygeon, who was implicated in the C.P.R. liquor smuggling between Toronto and the above village, came up for trial before County Magistrate F. D. Moore, K.C., at this morning's session of the police court. His worship granted the prisoner suspended sentence with certain conditions attached. Redmond was taken back to jail by Constable George Foster, where he will be held indefinitely, pending the trial of others, who are likewise supposed to be deep into the illegal transportation of the wet goods.

Gambling Case Dismissed.

The case against the proprietor of the Queen's Hotel for allowing gambling in his house on Sept. 18th, came up before Magistrate White last Monday. It was shown in the evidence that upon the invitation of a commercial man who was a guest of the hotel, several other travellers visited his room and engaged in a game of cards. The window being up, Constable McAvoy heard the noise and went up to investigate. The proprietor of the hotel knew nothing about the game, having retired before it started. Upon this evidence the Magistrate found that the proprietor of the house had no knowledge that a game was in progress and that his son was in the room to stop the game, which was his right and so dismissed the case.—Port Hope Guide.

CRUSTS IN THE NOSE, FREQUENT SNEEZING YOU HAVE CATARRH—A DISGUSTING DISEASE

RELIEF IN FIVE MINUTES—CERTAIN CURE FOLLOWS IF "CATARRHOZONE" IS USED.

Don't stay stuffed up with a sore nose, eyes running and breath bad.

Use Catarrhozone!

Take one breath through the inhaler—just one single breath and see how it clears out the nose, how it makes you breathe free and easy.

Relief from Catarrhozone is quick and effective—you don't have to wait all day to get it either.

No other treatment is like Catarrhozone or is able to drive catarrh so completely out of the system.

You don't take anything internally in using Catarrhozone—you don't run the chance of spoiling digestion or lessening appetite with a bad tasting medicine. Just breathe in that soothing piney vapor, so rich in healing, so full of power to cure every type of throat trouble, hoarseness, pain over the eyes, bronchitis and Catarrh.

Germs that may be lurking in the mouth, nose or throat, Catarrhozone will destroy them. In this way it prevents many an ill.

"I am never without Catarrhozone Inhaler," writes E. J. Jameson, of Huntington. "Use it for a minute and it stops a cold at its beginning. If the cold has a start, or if catarrh or a bad throat, you can easily cure it with Catarrhozone."

If suffering from throat droppings, running eyes, active nasal discharge, choked condition in the nostrils—remember Catarrhozone will quickly cure you. Get the large $1.00 outfit. It does the trick cure. Small size 50c; a sample size 25c. at all dealers everywhere.

REGULATIONS FOR THE RIFLE CLUB

For the information of those who intend to join the Rifle Club about to be formed it may be stated that the Militia Act lays down that there shall be two classes of Rifle Associations, "A" Militia, "B" Civilian. With regard to Civilian Rifle Clubs the Governor General in Council may make regulations for them with regard to the constitution, object, duties, business, and the furnishing of rifles and ammunition for the training and practise of persons not members of the Militia, that is to say, that these Civilian Rifle Clubs are under the jurisdiction of the Militia Department and in case of emergency the members instantly become members of the Militia and under the district officer commanding.

Rifle Clubs are to be established where it is considered in the interest of the force by the Minister of Militia.

The names of those appointed to administer the affairs of the Rifle Clubs must be submitted to the Minister.

Before any Rifle Association can be formed not less than 30 men over 18 and under 60 years of age, residents of the locality, must be enrolled and take an oath according to forms supplied.

The Club must never have less than 30 members or it will be disbanded.

The approval of the Minister is gazetted in the usual formal manner.

The Club affairs are subject to inspection.

A captain shall be appointed to every Civilian Association who shall with the committee manage its affairs.

A complete set of rules and regulations has been received by the federal member and will be handed to the Club on Monday evening.

A Home Recipe For Removing Wrinkles

Who will blame the modern woman for trying to look as young and attractive as she reasonably can? Why should she be placed at a disadvantage in numerous ways by wearing wrinkles, if she can avoid these hateful marks of advancing age? Few women, however, know what to do to effectually rid themselves of wrinkles or sagginess. Most of the advertised preparations are unsatisfactory and very expensive. But a very simple and harmless home remedy, which any woman can make, will work wonders where all the patent preparations fail.

Buy an ounce of powdered saxolite at any drug store. Dissolve the whole ounce in a half pint of witch hazel and use as a wash lotion. The results are practically instantaneous. Marked improvement is noticed immediately after the very first trial. Wrinkles and sagging are corrected and the face feels so refreshed and snug-like.

You Can Distinguish a Piano Made by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited, by Its Pure, Vibrant Singing Tone

The reasons for this are well known to those who are familiar with the structure of the instrument and with the strict methods of the Heintzman & Co. factory. . . . .

The Materials

Every piece of metal with the slightest flaw, every piece of wood imperfect in its grain or not thoroughly seasoned, is rejected—it is not tried out to see if it will do—it is not even given the benefit of a doubt.

The Workmen

Each workman, too, brings to his task skill of the highest order—and that skill is still further developed and kept to the highest possible standard by the rigid discipline for which the Heintzman & Co. Factory is well known.

Its durability and continued increase in the beauty of its tone as it ages have caused all world-great artists on their visit to Canada to use this piano exclusively. . . .

French And English Battleships Are Bombarding Austrian Fortified Positions—One Fort Dismantled

WHAT THE Y. M. C. A. IS DOING FOR VOLUNTEERS AT VALCARTIER

Splendid Work of This Association Heartily Endorsed by Col. Clegg, all Officers and the Montreal Press--Refreshments at a Shade Above Cost, and Games and Other Pastimes Provided--Apples Given Away Free for the Taking

A letter received by C. N. Meserve, General Secy. of the local Y.M.C.A. from Colonel E. B. Clegg, shows how the Association work is appreciated by the officers and men. Colonel Clegg also enclosed the following clipping from the Montreal Gazette.

The local association will devote the receipts from the city championship sports, Thanksgiving Day, to this work among our own soldiers under tent at Valcartier and elsewhere.

The local Y.M.C.A. has on file many letters of appreciation from other Peterboro soldiers.

Valcartier, Sept. 14, 1914.

"C. N. Meserve, Esq.,
Secy. Y.M.C.A.,
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

"In reply to your letter of the 9th inst., I beg to confirm my telegram of this date as follows: The Y.M.C.A. is doing a splendid work at Valcartier, a work that is praised and endorsed by the camp commandant and all officer. I had a conversation with the commandant this evening in regard to the work being done by the Y. M.C.A., and he is warm in its praises, and is prepared to make an official statement to your head quarters, should it be desired.

"I have also spoken to a number of the senior officers, and they are all of the same opinion.

"The detail of the work was taken up a few days ago by a press correspondent and I enclose you herewith a cutting of his report.

"Wishing you every success in your efforts. Believe me,

"Sincerely yours,
E. B. CLEGG."

STRONGLY ENDORSED BY MONTREAL PRESS

The Montreal Gazette has this to say of the commendable work of the Y.M.C.A. in camp:—

A magnificent work is being done here by the Y.M.C.A., whose activities have won for them governmental recognition. The institution has been allotted to a larger space than any civil organization on the field, and

Incompetent News Fakirs Expelled From War Zone

London, Sept. 26.—The threatened enforcement by the British war office of an even stricter censorship than has heretofore prevailed is the fault largely of British newspapers which have turned loose on the continent a veritable horde of men, each furnished with a high powered automobile and unlimited funds renewed from time to time as occasion demands by a travelling staff of cashiers bearing gold.

While a few of these men are fairly experienced and competent, the great majority of them have been gathered by the wayside, so to speak, as luck and opportunity serve, and dubbed "special correspondents." These hordes have proved perfect nuisances, both to the French and British military authorities, and have greatly increased the already existent and very strong prejudice of General Joffre and Field Marshall Sir John French again newspaper men of any kind or description. Most of them are utterly lagving in discretion and unscrupulous in their operation, and honest, hard-working newspaper men suffer therefrom.

The French godernment recently "roped in" quite a number of the horde and had them sent under escort to Tours, where most of them remain under parole not to leave the town. A careful and painstaking search is being made for others.

"We place ourselves on record as being strongly opposed to war, and express our utter abhorence of it. With confidence we look forward to the coming day when the prophecy of the "Kingdom will be fulfilled, that the nations of the world shall beat their swords into plough-shares and their spears into pruning hooks, neither shall they learn war any more. But this day "is not yet.

"To this end we express our appreciation of the enterprising self-sacrifice of those who are "on their way to represent us at the front. We urge our young men to enlist at once in local "Regiments, and older men to join Rifle Clubs, so that they may be ready at any time to obey "their country's call. We hold ourselves ready to personally co-operate in such a movement.

"We most heartily endorse the Patriotic Fund for the giving of help to the wives and dependents of our soldiers and for the alleviation of distress caused directly by the war. These "funds, in our judgment, require and are deserving of large and generous contributions. As to distribution, in the interests of the community the greatest care should be exercised to guard against pauperization and to foster and preserve that healthy and independent self-respect, which "should ever characterize all British Canadians."

Germans Counter Attacks Are Repulsed With Heavy Losses

Enemy is Active All Along the Line--No Decisive Engagement Yet--English Aviator Fought a German Taube Near Ostend, Smashed the Enemy's Machine and Killed its Crew--British Capture German Grain Boat and Take it a Prize into Falmouth

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The official press bureau this afternoon issued a statement reading as follows:—

"There has been much activity on the part of the enemy all along the line in France.

"Some heavy counter attacks have been repulsed, and a considerable loss has been inflicted on the enemy."

One Fortress Already Dismantled By Warship's Fire

ROME, Sept. 26.—(via London, 4.23 p.m.)—The fleets of Great Britain and France are to-day bombarding heavily all the fortified Austrian positions in the vicinity of Cattaro, in Dalmatia.

A wireless despatch from the commandant of the French fleet announces that the powerful Austrian fortress of Pelagos has been dismantled.

English Biplane Victor in Duel

OSTEND, via London, Sept. 27. To-day an English observer in a biplane chased a German in a Taube for several miles from this city, finally managing to down him, wrecking the machine and killing the official observer, and the pilot.

The British aviator rose higher than the German, and by virtue of the superior speed of his biplane managed to get directly over him and then riddled the German with the light automatic gun mounted on the machine.

British Capture German Grain Boat

FALMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 26.—The German ship "Ossa," of 1800 tons, bound from Portland, Oregon, for Ipswich, with a cargo of wheat and barley, was brought into this port to-day having been captured by a British warship.

The position of the allies is ever so much better than at the beginning of the war and again at the end of August.

Germany's position is now hopelessly bad; her advance toward Paris was stopped; her lines have been steadily retired on her base and system of communication; she is now fighting a desperate stand in all probability to allow of her rear guard and a large portion of the invading army to withdraw within the German frontier.

The spirit of the Allies glows with hope, with success, with the conviction in every soldier's heart that they will win and that they are fighting on the right side. The great bulk of civilized humanity is at least present in spirit with the allies; and this is a lot.

Fight as hard as they like, win where the they can, even capture Paris, and the Germans have only a worse future immediately ahead of them. The circumstances and the facts and the judgment of the people are against them.

So involved in disaster does the Kaiser feel himself to be that he is moving heaven and earth to make a case out for his double dealing, his murderous slaughter, his reliance on militarism as against common justice And he has all kinds of agents busy in the United States to help him.

The Press on the Rheims Cathedral Destruction

LEVEL OF HUNS.

"The destruction of the Cathedral at Rheims puts Germany again on the defensive as an exponent of the spirit of savagery in war. The ruin of that beautiful monument of mediaeval art is a piece of vandalism which reduces German military methods to the level of those of the Goths and the Huns. The cathedral stood for seven centuries unmolested by the many armies which have made northeastern France their battle ground. To destroy it wantonly would have seemed a sacrilege to the brutal soldiery of the dark ages, when war was at its worst. The crime of battering it to pieces was left to a nation which boasts that it has a mission to impose its "colture" on the rest of the world, and which describes the present war as a war on its part for the protection of the western European civilization against "the semi-barbarous Muscovite."—New York Tribune.

SURPASSED VANDALISM OF CENTURIES.

"Prussian militarism has surpassed in vandalism the record af centuries. Since the ruin of Parthenon no like deed has affronted the world as does this; and of the Parthenon the grandeur remains."—New York World.

ATTILA AND WILLIAM II.

"Louvain! Rheims! Even Attila, Kong of the Huns and Scourge of God, spared the historic city of Troyes and its treasures of art, when Troyes fell within the area of his military operations."—New York Sun.

WANTON ACT.

"This wanton act of the Krupp destroyers is in keeping with bomb dropping on sleeping non-combatants, the floating of mines to destroy fishing boats and passenger steamers, and the exaction of huge ransons "long held to be a method appropriate only for brigands and pirates."—New York Times.

AMERICAN AND NORWEGIAN BOATS CAUGHT COALING GERMAN CRUISER

Captured Off the West Indies and Taken Into S. Lucia to Await Disposition by a Prize Court--Cruiser Was the Karlsruhe and Escaped--Berlin Gets No News From the Campaign in France, In Sixteen Days Only Three Places Referred to

New York, Sept. 26.—Sir Courtenay Bennett, the British Consul General here, announced Lorenzo registered as a United States merchantman, and the Norwegian steamer Thor, had been captured by a British cruiser in the act of coaling the German cruiser Karlsruhe at sea and had been taken to St. Lucia to wait disposition by a prize court.

Sir Courtenay added that the German cruiser had made its escape

The two steamers were captured off the West Indies, he said.

GERMANY RECEIVES NO NEWS OF OUTSIDE WORLD

Berlin, Sept. 26.—The cutting of German submarine cables, the censorship and the exclusion of foreign newspapers from the empire have resulted in shutting out from Germany virtually all news of the outside world. For the past three days the Berlin newspapers have been carrying full descriptions of the architectural details of the Rheims Cathedral, while in the last sixteen days only three places have been specially mentioned in the government's war bulletin. These are Noyon, Chateau Brimont and Rheims.

KRUPP MAKING WAR MATERIAL FEVERISHLY

Edinburgh, Scotland, Sept. 26. — A Scotch woman who has returned here from Germany, where she has been staying with friends at Essen, relates that work is going on at the Krupp gun factory feverishly day and night. The gun and amunition departments alone are being operated, but these keep 46,000 men constantly employed.

This woman relates that foreign spies have been numerous, and that one day 14 Russians, dressed as women, were shot.

She says that food is abundant in Essen, and some of it is even cheaper than before the war

Germany's Trade Bill With States Drops $20,932,000

Washington, Sept. 26.—Some idea of the disastrous effect on the business of the United States caused by the European war is contained in the monthly statement of the foreign trade of the United States, issued today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Imports, it is shown, have fallen sharply during august, the month treated in the report, but the exports have suffered most.

During August the imports fell off approximately $8,000,000. One of the remarkable features of the report is found in the fact that last month the United States imported approximately $10,000,000 more of foodstuffs than during the same month of last year. The losses were almost entirely credited to materials for use in manufacturing or in manufacturers ready for sumption.

Exports of food stuffs met only a slight loss during this month, as compared with August, 1913. Manufacturers of all kinds were the heaviest sufferers, especially those manufactures ready for consumption which fell to less than half in value those offered to the world in August of last year. The total loss in the export trade was $77,000,000, the brunt being borne by manufacturers ready for consumption, which showed a decline of approximately $33,000,000.

The most startling statement in analyzing this slump in the export trade was the case of Germany, which in August, 1913, took from the United States goods to the value of $21,301,274, while in August of the present year her bill amounted to only $08,737? Other remarkable declines were Argentina from $5,000,000 to $900,000,000, Belgium from $9,000,000 to $400,-Australia from $3,000,000 to $1,900,000, while Brazil and China took less than half what they did in August of last year. Great Britain's demands on America was $6,000,000 less than during the same period last year.

Making Try for World's Trade

Washington, Sept. 26.—Preliminary steps for the capture of the world's trade were taken to-day by Secretary of Commerce Redfield, who announces the appointment of seven commercial attaches, who will serve at various United States embassies and legations throughout the world.

The attaches will devote their energies solely to the advancement of American commerce, leaving diplomacy severely alone.

BAD COMPLEXIONS PEELED OFF AT HOME

The girl with the poor complexion complains, "I have to touch up my cheeks. I am sallow and a sight and only my makeup saves me."

Now, as a matter of fact, more women spoil their good looks than improve them with cosmetics. The practice certainly is unnecessary, now that the virtues of ordinary mercolized wax as a beautifier have become known. It has been found that the wax has wonderful absorbent powers. It causes the faded or discolored scarf skin to flake off in minute, almost imperceptible particles, so gently, gradually, as to cause no inconvenience at all. In this way the old complexion is actually removed—likewise all fine lines, freckles, pimples, blotches, moth patches and other surface defects. A new complexion appears—a clear, smooth, youthful, healthy-hued skin such as no paint, powder or lotion can produce. Mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store (a convenient size package) is applied like cold cream.

How the Ant Salutes

Ants have long been known for their excessive industry, says The Family Herald and Weekly Star Montreal, but from a curious communication which has just appeared they seem to have surpassed all other insects by organizing an elaborate system of signalling. Professor Bugnion, who has recently investigated the habits of the white ant, reports that the "soldiers" of that species give warnings or encouraging signals by knocking with their jaws upon dry leaves, thereby emitting a crackling sound. Placing some of these ants on a big plate and covering it with paper, he found that the "soldiers" among the ants responded to his taps with a rustling, crackling sound.

Moreover, apart from this audible signalling, there appears to be some inaudible form of signal, for the professor asserts that the "soldier" ants salute the worker ants. To do this "the insect stands firmly on its legs with the head raised and the body slightly oblique, and shakes itself for an instant with a convulsive shudder. This seems to mean something."

CARRIER PIGEONS

Scientific Breeding of Birds Followed With Considerable Interest

The scientific breeding of carrier pigeons in France received a great impulse from their practical utility during the siege of Paris, and this industry has since been followed with much interest. While the siege was in progress, 363 carriers were sent out in balloons, of which 362 were liberated and 73 returned safely. They bore messages photographed microscopically on collodion, which were enclosed in goose quills attached to a silk thread to the upper part of the tail feathers. The success of these experiments led to the organistion in France of a military pigeon system. The minister of war maintains control over all the carrier pigeons in the country.

Careful attention is given to the feeding of birds destined for racers. Their usual diet is wheat, but as a contest approaches they are fed on small dried beans and maize, and are given water containing iron. Just before a race some amateurs give their birds beechnuts and buckwheat which are believed to impart special strength for the flight. The training of the young birds begins when they are three or four months old. They are placed in a basket, taken a mile or so from home, and liberated. A few days later they are again transported, usually in the same direction, but twice as far and so on in successively longer stages, until they are able to fly homeward 100 miles or more. At the age of five months they can fly 300 or 250 miles in ten hours. They are not at their best, however, until the age of four or five years, when they can easily cover 600 or 700 miles. The average velocity of a good carrier is twenty-seven to thirty miles an hour, although an instance is on record where a bird attained a speed of seventy-five miles an hour. The average height in flying is 450 to 500 feet. The price of a carrier at Havre varies from $3.80 for an ordinary subject, to $250 or even more for a prize-winner in a race.

A NATURE TALK

How Ants Find Their Way to and From Nests

Not only naturalists, but everyone, who has watched ants has wondered how they find their way to and from their nests. A French naturalist, M. Cornets, who watched ants in Algeria, tells the results of his observations. The ant, he says, in its outward journey, proceeds throughout in the direction initially chosen; on its return the insect places its body at the same angle, and walks in the opposite direction. The body of the ant would, therefore, act as a kind of compass needle. If an ant is caught at the nest and transported to a point some yards distant the insect is quite incapable of finding its way back. It runs around on the ground until it accidentally comes across the entrance to the burrow. The case is quite different if an ant is allowed to find its way to a distance unmolested. On leaving the nest it places itself in a certain direction, and holds the same, no matter what obstacles it may meet with en route, and not matter what side tracks it may occasionally strike in order to seize some article of food or of structural value for its nest. The return is effected directly, rapidly, and without hesitation, even if the ground covered has been swept in order to change its nature. The return is obviously determined completely by the outward trip, and an ant which has left its nest on a voyage of exploration finds its way back just because it has made the outward journey.

LOANED SERMONS

A Scathing Criticism by a Carlisle Bishop

Men who preached merely borrowed sermons, said the Bishop of Carlisle, at the Islington Clerical Meeting, were in grave peril, as all borrowers were, of ultimately becoming bankrupt. Thought-lenders were in some ways almost as ruinous as money-lenders. It was hard to imagine any real teacher depending much on borrowed sermons. There might be occasions of fatigue or overpressure which made borrowing inevitable, but if they desired to preach with power their sermons must be their own and well thought out. One reason why some churches were empty was because the teachings of their pulpits were secondhand, antiquated, innutritious, sterile. They had no living touch with the current age, its thoughts, its wants, its ideals. The Bishop added that he was wholly against packing off lads and youths into seminaries until they had been trained to think freely and independently, to shun labels and shibboleths schools and factions. Still greater and better work lay before theological colleges when they had strengthened their status and modernized their curricula.

WITH THE ESKIMO

Twenty Years of Mission Work Brought Good Results

"Mission Work Among the Eskimo" was the theme of an interesting illustrated lecture by Rev. C. E. Whittaker who took his audience on a pictorial tour of the Arctic region, starting at Athabasca Landing, proceeding north to St. Matthew's Anglican Church at Fort McPherson, the most northerly church of the British Empire, being 100 miles within the Arctic Circle. Views were shown depicting the habits and customs of the Eskimo and the progress of civilization among them. Referring to certain strictures that have been made and the aspersions cast on the work of missions in the Far North by some individuals, the lecturer was able to prove these were not only uncharitable, but unfounded. Twenty years of mission work among the Eskimo had been productive of great beneficial results. When the church sent the first missionaries to the Eskimo those people had every mark and every habit of barbarism. Those conditions had been changed. Instead of living in snow houses, as formerly, most of them now lived in huts built on hygienic principles. The missionaries did not attempt to change any habits of the Eskimos that were not hurtful to their character. Any evil habits they had contracted were due to the influence of certain commercial adventurers, whose regard for the ten commandments was not very strong. That class of people were enemies to religion and morality wherever they went. To prevent any of the "adventurer" class from contaminating the 'Blonde Eskimos'" the Church proposed to establish a mission among them at the earliest possible moment.

COOKING AS A REFUGE

A well known Parisian, a club man and sportsman, disappeared from the boulevards and its diversions and was found in a monastery, where he was acting as cook. He was tired of the old life, he says. No other reason. Let us place our emphasis less on the monastery than on its kitchen. Other French noblemen have retired to monasteries, but few have taken an active hand in the cooking. Very likely this particular count, only too well aware of the emptiness and unsatisfactoriness of his earlier life, yearned to turn his hand to something practical and useful. Being a French count, he turned his hand to cooking. There is nothing more practical and useful than that. There is nothing which, when well done, is capable of yielding a more general satisfaction all round. Every man should be able to cook a little, and should cultivate appreciation and respect for good cooking by others. Of course there drawbacks to such a career. Few cooks can enjoy their own cooking and few get a due measure of praise for their work, however well done. Perhaps the count is an exception. Since he has kept his "place" two years, he may enjoy his work as an artist if not as a gourmet, and he may have been heartened now and then, by a word of approbation from the brethren he serves. Such a word goes well in any kitchen.

Bored Holes in Skull

One of the most remarkable and heroic experiments of surgery ever attempted went to naught when a patient at St. Mary's Hospital, Philadelphia, died from the effects of the operation made in an effort to save him from the ravages of paresis.

Physicians at the hospital who found the patient hopelessly afflicted bored a series of holes in his skull and injected a serum of salvarsan. This is the one method known to medicine by which the disease may be checked. Salvarsan is the compound used in the most dangerous of all blood diseases. The physicians so far have made no report on the case. It is said the patient did not revive sufficiently from the shock because of previously weakened vitality.

With the Habitants

In the province of Quebec, as one can see from reading Doctor Drummond's charming book, "The Habitant," seldom a night passes, no matter how stormy, without 15 to 20 neighbors gathering together at one of the French farm houses, which are strung close together for 100 miles along the banks of the St. Lawrence where, by the wise orders of Louis Fourteenth, the farms were divided into narrow strips two acres wide and a mile and a half long. It is a pity that in surveying the Great Empire of the West that a similar plan has not been followed, for then there would have been a house every 400 feet on each side of the railroad on the division line, and a great comfort and convenience in time of sickness while a great joy in time of health.

Put on the Door of Vice the House-Owner's Name

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

[redacted]

Winifred Black

DR. JENKIN LLOYD JONES wants to have all property labelled with the owner's name—and then see what will happen.

"Put a brass doorplate with the owner's full name on it, on every house he owns, and things will begin to occur," says Dr. Lloyd Jones.

"Seventy-five per cent of the houses rented for saloons and other kindred purposes in Chicago are owned by respectable widows. Also," says Dr. Jones, "many of the other 25 per cent. are owned by people who would turn tail at the idea of going to the theatre on Sunday, or playing an innocent game of golf on the afternoon of the Sabbath.

"If a man is ashamed of his house and the use to which that house is put—let him sell it—or—let him keep his name on the door.

"No, I am not joking; I was never more serious in my life. I am tired of hypocrisy—tired of pretence—tired of the shifting of responsibility. I want to see some of the people who are to blame for some of the worst conditions in any city take some of that blame and do the best they can with it."

Good, practical idea, isn't it? Well, it comes from a good, practical man.

I wonder what would happen if they should carry out the door plate idea in Chicago—or anywhere else? I'd like to be the[redacted] hours that those doorplates went up. What a rushing bus[redacted]steamship companies would do in tickets. And I'm afraid you couldn't get a drawing room in a Pullman car running out of that town for love nor money nor flattery nor anything there is that's human.

The Vice Above.

Wouldn't it be fun to see all the hurrying and scurrying, and to listen to all the excusings and apologizings and denyings?

"I hadn't the faintest idea—if I had ever suspected! Why, the very idea—I don't see how they ever made such a mistake! Me make my income in any such way as that! Why I'm president of the White Ribbon Club in my church!"

"And I have a dear little daughter—she's at one of the finest schools in the country; I've got to get her abroad, some way, before she gets a hint of this—she'd die of mortification. How could they bring such a blot upon her name—those other girls—the ones who were dragged down there—where my name is on the door! What are they to me—they are just creatures of the streets. Why should I be held responsible because they can't behave themselves?

"Why do I rent my property for such a purpose if I do not approve it? Well, I have to live—everything costs so much, too, and there's my son to be sent to college and my daughter to bring out in society. What do people expect me to do, live in a flat somewhere just to please these doorplate cranks? Why, they haven't any respect for any one any more; isn't it dreadful? Isn't it appalling what a hideous and ungrateful world we live in!"

Can't you hear them—all the little cowardly souls that never do anything right—if it takes courage and self-denial and honesty to do it? Can't you see them—all the smug hypocrites, all the self-satisfied Pharisees hurrying and scurrying to get away from the plain, simple truth?

Isn't it Holmes who tells about the time that he sat in a green meadow and watched the flowers blossoming in the grass? A meadow lark sat on a bush by the path and whistled, and there was a nest in the grass, and in the nest were speckled eggs, and the earth was all strewn with stars, in the shape of flowers, and all the air was perfumed and all the world was spring.

And he who sat in the grass lifted a flat stone that had fallen there, and lo, the earth was gray with thousands of little slugs and worms and insects which lived under the flat stone in the dark and the dankness.

The Goths Below.

"So it is when we lift the stones of a great error—what a scurrying there is of all the little insects which bred to life under the stone," says Holmes—or something like it.

I keep thinking of the stone in the meadow and of the little fat, white slugs that fattened under the weight of its secrecy.

"No one sees us here under the stone—no one can find us—how lucky we are to live in such security"—and all at once some meddler lifts the stone, and the sun pours in and the dank ground begins to dry. Oh—how they scurry and hurry and wriggle and twist—the fat white worms who thought the great stone would hide them forever!

What a meddlesome person you are, Jenkin Lloyd Jones, never content to let well enough alone—what is it to you that some few fat-sided ones batten and grow fat on the vices of the unfortunate?

Is it any of your business, pray, who it is that is getting rich on the proceeds of misery and despair?

What business is it of yours who owned the house where that young girl who killed herself was brought to degradation? Don't you know that the people who lived there pay an enormous rent—three times what the house would be worth in any other part of town—you couldn't expect the owners to give up such an income as that, [redacted]

No—you don't expect that—you just a[redacted] take their share of the blame, just as they took their share, and more than their share, of the profits.

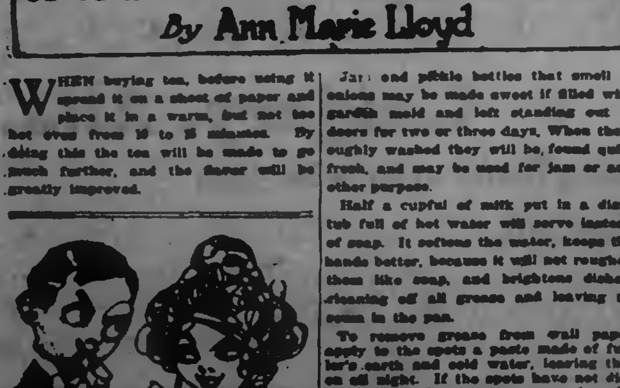
Make them put their name on the doorplate of that house? There, there, don't say another word. You're mad, Dr. Jones, stark, staring, raving mad—what else can you be and cherish such a notion as that?

How dare you try to lift the stone—Jenkin Lloyd Jones—and let in the light on the starved earth beneath! Don't you care at all what is going to become of the fat white grubs who live under it?

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

WHEN buying tea, before using it spread it on a sheet of paper and place it in a warm, but not too hot oven from 10 to 15 minutes. By doing this the tea will be made to go much further, and the flavor will be greatly improved.



Fashion Hints.

He—I'm afraid I'll be mistaken for a waiter.

She—When anyone looks doubtfully at you put your hands in your pockets.

Jars and pickle bottles that smell of onions may be made sweet if filled with garden mold and left standing out of doors for two or three days. When thoroughly washed they will be found quite fresh, and may be used for jam or any other purpose.

Half a cupful of milk put in a dish-tub full of hot water will serve instead of soap. It softens the water, keeps the hands better, because it will not roughen them like soap, and brightens dishes, cleaning off all grease and leaving no scum in the pan.

To remove grease from wall paper apply to the spots a paste made of fuller's earth and cold water, leaving this on all night. If the spots have not disappeared in the morning a second application will usually be found efficacious. It is well to take grease marks out of paper directly they are made.

Fasten a piece of tape or string to the end of your scrubbing brush so that when finished with, it can be hung up and allowed to drain, instead of the water soaking into the back and loosening the bristles and making them soft. For the same reason, do not leave the brush in the pail of water when the floor is being washed.

CUPID'S ADVENTURE : : By Michelson

THOUGH he does so many and such extraordinary things, Cupid is by no means a reckless fellow. O, no! He plays safe for LOVE, Cupid does. Don't be confused by the kind of thing that is often done in his name. The very fact that Love lasts—when it really is Love—ought to suggest that Cupid dodges strictly desperate chances. Notice that he is still on the job.

Thus he hates to be trifled with. Surf and sentiment may sometimes go together, but toying with love in the breakers is a hazardous matter. The sea is hazardous enough. Don't make the situation too complicated. Love has joined in many a sea rescue. But that's another game. Let HIM decide when to play it.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

Mary Gets the Money.

[redacted]

LEONA DALRYMPLE

BUYING clothes on the instalment plan! It was new to me, and for the first time I realized the horrible cunning of those clothing sharks who play up the vanity of women.

Since my wife made her confession I have learned that there are places of this sort in every city, where silly women may buy finery that they cannot afford, and pay for it in small instalments. That they pay many dollars over the real value of things, they do not seem to realize. One fact stands prominently forth. They may sport that spectacular finery which they love, and the man who puts up for it does not suspect how insidiously he is being bled by the wife of his heart.

"A dollar a week!" I blurted to Mary. "That's utterly new to me."

"And such a nice man!" gushed Mary, mistaking my dazed incredulity for indifference. "He does treat me with such respect and deference. Indeed, one would think I was some great lady when I sweep into his store. Everybody jumps to wait on me, and they show me the best of everything. Always the best, Peter, never anything shoddy. It's really quite a tribute to my appearance, don't you think so?"

"It's a game!" I said. "Fall down on your instalments once and see how deferentially he'll treat you. You'll find a claw under the velvet then, my lady."

And then—in a bewildering flash of indignation—I wondered where my wife got the money to pay her instalments.

"Mary," I said, "even yet I don't think this situation is fully explained. There hasn't been any money left to speak of since we adopted our new plan of paying bills. Where under heaven do you get the money to pay your instalments?"

Mary began to cry.

"If you don't borrow it from your mother," I insisted, "you must get it somewhere else."

I saw Mary glance furtively at me through her tears. I did not suffer my face to relent one iota of its sternness, for I realized that I was face to face with a new problem.

"You never seemed to notice anything," Mary said after a while. "I—I didn't suppose you'd notice I was getting new clothes—and oh! Peter"

"Yes," said I patiently, "you were to tell me where you get the money to pay the instalments."

Mary's wonderful eyes suddenly flashed defiance.

"Well, I have to have money, don't I?" she said.

"You have to have money," I agreed, "but also if you're going to have it, you have to economize and save it."

"I—I don't know how to economize. I—I simply can't do it."

"I'm still waiting to hear," I hinted, and the blood was pumping so violently through my veins that my temples throbbed horribly and my head ached.

"I—I get the grocer to give me money," burst forth Mary with a wild spasm of sobbing, "and—and then he puts a few extra pounds of coffee and tea and butter on the bill—he—he gives me a good deal that way—and——"

"Mary!" I cried, so hurt and horrified that I felt the color leaving my face. "You can't mean it!"

"I—I do," sobbed Mary. "Mrs. Patterson told me about it. She does the very same thing, and—and, then, whenever Mrs. Watkins wanted anything from the drug store—I—I had it put on our bill and she paid me for it—and—and that way I had quite a little money all month. Oh, Peter, don't look so white and terrible. You scare me dreadfully. I—I had to have money. I—I had to have clothes. I—I had to have paints and things for my painting lessons. What else was I to do?"

I felt sick and discouraged.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why You Eat Energy Rather Than Mere Food

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. [redacted]

IF you eat to live, rather than live to eat, you should know how to augment your health, strength, and, yes, even your reservoir of reserve funds. "Every research," says Athenaeus, "which is guided by principles of nature, fixes its ultimate aim entirely upon the gratification of the stomach."

"The discovery of a new dish," said Brillat-Savarin, in his Physiology of Gout, "does more for the happiness of man than the discovery of a new star." Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are. Burton, too, in his Anatomy of Melancholy, says as much valor is to be found in fasting as in fighting, and some of your city captains and carpet knights will make this good and prove it.

Victuals serve several ends to man. They afford growth and equilibrium to the living textiles. They serve as a defense against dangers and disease. They evolve energy, vigor, blood and heat. The mere elegance or tang that comes to the palate from provender of one kind or another has little to do with its sustaining value.

Food makes for the upkeep of your every little movement as well as for your very breath. Indeed, your teeth could not chew, your saliva could not flow, your esophagus could not swallow and your stomach itself could not digest were it not for the very viands which you engulf.

Much more than muscular effort, however, is necessary from the victuals you swallow. The tissues need new growth and repair. Many of the choicest provisions, much of nature's best sustenance is woefully wanting in tissue creative capacity. Only albuminous foods—proteins with nitrogen in them—are able to perform this every day miracle, to wit, the construction of sinews, brawn, tendons, ligaments, blood and bone.

Save in the matter of a need for new tissues—a requisite of youth, vitality and perennial muscular waste—there is little need for such as have meat and strange foods. Work-making foods, those which yield force and energy, are independent of tissue-building proteins, sugars, starches, oils, fats, water and minerals. Of these various aliments in the average individual there is a quarter of a pound of sugar and starch, nearly 30 pounds of meat and albumens, 11 pounds of salty minerals, 98 pounds of water, five pounds of fats and oils.

Since as yet there is not one satisfactory unit of work to stand for what a grain of food can do, the unit of heat called a calorie is taken instead. One grain of starch or sugar or meat or legumin, or egg albumen or gluten yields a little over four of these units. Oils and fats in equal amounts yield nearly nine and a half such units.

Human pasturage, such as meat, milk and cheese have an abundance of food units of this kind, because they contain all sorts and conditions of edible chemicals. A pint of milk, or a pound of milk gives something over 300 units of heat, while cheese of the same weight yields more than seven times as much. Of course, in the stomach possibly little more than three-quarters of this is absorbed into the tissues as usable material.

Even when you sleep you lose in breathing and heart pulsations about 65 units of heat each hour. When you sit in your easy chair you lose a hundred units each hour. Thus for eight sleeping hours you must equip yourself with a reserve of something between 500 and 600 units. As for a hard worker's day of toil, between 3000 and 4000 units are necessary.

Therefore, what you really eat is not merely food but energy.

Answers to Health Questions

M. W.—Am troubled with superfluous hair on face.

Try any of the sulphide depilatories or the electric needle.

SUFFERER—Have constant burning in my head. Am very dizzy. What can I do for it? I am 60 years old.

Live on lumps of sugar and milk, and eat nothing else but fruit juices for two weeks. You eat too much for your age.

B. S. P.—What would be a proper diet for an extremely weak stomach?

The less you eat the better. Never eat anything after supper. Take charcoal and oxide of magnesia in unlimited quantities.

M. B.—Am troubled with sneezing. I catch cold in winter and summer. Nasal passages and throat become clogged, and, sometimes, I can't talk plain. I cough a good deal. What is a remedy?

A physical examination is necessary in your case. Both your chest and your upper air chambers should be overhauled by two different specialists.

P. W.—Am a young man. Always had rosy cheeks and clear complexion until I started smoking cigarettes. Then complexion changed to brownish color. Gave up smoking, but cannot regain my clear, rosy complexion. What would you advise?

If you will now keep to the green fields, in the sunlight and open country, eat green vegetables, and otherwise attend to your sleep, bathing and toilet, your rosy cheeks will soon return.

Bathing and Your Finger Nails

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of woman."

LUCREZIA BORI

IF the nails are not carefully watched and cared for in these outdoor months they will become hard, brittle and ugly. During the days at the seashore or lake the nails grow very dry and they need a little dab of cold cream each night to soften the flesh at the base of each nail. Before you start manicuring your nails the hands should be soaked in a bowl of warm water mixed with glycerine and a few drops of toilet water. Twenty minutes is not too long for them to lie in the water, and after drying and a little cold cream has been added, any coating of superfluous flesh should be pushed back in its place.

After the flesh has been pushed back so that the half-moons show the hands should be washed again in warm suds. A tiny particle of nail rouge may with advantage be touched to each finger, and the coloring matter rubbed with a good buffer until the nails are pretty and pink. By rubbing one of the little white manicure powder cakes across the palm of the hand and passing the fingers over it with a swift motion, the nails gain a fine polish and make the fingers appear as if tipped by small window panes.

Oatmeal is excellent for softening and whitening the hands. Mix some finely powdered oatmeal with water and spread on the skin in a paste. As it dries rub it off in flakes, removing the last traces with lukewarm water. An oatmeal bag may serve the purpose if one does not care to rub the flakes directly on the hands. Pour some of the raw oatmeal into a silk handkerchief, tie the four ends together at the centre and rub the bag over the hands when they are washed. The skin will become creamy white if the oatmeal treatment is faithfully followed.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

There is a young man in the town who has just got a divorce from his deceitful wife. As far as I can hear the fault was all in his wife.

He is a fellow of about 24 or 25 and exceptionally good looking. Just lately he has been speaking and acting as though he might like to be in my company. Should I take up with this man? "ANXIOUS."

HOW do you know that the fault is all in his wife, dear child; has he told you so?

There are always two sides to a story, you know, and I should certainly like to hear the other side, if I were you.

Haven't you any brothers who can hear it for you? It isn't quite the thing for a young girl to pay too much attention to such affairs, and what on earth do you mean, dear child, by saying you want to "take up" with the man?

Do you mean that you want to marry him, or that you just want him for a friend? You don't have to marry every man who's nice to you, you know—did you ever think of that?

I should be a little careful in this particular case if I were you.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

REGULATIONS FOR THE RIFLE CLUB

For the information of those who intend to join the Rifle Club about to be formed it may be stated that the Militia Act lays down that there shall be two classes of Rifle Associations, "A" Militia, "B" Civilian. With regard to Civilian Rifle Clubs the Governor General in Council may make regulations for them with regard to the constitution, object, duties, business, and the furnishing of rifles and ammunition for the training and practise of persons not members of the Militia, that is to say, that these Civilian Rifle Clubs are under the jurisdiction of the Militia Department, and in case of emergency the members instantly become members of the Militia and under the district officer commanding.

Rifle Clubs are to be established where it is considered in the interest of the force by the Minister of Militia.

The names of those appointed to administer the affairs of the Rifle Clubs must be submitted to the Minister.

Before any Rifle Association can be formed not less than 30 men over 18 and under 60 years of age, residents of the locality, must be enrolled and take an oath according to forms supplied.

The Club must never have less than 30 members or it will be disbanded.

The approval of the Minister is granted in the usual formal manner.

The Club affairs are subject to inspection.

A captain shall be appointed to every Civilian Association who shall with the committee manage its affairs.

A complete set of rules and regulations has been received by the federal member and will be handed to the Club on Monday evening.

Survivors From Naval Disaster May Leave Holland

London, Sept. 25.—It is announced officially from The Hague that the British survivors of the cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue, lost in the North Sea, who are at present being held by the Netherlands Government, will be released and sent home. Their interment is contrary to The Hague Convention.

Here Is Law on the Case.

In a despatch from Amsterdam the correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company says that the following semi-official statement has been received there from The Hague:

The international agreements, according to which there can be no interning of rescued British sailors were framed at the Peace Conference of 1907. Generally, if the battle (the loss of three British cruisers in the North Sea) had been fought inside Dutch territorial waters, would the Dutch be authorized to intern the survivors? Our Duty to Belgium

Montreal honored herself in giving enthusiastic welcome and entertainment to distinguished representatives of Belgium. In recent times of stress, the Belgian people admirably led by their sovereign King Albert, have given proof of the possession of all those qualities of courage and integrity and devotion to principle which humanity admires.

For a century it has been the happy position of Great Britain to have her foreign policy as regards the European continent march side by side with that of Belgium. Considerations of national interest, however, evoke no stronger feelings than arise from the admiration and respect Britons have entertained for the little buffer Kingdom of Europe which, as all well-informed Britons have known, was to stand some day between the barborous onslaught of Germany and peaceful Christian civilization. The test came a few short weeks ago, and Belgium met it in the spirit of her history, the spirit which moved Julius Caesar to laud the Belgians as the bravest of all his foes.

The feeling which all neutral nations have expressed in admiration for men of this kind is ours with peculiar pride, because, in this fight, Belgium turns for sympathy in her great suffering and support in her heroic fight. Canada, then, with Great Britain, would be wanting in the very qualities with which Belgium has thrilled the world if she did not respond with all her energy and all her resources to this appeal.

Sentiment has a place in our part, but the practical side of our duty to Belgium must not be forgotten. "Canada can help," said one of the delegates, "for we need everything that a ruined nation can need." If ever a nation chose ruin rather than dishonor, that nation is Belgium; if ever a nation deserved well of civilization, that nation is Belgium. This visit of a Belgian delegation has served to remind Canadians that they must remember Belgium is meeting the demands of sacrifice in the present crisis. As we respond to Belgium's appeal, we shall prove ourselves worthy of her glory.

The Disillusion

The same revelation which shows a pacifist that he has been wrong should show him that those who have been fighting him have been doing patriotic service. He should find it easy, therefore, to forget old wounds.

To err is human. It is not to be contended that those who believed before the present war, that the time had come when they could safely advocate disarmament were traitors to the country, or even disloyal; their error was an error of judgment. That is evident because, amongst them, were some of the best and most respected citizens of the country. They failed to interpret correctly the signs of the times. In them a creditable sentiment was so strong that it bewitched their reason, temporarily.

At the same time British pacifists must realize that Britons, engaged in a terrible war, are safe only because pacifists were not taken seriously in the authoritative and responsible circles to which they addressed their argument. If we are sometimes uneasy, these days, with the ebb and flow of the tide of advantage, we would surely be in continual terror if our pacifists had gained their point. Also, we would be dishonored amongst the nations for the failing to come to the help of Belgium as well as the allies of the Triple Entente. We would have committed national suicide and internation murder.

The pacifist should realize that those who were cold-blooded enough to be able to regard the future as it stretched before their country, were actuated by motives as high as pacifist motives, in fighting pacifism. Wild charges that all who advocated national defence were in the pay of an armament trust were, in the light of the revelation, undeserved to say the least.

From the experience of recent times, pacifists may well gain a greater respect for the men in public places of responsibility and human beings generally. It is impossible for any organization or society or a set of these to "corner" the sympathy and horror for bloodshed which characterize a whole nation of thinking people. The name "war-mongers" no longer fits those who think war may come.

Good-Bye, Old Backache Nerviline Will Fix You!

Stiffness Is Rubbed Right Out; Every Sign of Pain Disappears.

Gee whiz—think of it!

No more stomach dosing necessary to cure your lame back.

Every trace of lameness, every bit of stiffness, every sign of weakness in the back's muscles can be rubbed away for all time to come by good old "Nerviline."

No other liniment can do the work so quickly, can penetrate so deeply, can bring ease and comfort to the back-weary sufferer as Nerviline invariably does.

Backache isn't the only malady Nerviline is quick to cure. For lumbago or sciatica you would go far to find relief so speedy as Nerviline gives. For chronic rheumatism there are pain-destroying properties in Nerviline that give it first rank. The way it limbers up a stiff joint and takes soreness out of strained or rheumatic muscles is simply a wonder.

If you have an ache or a pain anywhere, ifyou have a sore back, a stiff neck, a stiff joint, a strained muscle—if you have lumbago, congested chest or sore throat, just try Nerviline. Rub it on plentifully—it won't blister, it can't do anything but cure you quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, but you can, from any dealer, also get the 25c. small size of Nerviline, the king of all pain-relieving remedies.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $60,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

SHELTER-BELTS AND CROPS

Influence of Wind-breaks on Crop Growth on Prairies

It has been estimated by Dr. Oscar Bernbeck, a German professor of agriculture, that a moderate wind, when blowing without obstruction, may lessen the yield of exposed land more than half. In Canada the prairie farmer realizes the value of shelter-belts and trees to break winds which sweep across the prairie. As density and height both influence the effectiveness of the wind-break, it should be made at least four rods wide and trees making good height growth should be chosen, such as the cottonwood or white willow, or, among the evergreens, the white spruce, Scotch pine or tamarack. In theory, deep-rooted, narrow-crowned species should be chosen as it has been found that the drying effect of tree roots on the soil is negligible, and the injury done close to the trees by shading can be avoided by growing there shade-enduring crops, such as corn or alfalfa.

Alfalfa is the cheapest and best feed for beef cattle.

Alfalfa insures larger yields from the crops that follow.

Girl at the Plough

At Wivelsfield, near Haywards Heath, a young girl, named Lily Burtenshaw, took to ploughing. She is seventeen years of age, and her rosy cheeks indicate that life in the open agrees with her. She can drive a plough as straight as a man, and can cut and bind corn and pull mangels. Her employer admits she is more use on the land than many lads who find employment there.

Wireless on a Train

News bulletins taken by wireless were displayed on a moving train, when passengers on the Lackawanna Railroad were astonished to see the latest foreign and home despatches spread before their eyes as they were being whirled along at sixty miles an hour. The "Scranton Times" sent 250 words from the Lackawanna wireless station to the moving train, the messages dealing with internal and external affairs. A few days previously the same railway company successfully experimented with the transmission by wireless of running orders to a train staff.

Sea birds, sensitive to pending changes in the weather, fly inland at the approach of stormy weather in quest of food.

Eggs of different species of birds greatly differ in shape, but the yolks are invariably spherical.

HUMAN FREAKS PUZZLE DOCTORS

English Boy Writes Upside Down—German Lad Sees Well Only in the Dark

Doctors were recently much interested in the case of Eddie Burn, a five-year-old school boy of Chester-le-Street, Durham, England. The lad has one of the most wonderful pairs of eyes ever set in a human head. While writing he not only unwittingly reverses his letters, but writes from right to left, and as a result his work appears as ordinary handwriting would be reflected by a mirror. It is thought that some defect in the nerve centres prevents young Burn's brain from carrying out its proper task. In persons of normal vision objects are reflected on the retina (the membranes at the back of the eye) upside down, but the brain translates the vision right side up. In the case of Burn the brain refuses to reverse the vision.

During recent years several children have been discovered who possess peculiar eyes. Lionel Brett, of Massachusetts, and a young girl of Narbonne were both found by oculists to have eyes which were capable of penetrating substances in the same fashion as the X-rays, while a German lad named Schaefer, although he was practically blind in the daytime, had wonderful keenness of sight in the darkness of the night and could pick up pins from the floor of a pitch-dark room.

All Have Two Hearts

It was reported that a doctor at Easton, Pennsylvania, had discovered a family of four, composed of mother and three children, each of which has two hearts. The medico was called to attend one of the children for chicken-pox, and, much to his astonishment discovered a heart beating on the child's right side as well as the left. This led him to examine the two other children and the mother, with a similar result. This remarkable two-hearted family bear the name of Perkins, the children being Anna, Allen and Doris, aged thirteen, eleven and four respectively. It is imagined that the hearts of the mother and her three children grew in two parts. That is to say the component parts of the organs did not unite the right ventricle of each heart (the chamber which receives the blood from the auricle and veins) and the right auricle growing on the right side of the body, and the left ventricle and the left auricle on the left.

A Movable Heart

A man named Hermann, of Hungary, has an extraordinary heart. He has the strange power of dislocating the organ and moving it from its proper position on the left side of the body to the right, keeping it there for several minutes at a time, while Professor von Bergmann declared that he knew a man who has such power over his muscles that he could move each of them as he pleased, and in this way he was not only able to move his heart from side to side, but stop his pulse from beating.

Miss Tardo, who was born on the Island of Trinidad about forty years ago, was devoid of physical feeling, and medical men were of the opinion that there was no connection between the sensory and motor nerves in her body. She was proof against poison and disease, and she could control the beating of her heart, stopping it at will and permitting it to beat again.

There is a woman living in Spain who has a pair of horns, five inches long, on her head. The first indication of the horns were gatherings above the woman's ears, which afterwards grew into hard, fleshy lumps. At the end of four years from the commencement of the disease a pair of horns made their appearance.

"SIXTY YEARS A QUEEN"

TO THE CANADIAN PUBLIC:

This subject is the main incidents in the life of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. Queen Victoria's life teems with incidents which are engraven upon the hearts of those who remember her, and there it is with reverence that this pictorial epitome has been produced, and enacted by those to whom have been given the onerous work of portrayal. The scenes which have been selected are the most important events of this most important reign, starting as they do from the death of William the Fourth, the notification of which is conveyed to the young Queen by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and Lord Conyngham; the Queen's first council; her first review, showing the veterans, led by the famous Duke of Wellington, and then her Coronation, which is positively the most wonderfully reproduced scene in the history of fildom.

Reel two shows the various manners employed throughout the Empire in those days to celebrate the event; the first state ball; the engagement and marriage of the Queen; the first mail and telegraph, and the first election of the Victorian era

The important scenes in reel three show the christening of the Prince of Wales; the attempt on the Queen's life; the first family gathering at Osborne; the opening of the International Exhibition; the discovery of gold in Australia; the Queen's adieu to her Crimean troops, and the attack at Sebastopol.

Part Four shows us the hospital at Scutari; Her Majesty receiving her wounded sor wounded soldiers and presenting Crimean medals; Christmas at Windsor; the blowing up of Cashmere Gate; presentation of the Victoria Cross; the instituting of the Queen's price; concluding with the saddest event in the life of Her Majesty, the death of her beloved husband and Consort, Prince Albert.

In part five we are shown the wedding of the Prince of Wales; Dr. Livingstone being presented to the Queen; the opening of Parliament; the Queens message to Lincoln; Her Majesty keeping Hallowe'en; the presentation to Charles Dickens, and a touching scene —one of the many of Her Majesty's career, the Queen taking tea with one of her oldest tenants.

Part six deals with the illness of the Prince of Wales and Thanksgiving services on his recovery; Disraeli, Gladstone, Bright and Salisbury, purchasing the Suez Canal; the Queen assuming the title of Empress of India; the Durbar at India; the reception of General Gordon, his headquarters and finally his death.

Part seven again brings us back to old Westminster to the Queen's Jubilee, a scene that has been pronounced by eye witnesses as perfect in every detail; scenes from the South African war; Her Majesty's last visit to Netley; the evening of the Queen's days.

Rescue Frozen Birds

The monks of St. Bernard's monastery in the Alps have lately been extending to birds the hospitality which they offer to travelers overtaken by storm. During a heavy snowstorm they saw a dense black cloud of migrating swallows approach. Immediately all the windows of the monastery were opened, and a few moments later halls and cells were filled with thousands of the half-frozen birds. There the little travellers spent the night in safety, and next morning they flew through the open windows and set out once more on their long journey to the south.

MONARCHS AND THEIR WEEDS

King Edward VII., who was quite an exceptionally heavy smoker, favored cigars of surprising length and thickness. These cigars were made specially for him in Havana by the same manufacturer that the Kaiser patronises. The cigar in which the Kaiser indulges, however, is much smaller than that which was smoked by his uncle, and much more moderate in price. The King of Spain is a slave to the insidious cigarette. He rarely smokes anything else, and his chief objection to Court functions is that he cannot attend them with a cigarette between his lips. The Tsar, too, is very fond of cigarettes, those which he smokes being made of a choice Turkish tobacco grown, and selected exclusively for his own consumption. The Emperor of Austria is distinctly plebian in his taste for tobacco, the only thing he ever smokes being that long thin black cigar, which is to the working classes in Austria what the "fag" is in Britain.

The editor of a daily paper appearing at Gary, Indiana, after attempting to satisfy the demands of his polyglot readers by publishing news in Italian, Czech, Croatian, Polish, Hungarian, and English, was challenged to a three-cornered duel by two subscribers because he failed to print columns in Russian and Serb. Even in happy Indiana editors can't please everybody.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

COMMON SENSE TALK ABOUT AGRICULTURE

Dr. Creelman Said That Rural Schools Were Not Close Enough to Farm Interests

Dr. Creelman, President of the Agricultural College, Guelph, in the course of an address on the attitude of agriculture to the rural school said in part:

"Our educational system is a good one. Is it too good? Is it so perfect that they are afraid to break in anywhere with changes that our times and conditions demand?" The speaker went on to describe his own public school days, how he had attended school for years without securing any knowledge of vital import. "I spent seven years," he said, "learning about the battle of Hastings in 1066, and a lot of other trash. I was taught a little sing-song about the relative pronoun, which I know yet, word for word. What good is it to me? Listen"—closing his eyes, with the easy nonchalance of a boy "hacking his book," the President recited at express speed the old ditty about the rivers of Europe as we all learned it. Through the full gamut he ran it, from Petchora back to Ural, taking in everything but the minor tributaries. "There—I know it still," he exclaimed. "I can't get rid of it. All that trash is taking up space in my brain that should be filled with something of value to me. And that's the stuff I was taught. I was not taught a thing that was of much use to me till I went to college. Make every girl going out to teach a rural school possess a training in the principles of agriculture. Send her to the Agricultural College? Yes. Why not? What else? She has no right to teach a rural school without the training she would secure at such a college."

"Does every farmer in this hall weigh and test the milk yields of his cows?" he asked. "If not, how do you know whether you are making or losing money? The time has gone by when an ordinary careful farmer can go ahead without testing. The farmer who goes by guess is a guess-farmer, and should not be allowed to keep good cows. Go to work! It is possible for us farmers to get a start now such as we never got before in the history of the Province. The average cow—the average, mind you—in Ontario gives less than 4,000 pounds of milk per year. What about the poor cows; where do they stand? Compare that with one of our cows at the O.A.C. which gives over 20,000 pounds of milk each year. Let us quit talking about the high cost of living and look to the performance of our cows. Why are there not more 20,000-pound cows? You say that we have the Government at our backs. Nothing makes me so angry as that silly remark. What has the Government to do with the number of eggs our hens are laying? The Government doesn't feed and superintend our hens, I assure you. Our poultry men are the ones responsible for the work not the Government. The Government has owned those college hens for a long time, yet only a few years ago did we find that some of our pure-bred hens that went oftenest to the nest and cackled the loudest never laid an egg. That started things going, also some of the hens. We have now a pen of hens in which the birds average 250 eggs per year. Did the Government make that increase? Live stock is, in my opinion, the right arm of agriculture, and live stock is coming into its own."

THE DIAMOND CENTRE

Amsterdam Employes Thousands of Cutters and Polishers of Gems

The diamond trade of Amsterdam is in the hands of seventy firms, employing more than 10,000 workmen. About 1,700 are cleavers and cutters, and 4,700 polishers, etc., the rest being engaged about the offices in other work.

These workmen are composed of five classes, in the following order, as to the amount of wages received: Cleavers, polishers, turners, cutters, and sawyers. Polishers and turners receive about the same wages. Certain cleavers get as much as $120 a week. From this maximum wages grade downwards through the other classes to [illegible] and $8 a week for sawyers.

It is the task of the cleaver to split diamonds. Cutters take off the rough sharp edges and corners and determine the general shape of the stone. Polishers polish the stone and make their facets. Turners turn the diamonds around in the apparatus that holds them, so that the facets may be made, each fine diamond having from fifty-eight to sixty-four facets. Sawyers saw stones which cannot be cloven, or which it is more profitable to saw. Sometimes a stone is cleft and the parts then sawed, but very small stones cannot be sawed.

The Amsterdam diamond workers maintain a compact organization for their protection. No one can learn the trade without the consent of this organization, and only children of workers or of jewelers are eligible to become pupils. The waiting list always contains thousands of names.

As a general thing pupils pay for instruction, sometimes as much as $2,000 for cleaving, payable in instalments. In the case of polishers and turners there is a special school, the instruction fee being from $120 to $150.

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

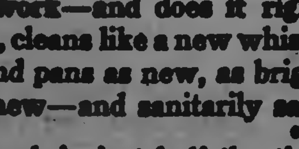
Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and larger packages. The large package means greater economy.



"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work."

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4836 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SMALL RACING STABLES

Only If Owner Has Good Horses is Game Profitable

"Is racing profitable?"

The question was put to a well-known turfman at Latonia.

"It is and it is not," said he. And then he explained: "By that I mean the game is worth the candle if one has a small stable of good horses, and can win one race a week; otherwise it is a hard fight to make both ends meet. Racing in Kentucky is more profitable to-day than it has been in many years, and the members of the racing commission are to be thanked for that. They have compelled the various tracks to hang up larger overnight purses, and a man does not need a stake horse to win a purse now and then. However, there are not many owners getting rich. Those who maintain big stables and frequently are at the top of the list of winning owners are not always big winners on the season, and in some cases I have known such owners to be heavy losers. The majority live from day to day, and some constantly are fighting the feed man. It is a wonder how some owners with one or two horses that win about one race a year get along. They travel from one track to another, year after year, and few of them look as if they were starving. It is a fascinating game. If a man is looking for a life of ease and not inclined to worry where he will get his next meal, the turf is the place to enjoy this idea of life."

FIRST WORLD SERIES WON BY HAMILTON

Baseball Tournament a Continuous Performance With Weird Rules When This Happened

The interleague struggle for supreme baseball honors, the world's series as it is known to-day, began in 1884, but the first series for the baseball championship dates back to 1865, and James Conaty, now a cobbler in Kansas City, was the hero of the occasion, pitching and winning seven straight games in one week. Conaty, now old and bent, with his weight of seventy-seven years, told in his little shop at New York the story of his great record, which, however, failed to win the pennant for Detroit. Hamilton, Ont., took the pennant and the world's championship.

Conaty, then a rollicking young Irishman, just home from the war, joined the Detroit White Stockings in the spring of 1865. The baseball fever ran high in Detroit, and during the summer a committee of business men arranged for a big baseball tournament, the first world's series, to be held in the early fall. Two teams were entered from Detroit and one each from Chicago, Pittsburg, Albany, Toronto, Quebec, Montreal, Buffalo, Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Hamilton and Cleveland.

"The series began the morning of Sept. 5, 1865, the White Stockings opening with the Brooklyns," Conaty said. "Because of the great number of teams entered, the games were only three innings long. The rules were vastly different then, too. We won 2 to 0 and I pitched and won the next six straight. I don't remember what teams came up in order. We didn't figure percentage in those days like they do now. My team won 30 games if I remember right, losing 34. The tournaments lasted six days, each team playing 42 three-inning games, the tournament being a continuous performance.

"In those days three strikes were out, and one retired the side. If a fielder muffed the ball, he threw it at the runner, and if he hit him the runner was out. Each inning was counted separately, the best two out of three winning the game. There were no such things as gloves, masks or pads in those days, and many fine players retired with broken hands. If a base runner was injured while making the circuit he could be tagged out, unless he was on a base, for no one was allowed to run for him. A case of that kind was what nearly cost the Hamilton unknowns the championship.

"A player named Richardson came to bat in the last game of the series, in which the Unknowns and the Buffalo Reds had each taken one inning. He was a poor batsman and the crowd began to leave the field as he came up, as it was late and they believed the Reds had the game won, having scored six runs in their half. The Unknowns had scored three when Richardson came to bat. But as luck would have it he hit the ball a terrific wallop that sent it over the fence into the weeds, and won the world's championship for Hamilton, Canada."

FIRST CANARIES WERE NOT YELOW

Little Singers Are Quite Domesticated and Captivity is no Hardship to Them

Canaries sell in Canada for from $1 to $10 apiece, according to their singing ability, but it is not an uncommon thing at all in Germany to have $125 paid for one of the birds. Many immigrants coming to Canada have brought their canaries with them, even if the cages were cumbersome to carry and other things, seemingly of more worth, had to be left behind.

The Englishman and the German is not happy unless he has his canary warbling to him when he comes home from work. Many instances have been known of people buying canaries even when they had not enough money to buy food, because they had lost their pets in moving to their new homes.

The original canary, of course, came from the Canary Isles, where the species is still found in abundance. The native bird sings sweetly, if not scientifically as its educated relations. The wild birds are not yellow in color, but are mostly of gray plumage. In confinement, due to climate, food, and the intermixture of breeds, white gray, green, and brown, as well as yellow shades are produced.

Wonders of the Soundograph

A veritable box of tricks is a new instrument called a soundograph, which furnishes all the sound effects used in conjunction with the operation of moving picture machines. Producing the sounds which take place in real life, it adds to the realism of the scenes depicted on the screen.

By operating twenty-seven different devices, fifty-four effects can be produced with it, among them the tramping or running of horses, a thunder storm, the wash of the surf, rain wind, locomotive exhaust, train whistle, automobile, fire apparatus in action, running water, crash of glass or dishes, fall of heavy articles, the firing of arms from a single shot to a fusilade, and many others. The instrument is 3 feet 6 inches in height.

Baseball Ability of Youngsters Never Underestimated by Themselves

A glance through the mail of any baseball magnate most any morning would serve to dispel any idea that might exist as to the modesty of aspiring big leaguers.

Lest this statement be taken with a grain of salt we herewith append a few excerpts from some epistles received by a manager of a big league team. The prize goes to one young man who wrote in part as follows:

"Being a young pitcher left handed, with good offers to try out with the Brooklyn ball club, I am writing you to see if you can't give me a try. I stand 5 feet 11 inches high, weight 180, big and broad, aged 21, good habits, and I got the stuff on, the pill. I have a spitter I will put along side of any left hander in the biz. I had 10 different offers last summer to try out with good clubs. I had Artie Hoffman after me. He wants me to come to the Pacific Coast to Frisco, but it takes too much coin to get out there. You give me the chance and I'll show you the makings I got. Charles Ebbets was after me but I decided to rest up. Well, anyway, let me here from you. I will sign for $175 a month."

Here's another one: "I think I ought to get $125 or $150 a month, but if you think that is too much send me a contract anyway and we will talk over terms."

PASTORAL LETTER

To The Citizens of Peterboro, Read In All Churches On Sunday, Sept. 27th, 1914

— Adopted September 22, 1914 —

The members of the Ministerial Association of Peterborough, assembled at this their first meeting of the season, feel it their public responsibility to give expression to our deep and unanimous convictions as to the present War, the conditions thus brought about, and the duties thereby imposed upon the community to which we belong.

1. We place ourselves on record as being strongly opposed to war and express our utter abhorance of it. With confidence we look forward to the coming day when the prophecy of the Kingdom will be fulfilled, that the nations of the world "shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks, neither shall they learn war any more." But this day is not yet!

2. Since Great Britain, after making her strongest efforts for peace, was (in our belief) most unwillingly forced into warfare for the observance of treaty obligations, for the protection of the weak and for the cause of Liberty as opposed to military tyranny, we rejoice that Canada, as a constituent part of the Empire and under its protection, is rendering her best assistance to the Mother Country in this great struggle and we believe that this should be continued until a conclusive issue is reached.

3. To this end we express our appreciation of the enterprising self-sacrifice of those who are on their way to represent us at the front. We urbe our young men to enlist at once in local Regiments and older men to join Rifle Clubs so that they may be ready at any time to obey their country's call. We hold ourselves ready to personally co-operate in such a movement.

4. We most heartily endorse the Patriotic Fund for the giving of help to the wives and dependents of our soldiers and for the aliviation of distress directly caused by the war. These funds, in our judgment, require and are deserving of large and generous contributions. As to distribution, in the interests of the community the greatest care should be exercised to guard against pauperization and to foster and preserve that healthy and independent self-respect, which should ever characterize all British Canadians.

5. That we express our appreciation of the action of the City Council in arranging for the issue of short term debentures in order to provide work for the unemployed, and we express the hope that these debentures will be taken by all who are in a position to do so.

6. As a subsidiary means we urge that Congregational Relief Funds receive a generous support. We point out that these are the only means by which many of the keenest sufferers can receive help in the privacy and close fellowship of Christian Brotherhood.

7. We further point our citizens to the desirability of taking every means during the present crisis to stimulate loyalty, patriotism and public spirited self-sacrifice. The National Anthem should be used at Church services, in our schools, and at all public meetins, with customary honours, together with patriotic hymns and songs. There should be a wider use of the National Flag and other expressions of patriotism.

8. We desire that the attention of our people should be steadily directed to the attainment of a well-founded and enduring peace as being the greatest result to be gained through this war. For the hastening of such a peace the prayers of all should constantly ascend both in public and private.

9. Towards the accomplishment of this great end we urge that public feeling be stirred up to demand as an outcome of the war, the abolition, as far as possible, of armaments, with the retention of only the forces necessary for the maintenance of law and order.

10. Advantage should be taken of the present exhibition of the horrors of modern warfare to press forward the system of International Arbitration made effective by the establishment of an International Force to enforce the decrees of the Arbitration Court, artillery being manufactured only to the order of such Court, with restrictions also upon the manufacture of small arms.

11. Lastly, we trust that in general conduct our people may give constant evidence of the spirit of an intensely practical Christianity. Let us free our minds from all personal animosity towards our enemies, who should be included in our prayers. We are convinced that there is no ground for panic or pessimism. Let us be calm, collected and courageous, and in the power of a robust faith go forward with courage, good cheer and hope.

Another Judgment Quashed

Before His Honour Judge Huycke on Saturday morning, the appeal in the case of Rex vs. Elliott was heard. Mr. Alex. Elliott, of this city, had been convicted of selling liquor to an Indian, in police court, by Magistrate Dumble and fined $50 and costs. That morning, however, Judge Huycke, after hearing the case, and the arguments of the counsel, allowed the appeal and quashed the conviction.

GLAD NEWS TO ALL WITH BAD COLDS
INSTANT RELIEF—FEW HOURS FOR CURE

Nothing Known to Science is so Invariably Sure to Cure as "Catarrhozone"

Just Breathe Catarrhozone!

The Ozonated Air Cure, better known as "Catarrhozone" is death to colds.

Its health-laden fumes contain the leading balsams of the pine woods.

Soothing and antiseptic, it gives instant relief—stops gagging, hawking and sneezing.

Mucous and phlegm are cleared away, breathing made easy, and Catarrh symptoms entirely disappear. Delightful and pleasant is Catarrhozone, simple to use because you breathe it—sure to cure colds and catarrh because it destroys the cause. Doctors say nothing is more scientific, nothing possesses such might of merit in winter ills.

"To clear a cold out of your nostrils and to be able in a minute or two to breathe freely again, I can't conceive of anything being better than Catarrhozone," writes J. H. Galvin, of Port Limon, C.R. For any sort of Catarrh, throat trouble or Bronchitis, Catarrhozone is a specific. I know scores of people who use Catarrhozone and all speak wonders of its merits."

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

Tweed's fire department has given $100 toward the Patriotic Fund.

"Nothing doing" was the sign at the police court on Saturday.

Work was in progress here on Saturday laying conduits for the new Hydro plant on Water street.

In several of the local churches yesterday feeling reference was made to the death of Sir James P. Whitney.

Very general expressions of regret were heard on all sides Saturday on the sudden death of Sir James Whitney.

Mr. Bert Purdy, Cheese Maker of Bobcaygeon factory, carried off the first Prize ticket at Lindsay Exhibition.

An advertisement in the Port Hope Guide says: "Winter wear for Women and Children white and natural." Are Port Hope children different?

A Chatham firm sued a Port Hope firm for a car of frozen fruit. The representatives of that "colored" town got a lemon at the Port Hope Division Court.

Some car, eh? Lindsay Warder says: Mr. Robt. Tate, of Nogey's Creek, passed through town on his way to Grace Sask., where his farm is. He took a car, consisting of 300 cedar posts, etc.

Mr. Chas. Lake landed a fine twenty pound lunge on Monday evening. The fish was caught in the lake just above the Three Islands, north of Lakefield.

The Union Jack flew at half mast over the City Hall and Post Office yesterday, in respect to the late Sir James Whitney. St. John's church flag will fly at half mast on the day of his burial, Tuesday.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

This week has seen the start of the boys work in earnest, and by the way that the boys are coming into the Gymnasium classes and using the building in general means that we are to have a real live time this fall and winter.

We want every boy to attend the Gymnasium Classes which has just started. A fine programme has been arranged for the boys in the Physical department, and Mr. Carson would like every boy who intends to join the "Gym." classes to come in right away and get an early start so as he will be able to choose on the different teams, which will be organised right away.

Our game room equipment has been put into first class condition. Tournaments in the different games will commence early in October. A good programme of illustrated lectures, and vocational talks will commence in October and continue throughout the fall and winter. One of the most prominent features of the Boys' Department is the Bible study groups, the first group will meet Saturday morning, October 3rd at 9 o'clock. The life of Christ will be the course this fall.

has no fewer than twenty-eight assistants, under the direction of T. F. Best of Hamilton, and H. A. Pearson of Toronto. Its latest effort was brought to fruition tonight with the opening of a cinematograph exhibition in a tent capable of accommodating 500 persons. The films are loaned free of charge by the General Film Exchange of Montreal and no charge is made for admittance. The Y.M.C.A. headquarters at Toronto are providing no end of conveniences for the troops and it is not too much to say that the institution is practically indispensable. Tents are provided in which the soldiers may write letters, and all requisites are provided free of charge. Thirty thousand sheets of notepaper and 25,000 envelopes are furnished gratis every day. In the large refreshment canteen adjoining, the association sells at a shade above cost price tons of fruit and soft drinks, thus placing within reach of the slenderest purse a food supply which has been no small factor in pulling down the high prices which everywhere ruled in the first days of the camp. Soft drinks then fetched 10c a bottle, but now the price has been halved. Other goods, which cost seven cents were retailing at forty but these also have come down to a reasonable level. The Institution is now selling 1,200 pies a day, 500 dozen of soft drinks, 175 gallons of ice-cream, 50 crates of bananas, and 50 crates of oranges, to say nothing of other goods. No soldiers, however destitute of cash, need leave the Y.M.C.A. hungry, for there are barrels of apples from which all are permitted to help themselves without money and without price.

Keeps in Touch With Youths.

Someone goes to the hospital every day with fruit and other things for the patients, while the time of two other is wholly taken up in the search for young soldiers strewn somewhere up and down camp, whose parents and relations desire the association to keep in touch with them. Hundreds of letters from anxious friends in Ontario and Quebec are received, and all show unmistakable evidences of the deep gratitude for the kind acts of the officials.

The physical work of the camp is in charge of Toronto Central, the directors being Fred J. Smith and Thomas Armour. Fifteen games are running nightly with nearly six hundred men participating. Large numbers spend the evenings over the camp fires singing all the well known hymns. Services are held at ten different points nightly, the speakers coming from various parts of Ontario.

CORNER STONE OF NEW CHURCH WAS LAID BY BISHOP O'BRIEN

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock the corner stone of the new Roman Catholic Church of the Immaculate conception was duly laid by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien. A procession of the separate school boys and the T.A.S. and other Catholic societies marched from St. Peters Cathedral to the new Church which is located just north of the new Priests House in the House of Providence Grounds. The procession was several blocks long and included many hundreds. It was led by an automobile containing several guests, whilst a carriage containing His Lordship and Priests brought up the rear.

This new Sacred Edifice, which will be very handsome on completion is only built some ten feet above the ground and has been covered with a temporary roof. On this a choir was stationed and sang several hymns. The stone which is placed at the north east corner is a massive piece of masonry inscribed with Bishop O'Brien's name and title with the date. As the Bishop concluded his cermony the stone was lowered into position by a derrick. Many thousands of all creeds witnessed the proceedings.

Plucky Belgians Seriously Damage Germans' Communications Between Mons and Brussels-- Frantic Effort to Break Allies' Lines Repulsed

The Last Desperate Bolt of Enemy Against the Allies a Failure

Try the Bayonet and Are Repulsed With Tremendous Loss--German Armies in Bad Shape and Disease--Scourged--British Thought to Be in Strong Force Away North of German Communications-- Mons is Reported to be in Flames

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Germans to-day devoted most of their activities to an attack in force along the line between the Aisne River and the Argonne region. According to the afternoon official statement from France, they have tried desperately to break through the allied lines here but have failed.

In the effort it is stated the Germans have tried a series of desperate bayonet charges to carry the French trenches, but in every instance they have been repulsed with heavy loss.

The official statement declares that the fighting at other points has been severe, but has not been characterized with the ferocity of the last two days.

The statement says:

"There is nothing new to report in the general situation. Relative calm prevails along one portion of the front. Nevertheless at certain points, notably between the River Aisne and the Argonne districts, the enemy has delivered further violent attacks, which, however, have been repulsed."

The general situation, the official statement sums up, remains unchanged without any notable advantage to either side.

IS MONS IN FLAMES?

The Allies have been heavily reinforced and are subjecting the forces of Von Boehm and Von Kluk to stern pressure along the line from Soissons north to Mons. In this connection a report telegraphed from Ostend that Mons was burning created a sensation here to-day. It is at Mons that General Von Boehm established his headquarters when he started south from Brussels with the main army that was operating in Belgium. His army was assigned to prevent Von Kluk being outflanked by the French army operating from the north-west, presumably Boulogne, where it had been gathered to support a new British force, the details of which are still withheld from the public. If it is true that Mons is burning it may mean that the British - French armies are in strong force and have raided the German communications far north of the point where up to the present any fighting has been reported.

DISEASE SCOURGES GERMAN RANKS

More significant than anything else, however, are the circumstantial reports received here from Belgium than an epidemic of typhoid and allied diseases had broken out in the ranks of the German army, and that their horses are suffering from ganders. These reports come from so many sources that they are generally credited.

NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL APPOINTED

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Lieut.-Col. the Hon. John S. Hendrie, of Hamilton, is the new Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Sir John Morrison Gibson, whose term of office has expired. Col. Hendrie's appointment was approved by the Governor-General at Valcartier on Saturday morning.

Rodolphe Boudreau, clerk of the privy Council of Canada, arrived in Toronto yesterday in prepartation for the swearing in of Col. Hendrie as Lieutenant-Governor.

COSSACKS ENTERING HUNGARY

Petrograd, Russia, Sept. 28.—The following official communication has been received from the staff of Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces in the field:

"An engagement near Sopotzvin on the Niemen River in Russian Poland and Druskeniki, came to an end with the retreat of the Germans.

"The enemy has approached Ossowetz from the north and has begun the bombardment of the fortress.

"In Galicia we have occupied Dembica, on the railroad, 65 miles east of Cracow, and between Rzeszow and Tarnow.

"A numerous column of the enemy is retreating from Przemysl in the direction of Sarok, 28 miles southwest of Jaroslau, and in their flight abandoned artillery and automobile transports.

"At Colonjak we defeated a detachment of the enemy and captured his artillery and many prisoners. Continuing the pursuit we entered Hungary."

London, Sept. 28.—The Austrian forces are still retiring on Cracow, and besides having taken some of the forts around Przemysl the Russian cavalry is said to be pouring through the defiles of the Carpathians on to the plains of Hungary. Although the success of this latter movement is officially denied from Budapest, which announces that the repeated attempts of the Russian cavalry to enter the country have been repulsed, hurried efforts are being made along the Austrian frontier to strengthen the garrisons of the fortresses. One hundred thousand troops taken at the beginning of the war from Trent has been replaced by Hungarians, and all of the eighteen forts of the first line of defence are being brought to the highest state of repair, while the second defences, commanding the passes, have been re-inforced by additional redoubts and electric currents are a marked feature of the defensive arrangements. Wires have been laid over all the strategic points on the frontier, and these connect with the powerful station at Riva.

Twelve heavy mortars which were sent to help the Germans have been recalled, and have been hastily installed, in the frontier fortresses, making them a formidable obstacle.

LATE COUNTY CROWN - ATTORNEY LAID TO REST

Yesterday afternoon an impressive burial service was held here over the last mortal remains of the late R. E. Wood, for many years the efficient and respected County Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace for this County. The Rev. Robt. Pogue officiated, County Bar Association attended in a body, as did also many Masonic members of the Board of Managers of St. Paul's Church, of all of which communities the deceased was an esteemed member. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. Rush, T. A. S. Hay, E. A. Peck, H. C. Winch, Dr. Carmichael, and R. H. D. Hall.

During the service the Rev. Robt. Pogue paid a heartfelt tribute to the deceased. He noted how St. Paul's had lost a consistent and valued member. He also referred to the duty the late Mr. Wood ever display towards his wife and family. He expressed the greatest sympathy with the deceased's relatives. His Honour Judge Huycke also made a touching address eulogistic of the deceased.

JAPANESE SUCCESS AROUND TSING-TAU

Peking, China, Sept. 28.—The Japanese legislation announces that Japanese troops after fighting on Saturday and Sunday, occupied a position within 7 1-2 miles of Tsing-Tau, the seat of Government of Kia-Chow, the German leased possession in China.

Germans Caught in Cunning Plot To Mine the Harbor at Guernsey

Steamer Flying Dutch Flag, Suspected by British--Was Quickly Surrounded By Torpedo Boats and Searched--Vessel Was German and Had on Board 1000 Marines and Explosives for Sea Mining Purposes, Marines Sent to Detention Camp

New York, Sept. 28.—An unsuccessful attempt to mine the harbor at Guernsey, England, said to have been made by a disguised German cruiser, which had on board 1,000 German marines and enough explosives to blow up a dozen warships, was reported to-day by Miss Margaret Daniels, a missionary of the Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, upon her arrival aboard the French liner "Espagne," fram Havre.

The vessel, according to Miss Daniels, was disguised as a Dutch merchantman. A Dutch flag was flying at the topmast and aroused the suspicions of the British authorities, who had made arrangements with the Dutch that all their vessels entering English ports should fly the Dutch flag at half mast. The ship was accordingly surrounded by torpedo boats, and a search revealed 1,000 German marines hidden below decks. The marines were arrested and sent to a detention camp.

RUSSIAN GUARDS CUT TO BITS

Bordeaux, Sept. 28.—According to despatches received in Bordeaux from the front, The Prussian Guard has been cut to pieces during the fighting of the last three days. The strength of some companies has been reduced from 250 to 100 men.

Virtually all the original officers of the Guard have been killed or wounded, and two battalions have been annihilated.

PRZEMYSL BOTTLED UP

The general staff issues the following:

"The fights in Galicia have been marked by special tenacity. All the communications with Przemsyl are cut. The defence of the fortress there remains passive. Deserters say they have heard that great troubles have been encountered in the garrison."

Przemysl, which was regarded as well-nigh impregnable, which has a garrison of 60,000 men, and supplies sufficient for two years, is falling fort by fort into the hands of the Russians, and the greater part of this Galician city is now occupied by the troops of the Czar, according to a message from Vienna to Rome.

A despatch to the Axchange Telegraph Company from Petrograd says:

"A big column is retreating along the road towards Sanok from Przemysl, Galicia, after having been shelled from the heights by Russian artillery. Intheir hurried retreat the enemy left part of their train of motor cars. The Russians defeatedthe enemy at Ushon, in the Carpathians, capturing artillery and many prisoners. Continuing their pursuit, the Russians entered the borders of Hungary."

Kamerun Lost To Germany Capital City Surrenders

London, Sept. 28.—The official press bureau of the War Department issued the following statement:—

"Operations of His Majesty's naval forces on the west coast of Africa have resulted in the unconditional surrender of Duala, the capital of Kamerun, and of Bonaberi, to an Anglo-French force."

London, Sept. 28.—It was officially announced in London this afternoon that Duala, the official seat of the Government of the German colony of Kamerun, German equatorial Africa, has surrendered to a British force.

Kamerun (or Cameroon) in German West Africa contains 191,130 square miles along the Bight of Biafra. The natives are Bantus on the coast and Soudanese in the interior. The exports include rubber, palm kernels, palm oil, ivory, cocoa, copal, copra, and pola nuts.

Kamerun was made a German protectorate in 1883. Its chief town is Duala, but the seat of Government is at Buea. The colony has a population of 3,500,000, very few of whom are whites.

OBITUARY

BABY GOODWIN

The death occurred on Sunday night of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goodwin, 248 Edinburgh street. In the loss of their little son Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin will have the sympathy of their friends.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at half-past three o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

If we were Germans, we would exult in the submarine feat which struck a blow at the greatest navy in the world. Being British, we deplore it and wait impatiently but confidently for a reckoning.

BELGIANS ACTIVE ON THE ENEMY'S COMMUNICATIONS--DEAL HEAVY BLOW

Destroy Railway Bridge Between Mons and Brussels--This Stops Supplies Going Forward and Prevents Army Using One Line of Retreat

GREAT BRITAIN DEMANDS FROM FROM U. S. WHO WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR SENDING SHIP WITH COAL TO GERMAN CRUISER

London, Sept. 28.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, from Blankenberghe, Belgium, under Sunday's date, says that the Belgians have blown up the viaduct at Bierghes, thus cutting railway communication between Mons and Brussels.

Great Britain Demands Facts

Washington, Sept. 28.—Great Britain has asked the United States to investigate who was responsible for sending the American ship Lorenzo, with coal, to the German cruiser, Karlsruhe, in British West Indies water.

The Lorenzo was caught by a British cruiser. The Departments of Commerce and Justice will determine who may be prosecuted under the neutrality law.

Nothing Decisive Yet

London, Sept. 28.—The past forty-eight hours have witnessed many scenes of extraordinary activity wherever antagonists faced each other, but none of them have apparently led to anything decisive. The official communications of yesterday stated that the attack on the German right has made a distinct advance, and this version is supported by official Berlin advices, which state that the Allies have made extensive advances against the German extreme right.

The Belgians have retaliated against the threat of the Germans to bring up their great siege guns before Antwerp by making many desperate sorties. Along the great western battle itself the struggle still continues to be general, with the most determined attacks being made on each flank. Both sides have evidently realised that mass attacks in the centre are futile in the present exhausted state of the armies.

Get To Close Quarters

Paris, Sept. 28.—The prolongation of the tension on the two long lines of fire and death fronting each other on the Aisne must have become insupportable to the Germans, since reports indicate that they have changed their attacks and attacked with the bayonet. The opinion is expressed here that General Joffre's master hand is shown in this, as it is believed he has succeeded in pushing his lines inside the range of the deadly heavy German guns and forced the enemy to hand-to-hand fighting.

Army Of Ireland Will Embrace All Classes

London, Sept. 28. — John Redmond every confidence in the success of plan to reorganize the Irish vol- teers' committee by the election of permanent authority chosen by the k and file. Small importance is at- ched by leading Nationalists to the que of "Sinn Feiners," who are hing to thwart the Nationalist re- uiting. Mr. Redmond expresses no ubt that an Irish army corps will raised and accredited to Ireland as emier Asquith outlined. Mr. Red- ond's idea is that the corps be con- ituted of all regular and special bat- lions raised in Ireland, including Ul- er as well as the Nationalist volun- er battalions, who, he is confident, ill come forward in thousands.

Discussing Botha's leadership of the lendid South African rally, the Dai- Mail says: "It is in a spirit of atitude, wonder, and pride, and ove all, humility, that we in Brit- n have watched the spontaneous, exampled rally of the whole Em- re, and every corner of it, in the de- nce cause we have been compelled to ampion. Nothing when the war is ver can be what it used to be in Europe. The British Empire stands on the threshhold of a new epoch. It is by the use to which we hereafter turn the devotion now manifested that our worthiness to receive and profit by it will be judged."

MAY SEAL UP GERMAN NAVAL RATS IN OWN HOLES BY MINING PORTS

England Contemplating the Closing of Southern Area of North Sea--This Course Called for by Germanys Indiscriminate Mine Laying

ENGLAND EXPECTS A LONG WAR AND PREPARES TO PUT A MILLION MEN IN THE FIELD BY SPRING

London, Sept. 28.—The long drawn out, fiercely contested fighting in Northern France is bringing home to Englishmen the terribly serious nature of the present war, as shown by the prescience of Kitchener, when at an early stage of the conflict he declared that England must prepare to put a million men in the field by next spring. Events have disproved the pet German doctrine that modern war would be bound to be short under modern conditions if Germany was only to put enough men in the field, for after eight weeks of war Germany has still failed to gain any perceptible permanent advantage.

Britain Needs Big Army

But the astonishing tenacity of the Germans, even in retreat, compels English admiration, and forbids the notion that Kitchener's million and more men, and all that Canada and the other Dominions will be able to send, will not be wanted before peace is declared in Berlin. Moreover, the tragic success of Germany's submarine tactics in the North Sea is giving new urgency to Churchill's declaration that if the German navy will not come out to fight it must be dug out like rats from a hole. This could be done forthwith by mining Germany into her own ports.

Seal Up German Fleet

Neutral nations would be warned that as Germany has resorted to indiscriminate mine laying, we, contrary to our wishes, are bound for our own and general security to seal up the German rats in their own holes and close the southern area of the North Sea to all shipping. At a later stage of the war by a combined movement ashore and afloat the Allies would dig out the fleet and annihilate it.

Discussing this suggestion the Daily Telegraph says:

"By this policy we should prevent the German fleet putting to sea at its selected moment. We should spare a good deal of wear and tear at the expense of our officers and men, and we should shut off supplies, which may be reaching Germany through neutral ports. In good time our selected moment would arrive, probably when the military situation had developed on the Continent to our advantage."

A despatch to the Axchange Telegraph Company from Petrograd says:

"A big column is retreating along the road towards Sanok from Przemysl, Galicia, after having been shelled from the heights by Russian artillery. Intheir hurried retreat the enemy left part of their train of motor cars. The Russians defeatedthe enemy at Ushon, in the Carpathians, capturing artillery and many prisoners. Continuing their pursuit, the Russians entered the borders of Hungary."

Army Of Ireland Will Embrace All Classes

London, Sept. 28. — John Redmond
s every confidence in the success of plan to reorganize the Irish vol-teers' committee by the election of permanent authority chosen by the nk and file. Small importance is at-ched by leading Nationalists to the ique of "Seinn Feiners," who are king to thwart the Nationalist reuiting. Mr. Redmond expresses no ubt that an Irish army corps will raised and accredited to Ireland as emier Asquith outlined. Mr. Redond's idea is that the corps be contituted of all regular and special bat-lions raised in Ireland, including Ul-
r as well as the Nationalist volun-
r battalions, who, he is confident, ill come forward in thousands.

Discussing Botha's leadership of the lendid South African rally, the Dai-Mail says: "It is in a spirit of atitude, wonder, and pride, and ove all, humility, that we in Brit-
n have watched the spontaneous, exampled rally of the whole Em-re, and every corner of it, in the dence cause we have been compelled to ampion. Nothing when the war is ver can be what it used to be in Europe. The British Empire stands on the threshhold of a new epoch. It is by the use to which we hereafter turn the devotion now manifested that our worthiness to receive and profit by it will be judged."

MAY SEAL UP GERMAN NAVAL RATS IN OWN HOLES BY MINING PORTS

England Contemplating the Closing of Southern Area of North Sea--This Course Called for by Germanys Indiscriminate Mine Laying

ENGLAND EXPECTS A LONG WAR AND PREPARES TO PUT A MILLION MEN IN THE FIELD BY SPRING

London, Sept. 28.—The long drawn out, fiercely contested fighting in Northern France is bringing home to Englishmen the terribly serious nature of the present war, as shown by the prescience of Kitchener, when at an early stage of the conflict he declared that England must prepare to put a million men in the field by next spring. Events have disproved the pet German doctrine that modern war would be bound to be short under modern conditions if Germany was only to put enough men in the field, for after eight weeks of war Germany has still failed to gain any perceptible permanent advantage.

Britain Needs Big Army

But the astonishing tenacity of the Germans, even in retreat, compels English admiration, and forbids the notion that Kitchener's million and more men, and all that Canada and the other Dominions will be able to send, will not be wanted before peace is declared in Berlin. Moreover, the tragic success of Germany's submarine tactics in the North Sea is giving new urgency to Churchill's declaration that if the German navy will not come out to fight it must be dug out like rats from a hole. This could be done forthwith by mining Germany into her own ports.

Seal Up German Fleet

Neutral nations would be warned that as Germany has resorted to indiscriminate mine laying, we, contrary to our wishes, are bound for our own and general security to seal up the German rats in their own holes and close the southern area of the North Sea to all shipping. At a later stage of the war by a combined movement ashore and afloat the Allies would dig out the fleet and annihilate it.

Discussing this suggestion the Daily Telegraph says:

"By this policy we should prevent the German fleet putting to sea at its selected moment. We should spare a good deal of wear and tear at the expense of our officers and men, and we should shut off supplies, which may be reaching Germany through neutral ports. In good time our selected moment would arrive, probably when the military situation had developed on the Continent to our advantage."

LATE COUNTY CROWN - ATTORNEY LAID TO REST

Yesterday afternoon an impressive burial service was held here over the last mortal remains of the late R. E. Wood, for many years the efficient and respected County Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace for this County. The Rev. Robt. Pogue officiated, County Bar Association attended in a body, as did also many Masonic members of the Board of Managers of St. Paul's Church, of all of which communities the deceased was an esteemed member. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. Rush, T. A. S. Hay, E. A. Peck, H. C. Winch, Dr. Carmichael, and E. H. D. Hall.

During the service the Rev. Robt. Pogue paid a heartfelt tribute to the deceased. He noted how St. Paul's had lost a consistent and valued member. He also referred to the duty the late Mr. Wood ever display towards his wife and family. He expressed the greatest sympathy with the deceased's relatives. His Honour Judge Huycke also made a touching address eulogistic of the deceased.

JAPANESE SUCCESS AROUND TSING-TAU

Peking, China, Sept. 28.—The Japanese legislation announces that Japanese troops after fighting on Saturday and Sunday, occupied a position within 7 1-2 miles of Tsing-Tau, the seat of Government of Kia-Chow, the German leased possession in China.

Kamerun Lost To Germany Capital City Surrenders

London, Sept. 28. The official press bureau of the War Department issued the following statement:—

"Operations of His Majesty's naval forces on the west coast of Africa have resulted in the unconditional surrender of Duala, the capital of Kamerun, and of Bonaberi, to an Anglo-French force."

London, Sept. 28.—It was officially announced in London this afternoon that Duala, the official seat of the Government of the German colony of Kamerun, German equatorial Africa, has surrendered to a British force.

Kamerun (or Cameroon) in German West Africa contains 191,130 square miles along the Bight of Biafra. The natives are Bantus on the coast and Soudanese in the interior. The exports include rubber, palm kernels, palm oil, ivory, cocoa, copal, copra, and pola nuts.

Kamerun was made a German protectorate in 1883, Its chief town is Duala, but the seat of Government is at Buea. The colonly has a population of 3,500,000, very few of whom are whites.

OBITUARY

BABY GOODWIN

The death occurred on Sunday night of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goodwin, 248 Edinburgh street, In the loss of their little son Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin will have the sympathy of their friends.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at half-past three o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

If we were Germans, we would exult in the submarine feat which struck a blow at the greatest navy in the world. Being British, we deplore it and wait impatiently but confidently for a reckoning.

BELGIANS ACTIVE ON THE ENEMY'S COMMUNICATIONS--DEAL HEAVY BLOW

Destroy Railway Bridge Between Bons and Brussels--This Stops Supplies Going Forward and Prevents Army Using One Line of Retreat

GREAT BRITAIN DEMANDS FROM FROM U. S. WHO WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR SENDING SHIP WITH COAL TO GERMAN CRUISER

London, Sept. 28.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, from Blankenberghe, Belgium, under Sunday's date, says that the Belgians have blown up the viaduct at Bierghes, thus cutting railway communication between Mons and Brussels.

Great Britain Demands Facts

Washington, Sept. 28.—Great Britain has asked the United States to investigate who was responsible for sending the American ship Lorenzo, with coal, to the German cruiser, Karlsruhe, in British West Indies water.

The Lorenzo was caught by a British cruiser. The Departments of Commerce and Justice will determine who may be prosecuted under the neutrality law.

Nothing Decisive Yet

London, Sept. 28.—The past forty-eight hours have witnessed many scenes of extraordinary activity wherever antagonists faced each other, but none of these have apparently led to anything decisive. The official communications of yesterday stated that the attack on the German right has made a distinct advance, and this version is supported by official Berlin advices, which state that the Allies have made extensive advances against the German extreme right.

The Belgians have retaliated against the threat of the Germans to bring up their great siege guns before Antwerp by making many desperate sorties. Along the great western battle itself the struggle still continues to be general, with the most determined attacks being made on each flank. Both sides have evidently realised that mass attacks in the centre are futile in the present exhausted state of the armies.

Get To Close Quarters

Paris, Sept. 28.—The prolongation of the tension on the two long lines of fire and death fronting each other on the Aisne must have become insupportable to the Germans, since reports indicate that they have changed their attacks and attacked with the bayonet. The opinion is expressed here that General Joffre's master hand is shown in this, as it is believed he has succeeded in pushing his lines inside the range of the deadly heavy German guns and forced the enemy to hand-to-hand fighting.

RULES FOR BUSINESS GIVERS

Don't give to a collector just to get rid of him. Frauds flourish upon the folly of people who do this.

Don't give money to a solicitor who cannot show proper credentials.

The way to be certain that your contribution will go to the cause in which you are interested is to mail your check to the treasurer—not to give it to a solicitor.

Don't subscribe to organizations which give only a post office box number as their address.

Beware of one-man organizations. Every reputable charity agency should have a board of managers to direct its work and oversee its finances.

The fact that a woman appeals to you for a contribution does not necessarily imply that the charity in which she is interested is worthy. Fraudulent charitable enterprises are quite as often conducted by women as by men.

Always investigate before you subscribe. There is no disgrace in giving wisely.

NORTHERN ONTARIO HAS GREAT FUTURE

Uninhabited Wilderness of Forests and Lakes Being Transformed Into Peopled Region

Without attracting much notice from the older and more settled parts of Canada, the northern portion of Ontario is being gradually transformed from an uninhabited wilderness of forests and lakes into a civilized region dotted with small towns and homesteads with a strong individuality of its own.

A traveller who recently visited Northern Ontario expressed himself enthusiastically with regard to the prospects of that portion of the Dominion.

"In ten years that country will be like a new Province," he said. "It will not be like old Ontario—not in the least. Neither will it be like the Western plains or like British Columbia. I am not speaking in a partisan way when I say that the future administration of old Ontario will have to stretch their powers and their imaginations in order to do justice to this new region. In fact, it is going to be hard to treat it as part of old Ontario. That clay belt will support an enormous population. There will be great cities up there and whole counties that know not Toronto, except as a far-off report."

The speaker went on to point out that when New Ontario is once developed it will have a strong set of characteristics of its own. He pointed out that the very toil which is necessary in order to clear the land will call for the best kind of settlers and will bring out rugged qualities in the children of these settlers. The population of New Ontario is still small. It is getting a splendid type of settler, chiefly from Old Ontario, but many are men from Europe, who have been employed in the mines to the south, and who have reverted to the soil. The farmers of this region are producing excellent foodstuffs and finding ready markets in the mining camps to the south. They pay little attention to wheat growing except on a small scale. Practically every farm, no matter how small the clearing, is going in for mixed farming.

MAINTAIN THE WOODLANDS

Too Little Attention to the Subject by the General Public

Prof. E. J. Zavitz, Provincial forester, in speaking of the results of co-operative work in forestry in Ontario, said two hundred thousand tree had been placed last year in 29 counties of the province. The department had a plantation in every county, and the trees put out have been planted in waste types of soil, in blow sand, steep hillsides, etc. They prove a big factor in the protection of roads from the drift sand and landslides. There is only nine per cent. of woodlands in southern Ontario, less even than in closely populated Great Britain, the speaker said. The quality of our forests also is not improving, as the best trees are being cut down and not replaced. Labor, or the want of it is partly to blame for the fact that we do not keep up our woodlands, but the professor hinted that indifference, and the fact that there was no immediate return, was the chief factor. In Norfolk County there are one million trees in the nurseries and sixteen thousand acres in connection for experimental planting. Prof. Zavitz, however, is quite frank about the fact that but little encouragement, much too little, is given by farmers and the general public on the subject of reforestation. Especially is this pronounced when we consider that trees can be had for the asking.

Discovery in Potatoes

Three French scientists, Dr. Sartory, M. M. Gradist, and M. Thiebert, announced successful results of their experiments to restore the constitution of the potato. They discovered that edible tubers can be obtained from potato seeds with the aid of a certain microscopic ground mushroom, which fastens to the roots and causes tuberization desired.

Experiments produced potatoes free from disease, and savants assert the regeneration of the potato is now assured. Important economic results are expected.

How Musicians Are Produced

Great composers and musicians have always sprung from people who had a folk music. In Germany, in Italy, in France, in Hungary, it has been so. Long ago, when the common people of England were instinctively musical, England produced the greatest songs and the greatest composers. When England began to get its musicians, and to take its musical standards from the Continent, the popular music was shamed out of existence, and the race of English musicians died the death.

Germany's Export Trade

Germany's foreign trade last year was as follows: imports, $2,673,750,000, as compared with $2,672,750,000, in 1913, and exports, $2,530,000,000 as compared with $2,299,250,000.

ADDRESS ON "CANADA" TO SCOTCH AUDIENCE

Near and Dear to the Scots—Most Akin to Scotland, of all Colonies

At a lecture on Canada given in Penicuik by the Rev. W. Baird, of Edinburgh, the chairman, Mr. W. Lindsay, introducing the lecturer, said that Canada was near and very dear to all Scots, for out of the many colonies of the Empire it stood foremost and most akin to us. Why? Because though first discovered by a Genoese trader from Bristol, and afterwards successfully settled by the Norman-French, it was not until that outstanding Scotsman—rather Franco-Scot—John Law, an Edinburgh goldsmith—who found it convenient to transfer his interests to Paris, where he founded a famous bank—turned his attention to colonising Canada with Scots, that thus began the westward trend of our race. Then followed the rush of Scots exiles after the Jacobite Rebellion in 1715, and anew began the interest of the Scots in the St. Lawrence. This exodus was followed later, and especially after 1745, by many Scots to seek fresh fortune in the West. Previous to this, however, and in the reign of James VI. and I. of England, Sir William Alexander secured a charter to found Nova Scotia, or New Scotland—the territory to be an appanage of the Kingdom of Scotland, and to be erected into two chief districts, viz., (1) Caledonia (now Nova Scotia) and (2) Alexandria (now New Brunswick.) To further make it homelike for the Scot some of the rivers were renamed, Tweed, Clyde, Forth, etc., but to still further popularise the movement a new order of baronets of Nova Scotia was instituted.

A Great Movement

Then commenced the great movement of Scots to the new Acadia, and from time to time they were followed by other bands of determined Scots, until about the years 1783-4-5, when the clearance of the Highland glens took place, and the Scots surged across the Atlantic to form that well known settlement, Glengarry, Ontario. Thereafter ship after ship brought its contingent of clansmen from old Scotland's shores. The names of the clans were: M'Donald, M'Donell, M'Millan, M'Dougall, M'Rae, M'Leod, Grant, Cameron, M'Gillis, Kennedy, M'Lennan, Campbell, M'Intosh, M'Gillivray, M'Kinnon, M'Pherson, Fraser, M'Phee, M'Intyre, Ross, Chisholm, M'Gregor, Ferguson, M'Laren, M'Kenzie, Morrison, M'Cormick, M'Martin, M'Kay, M'Arthur, M'Lachlan, Cattanach. In 1852 they numbered 9,965 souls in Glengarry, Ontario. Thus did the Scots win the East, but no less had they since won the West, and at the present time over a million Scots were located in and over the Dominion of Canada, and it may be taken as a surety that very few homes in Scotland at the present time but had some relationship with Scots o'er the water.

Who Should Emigrate

The chairman, in moving a vote of thanks, said that no one should emigrate unless he felt his present position did not give him cope for his abilities, nor afford sufficient remuneration for his toil. Nor should anyone emigrate if his circumstances were such that he is well off in this country. However, if after careful consideration of the matter and good prospects were held out by friends already settled across the seas, then it might be well to go forth with the hope of some success. It was important, however, to emphasise what the lecturer had said, that it must not be expected when they reached the other side they would find "a land flowing with milk and honey." They would find a land of opportunity for those who were willing to tackle hard work, and who had plenty of grit and courage to face difficulties.

SENSE OF HUMOR

Laughter One of the Finest Tonics For Jaded Nerves

Women ought to develop a sense of humor, because laughter was one of the finest tonics for jaded nerves and tired-out systems, said Professor Earl Barnes, of Toronto, in a lecture on "Recreation as a Constructive Force in Life." The human system broken down either by overwork or by working in one particular groove to the detriment of the other parts of the nervous system demanded, said the professor, a "pick-me-up" of some sort, and one was laughter. A man or woman with a tired-out feeling might work himself or herself into a second or a third wind as it were and in the end accomplish something brilliant, but that was more frequently than not the way to physical and mental destruction. Men and women must have a distinct change of life after an arduous day's work. Merely going off to sleep was not sufficient. Dealing with the problem of recreation as a form of rest, Professor Barnes said England had $250,000,000 invested in permanent paid players engaged in sport, and Scotland out of her 10,000,000 acres devoted 3,000,000 of these to sport. It was a pity that women had so little interest in organized sport, which was a recreative of marvelous power. Music and art were not forms of recreation unless those educational senses had been trained. When men and women balanced their lives with a sufficient amount of recreation they had arrived at a very large solution of the problem of human life.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 136.

Mary's Fine Clothes.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

ANOTHER month sped by, in which I grew thinner and my appetite failed, and then came the domestic accounting with my wife which I had grown to dread.

Check book in hand, I sat down one night and began to pore over bills. This time my wife had not borrowed money from her mother-in-law and I was saved that shock. The bills, however, were exorbitantly high. I checked them off, slowly, and raised my eyebrows at the end. My plan to share any surplus with my wife at the end of the month was growing ironical. This month there was nothing at all left. Instead, we had a deficit of [illegible] cents. I spoke of it.

I had expected Mary to dissolve in tears the instant she discovered there was no money for her, but, instead, she went on with her sewing.

"That's all right, Peter," she said generously, "I don't mind in the least this time. If you're satisfied, I am."

"I'm not satisfied," I said slowly, "not in the least—for the bills are beyond reason and I needed a suit badly, but I've simply got to be content. This drug bill is positively scandalous. We've used enough drug store stuff to heal a regiment of sick and wounded."

"You must remember," she said, with a peculiar air that I did not then understand, though I understood it well enough a little later, "that the winter months are bad for colds and, then, we've filled so many prescriptions there for your nerves—and—and—"

"If I've used up this amount of nerve medicine," I said decidedly, "it's up to me to depart for a sanatorium or a morgue. The worst old hypochondriac in existence couldn't have used more."

"Well," said Mary brightly, "let's not worry about that. If the medicine does you good, Peter, it's certainly all in a good cause, isn't it?"

Fool that I was, I thought this decidedly decent of Mary and let it go at that.

As the weeks filed on I noticed that, despite this monthly deficit, my wife seemed always to have money and she seemed always to have clothes. No thinking man lets a situation like that get by him without question. Mary appeared one evening in a silk thing of exquisite fineness and lustre and I wheeled and put the question:

"Mary," I said, "your mother isn't giving you clothes, is she?"

Mary flushed scarlet.

"Indeed, no, Peter," she said. "Mother says she wouldn't dare give me a thing after the way you went over there and scolded and bullied before, just because she lent me a little spending money."

"How did you get this dress, then?" I demanded. "There has at no time been money left from our monthly bills for you to buy it."

"I—I found a place," she said after a while. "Oh, Peter, why do you bother? If I get things without bothering you and—and the bills are no worse—why don't you let me go ahead and do it?"

Now I offer as my sole excuse my tense irritability and my shattered nerves. For one wild instant a horrible suspicion flashed in my face and I seized my wife's hands in a grip of iron.

"Mary," I said, "tell me, for God's sake, where did you get that dress?

Thank God my wife has an innocent mind. She did not get the brutal suspicion in my face. She began to cry.

"Why, why, Peter," she said, "I—I found a place where women may buy plumes and coats and dresses and everything, simply by paying a dollar a week. I think it's wonderful. I've been doing it for some time. That's why I keep looking so nice."

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going out quite a number of places (theatres, skating, etc.) with a man 17 years my senior—my age is 21. This young man told me he thought a lot of me; I also liked him very much, but he couldn't be depended on as he was quite a fabricator.

We parted good friends some months ago, and recently a young man (intimate with my friend) called at my home and took me to a concert and to the rink occasionally. One night—getting somewhat confidential—he told me (after my promising not to repeat it) that my old friend told him most terrible things against my good name (which were very untrue). Will you please tell me what I should do under such circumstances? I would consult a lawyer if it were not necessary to tell who told me, as it would undoubtedly cause the loss of the second young man's position. Thanking you very kindly for your trouble,

AN ORPHAN.

I DON'T see that you can do a thing, dear Orphan, except get rid of the acquaintance of both the young men in question just as soon as possible.

If the first one is, as you say, a fabricator, and if you believe that he has said untrue things about you, all you can do is to cut his acquaintance—with as little fuss as possible. Don't have any row with him—don't make yourself conspicuous—just treat him with marked coldness the next time you see him—and after that when you meet him—be looking the other way. He'll know what is the matter, without your saying a word except—his conscience will tell him.

The other man is a tale bearer and a gossip—he must be lacking in delicacy of feeling, to say the least, or he would never repeat such a thing to you. He's as bad, or almost as bad, as the first one.

Do you like snakes? If you met a snake in the meadow—would you stop to see whether it was striped or checked—or would you run just as far as you could, just as fast as you could—and let it go at that?

The moment a man begins to hint that he has heard something against a woman's reputation, the only thing that woman, or any other woman can do, is to run—just as fast as she can—just as far as she can. Start running this very day, little girl, and don't stop till the two miserable sneaks are both entirely out of sight—as far as you are concerned.

Don't cry over it, don't be morbid about it; you can't help it if there are snakes in the world, can you? Men of that sort are just human snakes, and that's all there is to it.

Don't think of bringing a law suit or of getting anybody else involved in the matter in any way whatsoever. You can't handle a delicate rose, and throw it from one to another without killing the flower. A girl's reputation is as delicate and as easily injured as a rose; don't let any one bandy it from one to another.

You may have one friend, some elderly, or at least some discreet and sensible married woman, whom you can trust to help you in this matter. If you have such a friend go to her—and to her alone—and she'll stand by you, and tell you what to do if things become at all complicated.

But be sure of her real friendship to you, and of her real discretion before you whisper one syllable even to her.

"She said" and "he said," "I think" and "I wonder"—how many reputations have been shrivelled to nothing under the hot blast of gossip that began by being merely "friendly interest."

Don't wait a minute to get rid of these two men, little "Orphan," and keep the whole affair to yourself if you can possibly do it.

Your real friends know you for what you really are, and nothing that any creatures like that can say about you will really hurt you. Remember you are probably not the only one who knows them for what they are.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

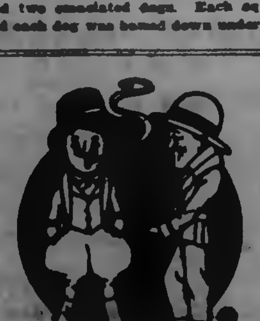
Smile Awhile

His Part.

ONE day, while "mushing" along over a rough Alaska trail, a forest ranger met two young squaws and two emaciated dogs. Each squaw and each dog was bowed down under the weight of a heavy pack. They passed silently, and in a few minutes the ranger came upon a rascally old Indian friend of his sauntering slowly along, absolutely unincumbered. After exchanging greetings he asked: "How is it, Stickloo, that your wives and your dogs are so heavily loaded and you carry nothing at all?"

Stickloo gazed a moment as if in surprise at such stupidity, then straightening his fat figure and tapping his forehead, he explained in dignified tones:

"Me all time think!"



A Reason.

A. B.—When I was young they called me Archie—

T.—Yes?

A. B.—And now Archie-bald!

The Only Effect.

THE old judge, a great lover of house plants, had compounded a liquid fertilizer and presented the widow next door with a large bottle of the mixture. Chancing to call a week later he peered earnestly at the geraniums in the window and inquired:

"Madam, have you noticed any particular effect since using my fertilizer?"

"No, judge," broke in the young daughter of the house, "nothing as yet but the smell!"

RECOGNIZING AN "ACTRESS"

Marilynn Miller, in "The Passing Show," at the New York Winter Garden.

Can You Really Distinguish an Actress at a Glance?

By HELEN STARR

A ONE-RING circus, a horse and dog show and a travelling "rep" were the only legions of histrionic art that my friend Mrs. Ezekiah Hill had ever seen. She had long planned to descend on Broadway and see a real actress, for chance magazines had taught her they were startlingly beautiful, and that Broadway was their leisure time rendezvous. She would move in their midst and hob-nob with them "en passant."

Of course she could distinguish an actress at a glance. The victim's hair would be of peroxide gold or the dye-dipped hues of night. Her lips and cheeks would reflect the August sun's rays, and her lashes appear lustrous and curling. In addition, she was doubly certain an actress would wear colors which vied with those of the Spanish girls on cigarette boxes.

But during her two weeks' stay in the metropolis Mrs. Hill could not distinguish a real actress on the street. She saw them when she paid admission to the box office, but outside the theatre—never. Disappointed, she returned home, feeling that the region of white lights was not as bizarre as she had hoped it might be.

Not that she had made a blunder concerning the fact that actresses are often compelled to walk on Broadway, but she was not aware that they are coming to look just like other women. It would be hard to distinguish the debutante daughter of a bank president from the petite dancer, who also happened to possess patrician features, nor is it easy to recognize the statuesque leading lady of stock when a handsome and cultivated club president stands by her side in a shop. The school teacher or librarian is more readily distinguished for certain features of type than the actress of today. The profile of Marilynn Miller, shown above, is not unlike the outline of brow and nose in portraits of Queen Wilhelmena of Holland.

Tendencies among professional women of the best companies have swerved toward simplicity. Good taste in the arrangement of the hair and the careful selection of dark, distinguished street costumes go with an earnest desire to remove any semblance of a make-up which was put on because it was necessary before glaring footlights.

Arrogant manners have been superseded by quiet voices and a modest demeanor. The life has its trials—perhaps more violent disappointments and meteoric changes from luck to ill-fortune than in any other profession. Yet, the women are optimistic, characteristically sweet-tempered and buoyant in spirit.

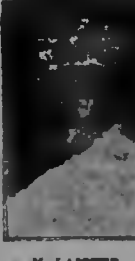
If Mrs. Hill had dropped into one of the clubs where professional girls live, or taken luncheon at the Rehearsal Club during the noon hour she would have seen a host of bright, pretty girls chatting about their work like a group of college maids or an enthusiastic coterie of society girls exclaiming over a new blouse. The type of young ladyship in the city tends to be much alike.

Masterpieces of the Cuisine

A Complete Warm Weather Menu by M. Lajotte

Chef of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia.

HOT dishes are seldom appetizing in warm weather, but a cold dinner often gives a fillip to the most jaded taste. The menu that I offer you here is complete with recipes for the making of each dish. Each delicacy is designed with a view alike to tasty deliciousness and cool attractiveness.



M. LAJOTTE

MENU.

Rocky Ford Cantaloupe
Consomme of Tomato Andalouse
Cold Egg Henrietta
Brook Trout a la Nage
Petit Pate Parisien
Jumbo Squab Argentine
Salade Nationale
Ice Cream Cherry Pie

RECIPES FOR THE MENU.

Consomme of Tomato Andalouse.

This delicious soup is made of a strong consomme of beef and chicken mixed with vegetables. Measure your stock to the number of dishes desired, then add finely prepared onions, carrots, bay leaves, peppers, thyme and plenty of celery. Put upon the fire, and when it is nearly cooked add plenty of fresh tomatoes well cut up. Let it boil for half an hour, take it from the fire, strain and set it aside to grow cold. It must be in jelly with a pink color.

Cold Egg Henrietta.

Take a hard-boiled egg and stuff it with a mixture of anchovies, celery and mayonnaise and a bit of the cooked yolk well seasoned. Put the egg in a small oblong croustade upon a bed of mayonnaise and decorate with whipped cream.

Brook Trout a la Nage.

In a stock of onions, celery, parsley and a little white wine that has been boiled together for a few minutes place a brook trout and let it boil for 20 minutes. Take it from the fire and let the trout lie in the gravy until cold. Then place the trout on a deep dish. Clarify the stock with the white of an egg and add a little gelatine, then put it over the trout. The stock will then jelly and the trout will appear as if swimming through the water.

Petit Pate Parisien.

Take the dark meat of a tender chicken, mix it with some well seasoned sausage meat, then add some ham cut in small square pieces to which add the white meat of the chicken cut the same way. Put this into a mixing dish and add fine herbs to taste. Now take your individual pate paste shapes and fill them with the chicken, cook slowly, and permit the pate to get cold before serving.

Jumbo Squab Argentine.

Take a small squab and place it in a pan with some vegetables to cook easily, then prepare your stuffing to which you should add the liver chopped fine. When the squab is well cooked make a little gravy with stock and the vegetables cooked with the squab and add a little sherry to the sauce.

Now cut the squab in two and place the two halves in a deep dish, garnishing it with some asparagus tips or new peas. Then when it is cold pour over it your strained gravy, which should set in jelly. If the day is very warm add a little gelatine to the gravy to make it jelly.

Salad Nationale.

Take as many tomatoes as there are guests and hollow them out, then cut sufficient corn from the cob, which mixed with paprika mayonnaise will stuff your tomatoes to overflowing. Decorate each tomato with green peppers cut in squares and serve on a leaf of lettuce.

ODD AND INTERESTING FACTS

A charity forgotten in chancery has been brought to light after the lapse of nearly half a century by the charity commissioners. A Mrs. Elizabeth Skirrow, in 1834, bequeathed $5000 to establish weekly pensions of $1.25 for widows 60 years old afflicted with cancer. The case came before the court of chancery, and in 1849 a scheme was made for the charity, the trust fund being paid into court. The dividends on the fund ceased to be applied in 1866. Steps are now being taken to revive the charity. With the accumulated dividends the fund totals $20,000.

The Berlin municipal council has approved of a scheme for setting aside a sum of $75,000 for the purpose of making small loans to citizens whose means have become temporarily straitened through no fault of their own, but owing to the present economic conditions.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Nearly All "Fits" Are Forms of Epilepsy

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

DO ducks have fits? Perhaps some gifted observer, who originated the expression, "Don't have a duck fit," saw one. Men and dogs, however, do have fits. No doubt all animals do. Be that as it may, there are "fits" and "fits." The maladies which exhibit symptoms known colloquially as "fits" are, in ninety-odd victims in the hundred, epilepsy of one sort or another.

Convulsions, or fits, are muscular explosions of the human frame, which are shot out like radio-telegraphic series of flashes from a central station—the brain or spinal marrow—through the nerve twigs and throughout the affected parts.

"Falling sickness" is an ancient designation of these convulsive seizures and epileptic eruptions. They are often so called because the sufferer falls over in the major forms of the ailment. Shakes and shivers, rolling eyes, saliva drivelling from the mouth, streaks of blood on the lips from biting the tongue, unconsciousness for a minute or more, then sleep for several hours, are among the striking phenomena of epileptic fits.

"Petit mal" and "grand mal" are French terms which have crept into English to distinguish the lesser from the more severe types of convulsions. In "petit mal" the victim may not fall, and only have a momentary fit of absent-mindedness or abstraction. While thus for an instant mentally at sea, he may throw an inkstand or a rock at his best friend and work untold injury.

The more severe kinds of fits are characterised by absolute loss of consciousness, except in the variety due to accidents or injuries to the brain. This is called Jacksonian epilepsy.

There are a number of fraudulent "cures" for fits and epilepsy. None of these have borne out the claims made for them.

Each patient subject to convulsive spells must be treated by physicians as a law unto himself. Much may be done for them. Women so affected should consult a skilled specialist on feminine ailments.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

Vinegar heated to the boiling point will soften paint brushes that have become dry and hard.

A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a small cup of black coffee is a safe remedy for bilious headache.

A tiny pinch of carbonate of soda or salt added to milk as soon as it arrives, will help to preserve it from turning sour.

One ounce of Epsom salts added to a gallon of water makes an excellent rinsing mixture for colored blouses and washing dresses.

To stop hiccough, give the patient a teaspoonful of granulated sugar and vinegar. If this does not afford instant relief, repeat the dose.

Colored handkerchiefs should be soaked in cold salt water for a short time before they are washed. This will prevent the colors from running or fading.

Vegetable and fruit stains on the fingers can be removed by dipping the fingers in very strong tea for a few minutes and then washing them in clear, warm water.

If you are annoyed by flies in your bedroom, soak a sponge in oil of lavender, and tie it to the top of the bed. Flies hate the smell of lavender, and will not approach it.

To clean lamp glasses hold them over a jug of boiling water until well steamed, then polish with a dry duster. It is far less trouble than washing, and the glasses very rarely break.

Needles and pins will never rust in a cushion filled with coffee grounds. Rinse the grounds in cold water, spread on a sheet of paper to dry thoroughly, and then stuff the cushion.

Eucalyptus oil will remove grease stains from any kind of material without injuring it. Apply a little of the oil with a clean piece of flannel, and rub the material gently until the stains disappear.

To make glassware glisten, wash the glass and rinse in hot water, then plunge into cold water into which a handful of starch has been dissolved. Drain the glassware on towels until perfectly dry, then polish with a dry cloth.

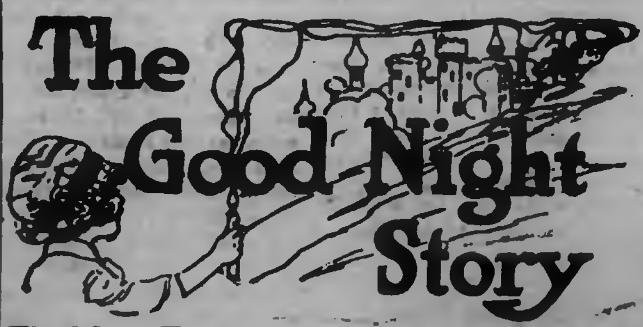
A simple method of making iron work proof against rust is to heat it until it is almost red hot, and then brush it over with linseed oil. This makes a varnish which, unlike ordinary paint or enamel, does not chip off.

When frying steak, do not cook one side first, then turn over and fry the other. Just harden for a second or two one side, and then turn over and start frying the other, and you will find what a juicy steak you will have.

New potatoes are very much improved and have a delicious taste if boiled with a lump or two of sugar along with the mint. Two lumps of sugar to a pound of potatoes give excellent results, rendering them firmer and more appetising.

A good hint for those who do their own paper hanging is to apply the paste to the wall instead of the paper. Amateurs will find it much easier to match the pattern, and the paper is less liable to tear by following this method, besides saving time and trouble.

It is a good plan in darning stockings to hold the darning wool for a minute or two over the spout of a kettle of boiling water. This shrinks the wool, and when the stockings are washed there is no fear of mended parts shrinking, and no tearing away from surrounding parts, so that the stockings last much longer.



The Good Night Story

The Magic Tree :: By VERNON MERRY

THERE was once a very little girl to whom her mother and sisters gave all the hard work to do, and she was very unhappy. One day when she was out in the fields tending the goats she cried so very hard that a fairy came and spoke to her. She told the good fairy why she was crying and the fairy said:

"Never mind, you need not be hungry any more. Whenever you wish to have something nice to eat just say these words:

'Little goat, if you are able,
Come and deck me out my table.'

Just you try it."

So when the good fairy had gone the little girl spoke the words, and, instantly, a fine table appeared on the grass laden with good things to eat. The little girl ate all she wished and then the table disappeared.

But that was not the end of her troubles for her sisters found out why it was that she was never hungry any more at home and they killed her goat because they were jealous. But when the little girl cried that day in the fields the good fairy appeared again and told her to take the goat's body and bury it in front of her door.

This the little girl did, and next morning when she looked out there was a tree of silver and gold nodding at her. Of course her sisters tried to pick the golden apples, but the tree would not let them. It gave its fruit only to the little girl.

While she was picking the apples along came a handsome knight, who asked for one. The little girl had a kind heart, so she gave the knight the most beautiful apple she could find. Her kindness pleased the handsome knight so much that he married her, much to the envy of her sisters, and took her away with him to his great castle.

The sisters consoled themselves with the thought that they still had the tree, but they were mistaken. For the next morning when they woke up the tree was gone, and when the little girl woke up she found that it had followed her and was growing in front of her castle.

"SIXTY YEARS A QUEEN"

TO THE CANADIAN PUBLIC:

This subject is the main incident in the life of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. Queen Victoria's life teems with incidents which are engraved upon the hearts of those who remember her, and there it is with reverence that this pictorial epitome has been produced, and enacted by those to whom have been given the onerous work of portrayal. The scenes which have been selected are the most important events of this most important reign, starting as they do from the death of William the Fourth, the notification of which is conveyed to the young Queen by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and Lord Conyngham; the Queen's first council; her first review, showing the veterans, led by the famous Duke of Wellington, and then her Coronation, which is positively the most wonderfully reproduced scene in the history of filmdom.

Reel two shows the various measures employed throughout the Empire of those days to celebrate the event; the first state ball; the engagement and marriage of the Queen; the first mail and telegraph, and the first general election of the Victorian era.

The important scenes in reel three show the christening of the Prince of Wales; the attempt on the Queen's life; the first family gathering at Osborne; the opening of the International Exhibition; the discovery of gold in Australia; the Queen's adieu to her Crimean troops, and the attack at Sebastopol.

Part four shows us the hospital at Scutari; Her Majesty receiving her wounded soldiers and presenting Crimean medals; Christmas at Windsor; the blowing up of Cashmere Gate; presentation of the Victoria Cross; the instituting of the Queen's prize, concluding with the saddest event in the life of Her Majesty, the death of her beloved husband and Consort, Prince Albert.

In part five we are shown the wedding of the Prince of Wales; Dr. Livingstone being presented to the Queen; the opening of Parliament; the Queen's message to Lincoln; Her Majesty keeping Hallowe'en; the presentation to Charles Dickens, and a touching scene, one of the many of Her late Majesty's career, the Queen taking tea with one of her oldest tenants.

Part six deals with the illness of the Prince of Wales and Thanksgiving services on his recovery; Disraeli, Gladstone, Bright and Salisbury, purchasing the title of Empress of India; the ing the Suez Canal; the Queen assuming Durbar at Delhi; the reception of General Gordon, his headquarters and finally his death.

Part seven again brings us back to old Westminster to the Queen's Jubilee, a scene that has been pronounced by eye witnesses as perfect in every detail; scenes from the South African war; Her Majesty's last visit to Netley; the evening of the Queen's days.

Magic "Nerviline" Ends Stiff Neck, Lumbago

Any Curable Muscular or Joint Pain is Instantly Relieved by Nerviline.

You don't have to wait all day to get the kink out of a stiff neck if you rub on Nerviline. And you don't need to go around complaining about lumbago any more. You can rub such things away very quickly with Nerviline. It's the greatest liniment, the quickest to penetrate, the speediest to ease muscular pain of any kind.

One twenty-five cent trial bottle of Nerviline will cure any attack of lumbago or lame back. This has been proved a thousand times, just as it was in the case of Mrs. E. J. Grayden, of Caledonia, who writes:—"I wouldn't think of going to bed without knowing we had Nerviline in the house. I have used it for twenty odd years and I appreciate its value as a family remedy more and more every day. If any of the childeen gets a stiff neck, Nerviline cures quickly. If it is earache, toothache, cold on the chest, sore throat, Nerviline is always my standby. My husband once cured himself of a frightful attack of lumbago by Nerviline, and for a hundred ailments that turn up in a large family Nerviline is by far the best thing to have about you."

Luxemburgers vs. Belgiums

While Theodore Roosevelt is no longer, apparently, the power he was once in American politics, he retains an international reputation as a man of thought and action. Twice president of the United States, he has had extraordinary experience in national and international affairs, and he has certainly earned the right to speak with authority and influence upon such a subject as the present war.

In an article in the current issue of the Outlook, New York, Mr. Roosevelt writes on "The World War: Its Tragedies and Its Lessons." He contributes much sound thought to the discussion of the time.

Discussing the causes of the present war the ex-President is most impartial. Probably, being still in politics, he hesitates to take one side or the other for obvious reasons. He does not condemn Germany for starting the war but praises England for her efforts to prevent it, and says that, once Belgium was invaded, "every circumstance of national honor and interest forced England to act precisely as she did." In fact this violation of the neutrality of Belgium and the consequences of it, seems to strike Mr. Roosevelt as the most remarkable feature of the war.

He points out that Germany also violated the neutrality of Luxemburg and the Luxembergers calmly and tamely submitted. Why? Simply because they were unable to defend their integrity. He asks the advocates of disarmament which country they admire the most, Belgium which asserts her right or Luxemberg, which tamely submits to the foreign invader. If they do not admire Belgium and prefer the Belgian attitude to the tame submission of the Luxembergers, he says they are unfit to live in a free country. Thus, says Mr. Roosevelt, China's neutrality has been repeatedly violated, in spite of treaties, for many years by nearly every Power in the world. Why? Because China is unable to back up her treaties with force. The Russo-Japanese war was fought mainly on Chinese territory.

Sir James Whitney

The public service of Ontario and the public life of Canada suffer a great loss in the death of Sir James Pliny Whitney. As Premier of Ontario since 1905, Sir James pursued a progressive policy; but it was an upright and forceful figure that he claimed the attention and won the respect of all Canada.

By the success of his political career, Sir James Whitney proved that the condition of politics in Canada to-day is not such that one who is honest and straightforward, who scorns the use of cheap practices which, in the opinion of so many, are essential to political preferment, cannot expect to win public appreciation. Whitney was stern and strict and unbending and, sometimes, almost antagonistic and exasperating; but he was also just. In him, justice covered a multitude of [illegible] "sins." If scores went away from stormy interviews with him offended, thousands, hundreds of thousands, came to cheer him, satisfied. And the whole people of Ontario benefited because of his work. Statesmanship conquered small politics.

Sir James was impatient of criticism, and of what he regarded as stupidity. He took pardonable pride in the fact that his work was appreciated, but only because he was so convinced that he had done his duty. Amongst public men, he was fortunate in one respect. Before he died, he was given an unique illustration of the esteem and affection with which he was regarded by Ontario and all Canada. During his severe illness a few months ago, when his life hung in the balance for weeks, the press of the country broke down party lines in order to pour out the general feeling of sympathy and admiration for Ontario's "grand old man." Whitney recovered and, heartened by this unstinted praise, he forced himself into another general election. Ontario, his native province, grasped the opportunity to show her regard for him, and he went back to power, after an extraordinary campaign, with emphatic and unmistakeable evidence of the popular approval. The manner in which Whitney withstood the tide of sentimentality raised against him in this last campaign was one of the most notable vindications any public man in Canada ever received.

Amongst the public men of Canada, Whitney stood for what Belgium stands for amongst the nations—integrity, courage, devotion to principle. He never hesitated to sacrifice personal popularity to the demands of duty as he saw it, or temporary to permanent advantage both for his party and for his country. He appealed to the best in men, and so his success was a compliment to the people of his province. It can be said of him that his most enduring monument is his record of devoted service to Ontario, patriotic service to his country, and loyal service to the British Empire, done in the spirit of sincerity and sealed with the approval of his countrymen.

The lesson of his career is the old one that "honesty is the best policy" in the public service as in business or private life.

Our Point of View

The first "took him for a deer" fatality is reported from New Brunswick. Now for a long list of them.

NEW YORK HERALD
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4

Forty special feature pages have been prepared for the Sunday New York Herald of October 4th. Of these twelve are printed in color. The Fashion Magazine, edited by Blanche G. Merritt, a magazine unique in the newspaper field, has been doubled in size for this issue and printed in two separate sections; one devoted to outdoor styles and the other to indoor fashions and accessories. There is a special feature magazine which no woman can afford to miss.

Among the striking features in the Magazine Section will be "Causes of the Present War," first of a series of articles by Leon Goldmerstein bearing on the European War, its causes, why it is being fought, what is likely to be its outcome and what the United States will get out of it. Mr. Goldmerstein from 1905 to 1908 was in the service of the Russian government. He was also in the midst of the Boxer troubles, was in Constantinople during the American massacres, in the Ancajan rebellion and in the Balkans in 1903, shortly after the tragedy at Belgrade.

Other features in the Magazine Section will be a full page drawing by Nadherny of Beauquesne's celebrated painting "Cease Firing;" a page of stirring Famous War Poems, selected from the masterpieces of literature; reproductions of two famous paintings by Sergent, "Under Fire" and "Bringing Up the Guns;" a story on Austrians as Fighters; Peace Prayers of a Neutral Nation; Famous Sieges, and a full color page is devoted to St. Genieve, the patron saint of Paris.

And an eight-page comic section, with Ginger Pop, Snapshot Bill and other comic favorites in colors.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. "The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox, Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

Average — £284,15.10 or $1385.30 per skin.

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Fox Dividends Declared to Date

Following are dividends reported companies as stated by one of the 1913.

J. M. Greene Music Co., Charlotte St.

ON BOARD H. M. S. "DREADNOUGHT"

(From the Montreal Weekly Witness.")

When the sea grows gray and silent, and the moon sinks out o' sight,
And the stars turn sick an' tremble after seven hours of fight,
God keep us dirty sailor men, from the Pole Star to the Cross,
For we need Almighty keepin', an' one high, Almighty Boss.

For when the whole deck's throbbin'
There ain't no time for prayer;
But it's "Point your Long Tom dainty
Over twenty miles of air!"

When them wounded German fellows came a-shakin' up our side
I was funny round my stomach, an' my bloomin' British pride
Trembled like a silly pennant, they was all so human like;
They had eyes an' hands an' faces just like any other tike.

But when the horizon's spittin'
And we're coughin' back at it,
Say it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!"
An' "I guess—that—hit!"

I was walkin' past a cabin where we kept our prisoners tight,
The sentry-go says, 'Look here,' an' I see a funny sight;
There was two of them a-lookin' at a picture in their hand,
Just as if there's German mothers in the German Fatherland.

But when we're in the fight line,
It's "Forget your thoughts and fire!"
While the look-out says beside you,
"Steady! Nose her up a little higher!"

When I stopped an' looked to seaward in a tiny breathin' spell
I see a Dreadnought stagger with her nose deep in the swell;
She was struck below the belly, an' she sunk an' gurgled down
Very casual like, an' careless; made me sweat to see her drown.

But when we're stripped for action,
Say, it's "Glory! glory!" then,
An' it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!"
As we pick the range again.

We were lyin' close in harbor, coalin' up at Halifax.
I was messin' with the range guns, streakin' polish down their backs.
There was somethin' in the air—fell like a happy English rain:
An' my mate, he says, "Your're bawlin' " an' I says, "I guess that plain!"

But when we're sweatin' dirty,
An' the sea's unholy red,
Say, it's, "Mates, we'll fight fo England
Till the sun hisself is dead!"

ARTHUR L. PHELPS.

Sept. 15th. (Son of Rev. L. Phelps, pastor of Mark-st. Methodist Church, East City)

The above poem, written for the Montreal "Weekly Witness," is one of the many strong things appearing in that splendid journal, and coming so close upon the wrecks of our own ships grips us hard. The editorials of the "Witness" on the War Situation have the right to them, and are the product of a mind more than usually well informed, and foresighted. Those not now getting the "Witness" may have it on trial to the end of the year by sending fifteen cents in stamps to its old time publishers, John Dougall & Son, "Witness" Block, Montreal. It costs little to try it, and people who are not getting the "Witness" do not realise what they are missing. Some do not agree with it in everything. Neither do we. But it is one of the few great worthwhile papers all the same—and fifteen cents gets it to the end of the year.

Local Men in Command

The second battalion of the first brigade (Canadian Contingent) in command of Lieut.-Col. Watson, of Quebec with Lieut.-Col. Rogers and Major Mills, Peterboro, quarter-master, and Capt. Dr. Garnett Greer, Peterborough medical officer, is composed of the following companies:—

A Company—50th and 57th Regiments; Major Bennet in command.

B Company—16th Regiment and 9th Mississauga Horse; Major Thorn in command.

C Company—Governor-General's Foot Guards and 41st Regiment; Captain Crysler in command.

D Company—43th and 51st Regiments; Capt. Verette in command.

G Company—14th, 47th and 49th Regiments; Capt. Guttman in command.

F Company—15th, 42rd and 59th Regiments; Capt. Capt. Abee in command.

G Company—34th and 40th Regiments; Major Bolster in command.

H Bompany—42nd and 46th Regiments; Capt. Hooper in command.

Cocoanuts in Ceylon

The natives of Ceylon eat one and a half million cocoanuts a day. There are sixty million cocoanut trees on this island, and the surplus production of nuts is chiefly used to make copra, the dried "meat" of the nut, which is a valuable source of vegetable oils. It is estimated that there are produced yearly 600,000 to 700,000 tons of copra, valued at sixty-five million dollars." One-quarter of the world's production comes from the Philippine Islands.

GARDEN MEDICINES

Every vegetable garden is a medicine chest full of remedies that are recognized by physicians as of considerable value in the treatment of various diseases.

Onions, for example, contain sulphur oil, and are recommended for insomnia and as an aid to gastric digestion. They should have a prominent place in the diet of sufferers from rheumatism, for they help to allay the pains.

Turnips and parsnips both have peculiar oily principles which are of value as an aperient and diuretic. It is also claimed that they are good for coughs and hoarseness.

Carrots are useful for correcting derangements of the liver. They are also excellent as a dressing for painful wounds and swellings.

The tomato exercises medicinal effects which are not completely explained by the presence of alkaline salts. There is a principle present which, when taken in a concentrated state, produces salivation and a free stimulation of the liver.

FARM SURVEYS

Some Points on Which Farmers May Make Improvements

F. C. Nunnick, of the Commission of Conservation, in referring to the work being done in regard to farm surveys and demonstration farms in Ontario, said the survey was conducted in five counties of the province and the number of farms visited was 100. Information was collected which went to show that Ontario farmers could improve their methods in a number of ways. Slightly less than half were not following a systematic rotation, merely growing different crops on the land from one year to the next. Not enough attention was paid to the varieties of grain grown. In Peterboro' County, for instance, 17 varieties were grown. These could not all be best varieties. Weeds were gaining the ascendancy in many cases. On one farm 65 different weeds were found. One cause appeared to be that weed inspectors were lax in their duties. A fact, the significance of which could not be slighted, was that 93 per cent. of the farmers visited were taking no special means to preserve farm manure.

Blind Print For Blind

Blind women and girls of Washington are earning their living by making books for other blind persons. The work is in steady progress, and a shipment of books to the blind of other places soon will be made.

Braille type, read by the blind through their fingers, is now of international employment, and thousands of blind persons have been taught to read it. The result is that the demand for books printed in this way has far exceeded the supply.

CATS AND SU ERSTITION

In the Monferrato it is believed that all the cats who wander about on the roofs during the month of February are really witches, who it is lawful and even necessary to shoot. An old German superstition has it that if a black cat sits upon the bed of a sick man it is a presage of his death, while if after his decease it is seen upon his grave it is enough to arouse doubts as to the locality to which his soul has departed.

In Hungary it is thought that cats generally become witches between the ages of seven and twelve years. A French belief concerning the cat is that if the animal be carried in a cart and the wind blow from it to the horses, they immediately fall tired. If any part of the horseman's clothing be made of cat's skin the horse will feel as though it carried a double burden.

THE BUSIEST STREETS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Inquiries were recently made in order to ascertain the amount of traffic passing through the principal thoroughfares of the capitals of the world with a view to discovering which had the most congested traffic to deal with. The result goes to show that the two busiest streets in the world are the Mansion House Corner, in the City of London, and the Place de l'Opéra Paris; the former having the greater number of foot passengers and the latter the larger share of vehicular traffic. Every week day 500,000 persons walk past the Mansion House, the number of vehicles being 50,000; compared with 450,000 pedestrians and 63,000 vehicles passinf through the Place de l'Opéra. After these most important thoroughfares comes the Broadway, New York, which is traversed by 480,000 foot passengers daily although over 700,000 pass through in tram car or motor car. The next in importance is the Puerta del Sol (Gate of the Sun), Madrid, into which nine or ten great arteries of traffic discharge their streams, and which carries 360,000 people daily. Finally come the Friedrichstrasse Berlin, and the Vladimirski Prospekt, St. Petersburg, with 300,000, and the Graben, Vienna, with a daily average of 275,000 persons.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

WOOD AND INDUSTRY

Twelve Thousand Ontario Manufacturers Require Wood

Leaving out of consideration the numerous industries engaged in the production of shingles, lath, ties bridge-timber and rough lumber, there still remain at least thirty-eight different industries in Ontario more or less dependent on wood for their operations, and it is significant that even the makers of wood substitutes require wood in the process of manufacturing such. The exhaustion of Ontario's wood supplies, the depletion of which is already evident from the fact that over one-quarter of the total expenditure of $19,161,284 is paid for imported wood stock, would seriously cripple every Ontario industry.

Thirty-four different kinds of wood were used by these industries in the manufacture of everything in wooden produce from toys to threshing machines. Only eight of these woods had to be entirely obtained from outside sources, but, on the other hand, only six were entirely home grown. However, almost 90 per cent. of the three principal species, namely, pine, spruce and maple, which represented over one-half the total quantity used, were purchased in Ontario.

The sash and door industry easily takes first place among the wood-using industries, using 31.3 per cent. of the 807,456,000 feet, board measure, of rough lumber annually worked up by the one thousand two hundred Ontario manufacturers reporting to the Forestry Branch. The importance of this one industry will better be understood by comparison with the pulp industry, which although using 119,496,000 feet, board measure, of raw material, nevertheless was responsible for only 14.8 per cent. of the total consumption.

THE QUESTION OF SLANG

Always Changing, as Youth Must Have its Own Variety

However much slang we may use ourselves, we all dislike and despise slang that is not our own. Old men who have tender memories of the slang of their own youth, see nothing but pertness and vulgarity in the slang of their grandsons, and for all of us there comes a time when we no longer feel contemporary with the slang of the present, when we have no part in making or using it, and have to ask what it means when we first hear it used. Then the new slang words seem to us presumptuous upstarts expressive of the general brainless presumption of youth, and indeed they are expressive of that free masonry of youth which we no longer share. Slang, in its first meaning, seems to have been the language of thieves, and it still keeps something of this first meaning in that it is the language of youth keeping its own secrets from middle age, and a token by which the young recognize all who are of their fellowship. That is the reason why it is always changing, for youth must always make its own slang afresh. The slang of five years ago is middle-aged and has associations that are already hostile. No self-respecting youth can use the slang of his uncle; indeed, he pities his uncle for finding any savor or fun in words so old fashioned. Elderly men have always protested against the vulgarity of new slang and professed to fear that the English language would be utterly corrupted by it. But the language outlives the slang, for the slang passes with the youth that made it, or only stays when it expresses a newly-discovered thing rather than a mood that is always coming and always going.

When a man sticks to a job he doesn't like, it's because he needs the money.

The more rings a woman has on her fingers the oftener her back hair needs adjusting.

Many a man who thought he could set the world on fire turned out to be a wet blanket.

Women dress to please the men, but some men are so all-fired contrary they refuse to be pleased.

As soon as a man begins to think he knows a woman thoroughly something crops out in her personality that entirely upsets his calculations.

Rescue Frozen Birds

The monks of St. Bernard's monastery in the Alps have lately been extending to birds the hospitality which they offer to travelers overtaken by storm. During a heavy snowstorm they saw a dense black cloud of migrating swallows approach. Immediately all the windows of the monastery were opened, and a few moments later halls and cells were filled with thousands of the half-frozen birds. There the little travellers spent the night in safety, and next morning they flew through the open windows and set out once more on their long journey to the south.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and larger packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. CALLINGS WORTH WHILE CALLS FOR INDUSTRY

The Farm is Not the Only Place For the Man to Avoid Who Dislikes Work

The country has natural advantages over the city which the latter can never hope to duplicate. There is a sweet communion with nature to be enjoyed on the farm that is impossible along the walled boulevards of the busy business city. There is freedom, fresh air, good water, health in its fullest measure and eternal joy for the lover of nature in the unlimited outdoor life of a Canadian farm. But all this has existed through the years in which the sons of the soil have been shaking the clay of their fathers' farms from off their heavy boots and donning the patent leathers of city pavements. Conditions are changing. The mail is now delivered at the farm gate; the ring of the telephone breaks the monotony of the kitchen, and facilities for travel are yearly being improved. The farm is not the isolated wilderness which many believe it to be. But when it comes right down to brass tacks, are any of the previously mentioned advantages or improvements destined to become the real magnet which shall inseparably attach the farm boy to the farm or exert such a drawing force on those already in other walks of life as to attract them back and hold them fast to that which is good? We are afraid not. People cannot live on beautiful scenery fresh air loaded with the scent of apple blossoms, and water, be it ever so pure. While these, with conveniences now being enjoyed, are factors towards improving conditions, they are not life itself. They may aid in throwing agriculture into a new light, but they are not destined to be the fundamental cause of the changed conditions which are coming. If the majority of our farm boys are to make farming their occupation they must see in it an attractive life, and the greatest incentive to the young man is a fair and sure profit on his operations. The young men of the farm are not afraid of work. They know that farming means work, but so does any other occupation, and as a usual thing according as one works so he succeeds. The farm has no place for him who is afraid of work, but neither has any other calling worth while.—Farmers' Advocate.

Sea birds, sensitive to pending changes in the weather, fly inland at the approach of stormy weather in quest of food.

Eggs of different species of birds greatly differ in shape, but the yolks are invariably spherical.

Huge Sums For Racing

Statistics relative to prize money allotted by the various racing clubs at Australia show the great strides made in the Commonwealth of late years. For one racing season the prize money amounted to a grand total of $3,111,165, while the combined race clubs of Great Britain and Ireland disbursed $3,793,895, a record amount.

THE PINCH HITTER MUST WATCH BALL

Ham Hyatt, One of the Most Famous Exponents, Never Hits at First Ball.

"It's just a case of hit or miss. To-day you do. To-morrow you don't."

Ham Hyatt thus sizes up the art of pinch hitting. Nearly always he makes good, sometimes he fails. Occasionally he strikes out—but not often. By some baseball followers Ham is hailed as the greatest pinch hitter in the world. The Pittsburg club carried the great norther-westerner for his pinch hitting alone. With muscles like steel and nerve as cool as an iceberg, together with the eye and the knack of hitting, Ham was a big asset to the club.

Time and again the big fellow delivered the punch that won for the Pirates. A few times he failed, but not even Hyatt can always hit the ball out of the lot.

Meet Ball Squarely

"It is all in meeting a ball squarely," said Ham when asked to discuss the art of batting. "You may hit a ball ever so hard, but if you have taken your eye off it and not hit it fairly it matters not how hard you swing. It will not travel."

Ham was asked why he invariably lets the first ball go by in a pinch without offering at it.

"Well, now, do you think that is a fair question?" laughed Ham. "If I answer that don't you think I will be tipping my hand to the pitchers?" After a little urging he undertook to explain the point. "I pass up the first one," he said, "and so do most hitters, to see what the pitcher has. By that I mean that I try to judge his speed if it is a fast ball and to see his curve if it is a curve. As I only get to bat in pinches I can't tell just what the pitcher has. I can't judge a pitcher's speed from the bench, nor can folks in the grand stand. You must be at the plate to look 'em over to get a line on them.

Learning His Lesson

"When I was with Kansas City I was hitting well above the .300, and they told me that if I would quit hitting at the first ball I would be even better. The manager remarked once that I was better with a strike or two against me than by cracking at the first one, which often resulted in my popping out or grounding out. I followed his advice and learned from him that it was a lot better to look one or two over so that I could judge the speed and the break of the pitcher's curve and time my swing better. It improved my hitting." Asked about his first appearance as a pinch hitter, Ham replied:

"Oh, it was over in Cincinnati one day in 1909, if I remember correctly. I had never been in a big league game, nor had I acted as a pinch hitter in the minors, where they played me regularly. I forget who I batted for that day, but I think it was one of the pitchers. I got a three-base hit and we won the game. From that time on "Cap" Clarke gave me lots of chances."

PRAIRIE TREE-PLANTING

Government Helps Prairie Farmers Establish Woodlots

For several years over two and a half million tree seedlings and cuttings have been distributed annually to the prairie farmers by the Dominion Government Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head. The young trees are supplied only to bona fide farm-owners in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and then only in small lots not exceeding five hundred seedlings in any one year. The success of western tree-plantations depends not so much on the climate conditions, as is erroneously supposed, but rather on the care taken with the delicate young seedlings before and after planting. The principal trees planted in the West are ash, maple, cottonwood, willow and Russian poplar. The first two do well together, and ash especially is much in favor with the farmers, having probably the lowest death-rate of any. Willow and poplar are usually supplied as cuttings and do well together. The Russian willow is growing in popularity with the farmers on account of its ease of propagation, its quick-growing qualities, hardiness and freedom from disease. That spruce, larch (tamarack), and Scotch pine will also do well on the prairies is no longer questionable.

The best results are in all cases attained by planting the trees in the spring in belts at least twenty yards wide on well-prepared soil, such as summer-fallow, or garden land, the trees being spaced about four feet apart and planted in rows to permit machine cultivation in order to protect the soil from weeds and evaporation until the trees grow large enough for their branches to meet.

As a thankoffering on the coming of age of their elder son, the Marquis of Titchfield, and to mark their silver wedding, the Duke and Duchess of Portland wrote asking the Committee of Management of the Mansfield Hospital to accept a sum of between $30,000 and $35,000, to liquidate the debt on the King Edward Memorial Wing that is being erected.

MODERN METHODS OF SAVING TIME

Machinery Replaces Human Brains and Hands—Office Work Reduced to Minimum

Novelties in the line of devices to [illegible] in offices have come out in great numbers recently.

A new adding machine has an adding capacity of 10,000,000 and a weight of 13½ pounds. It adds, subtracts, and multiplies. It has seven keys, and an error-correcting device.

Another adding machine has a "Mezzanine" attachment, a keyboard on runways above the regular keyboard, which is said to make easy the solution of involved arithmetical operations.

An electric calculating machine, automatic after the necessary key has been depressed, multiplies, divides, and subtracts with astonishing speed.

Another calculating machine computes pay rolls, total time, and total pay, based on wages per week, per day, or per year.

An addressing machine about the size and weight of a typewriter prepares an address on a metal plate almost as quickly as it could be written on paper with a typewriter.

A special paper for the stencil addressing machines can be placed in any typewriter and written on in the usual way. The striking of the type makes the necessary perforations in the paper, which can then be placed in an ordinary stencil addressing machine and invoices, wrappers, cards, and other matter can be addressed by the thousand in exact facsimile of typewriting.

Presses for baling waste paper effect great savings in offices and large buildings, as every scrap of waste paper is utilized and sold.

A new carbon paper has an uncarbonized strip five-eighths of an inch wide, running lengthwise on the surface edge. This obviates soiling the hands and the paper.

A check machine writes a word at a stroke, impressing the same in indelible characters in the body of the check. It is impossible to remove the letters to raise the amount.

A coin counter will count hundreds of coins in a few minutes and deposit them in tubular containers.

A coin-banding machine will deliver a given amount of change in any variety desired, from one cent to $200.

There are several new envelope-sealing machines with capacities for sealing from 1,000 to 10,000 per hour sealing from 1,000 to 10,000 per hour.

A compact machine has been devised which will sign five checks simultaneously in exact facsimile of the original.

A new stencil machine will cut the name and address of a customer, name of shipper, routing, and special marks in a material much like cardboard. It cuts from five-eighths to one inch high.

A new typewriter model has two sets of keys. The turn of a knob immediately gives a complete change of type. Many different fonts can be used.

CAUSE OF TIDES

Many people regard the rise and fall of the ocean as a profound and baffling mystery. The mystery is not very hard to understand. As all know, the surface of the ocean rises and falls twice in every lunar day, this rise appearing along a coast to be a horizontal motion—always ebbing or flowing.

Now the lunar day consists of about twenty-five hours. Thus, of course, the "time" of the tides varies each day. The tides, moreover, do not always rise to the same height. Every fortnight, with the new and full moon, they rise very much higher than at other times.

These high tides are called "spring" tides, the alternating low tides being termed "neap." When the moon is nearest the earth, the rise and fall of the ocean is markedly increased. Thus the spring tides are greatest at the equinoxes—that is, at the end of March and the end of September.

Yes, you say, but what has the moon to do with it at all? Surely it is the sun which attracts the earth.

That is so. But, although the sun's attraction on the earth is far greater than the moon's, the moon is so very much nearer to the earth that the difference between its attraction at the centre and on the surface is three times as great as the sun's. And it is this difference which causes tides.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

IF HEAD ACHES AND YOUR EARS BUZZ YOU SURELY HAVE CATARRH

It doesn't matter how long you have suffered, or how often you have failed to get relief—even though Catarrh may affect every organ in your body, you can be permanently cured by inhaling the soothing vapor of Catarrhozone.

A few breaths through Catarrhozone Inhaler clears the phlegm out of the throat and stops your cough. The nostrils are cleaned of offensive mucous discharge, and sneezing and sniffling stop at once. Partial loss of hearing and headache (very common symptoms of catarrh) are quickly cured, and in a short time every trace of catarrh disappears.

Nothing can be simpler or more pleasant than Catarrhozone. It's healing piney vapor sends a warm cleansing sensation through all the air passages in the head and throat—makes you feel better in half a minute.

"My ears buzzed by the hour and I had frightful head noises," writes J. P. Purdy, from Port Huron. "Catarrh fairly filled my whole head and throat. I got relief mighty fast when I tried Catarrhozone; it hit the spot instantly. You bet Catarrhozone has cured me and I simply swear by it."

Get the complete $1.00 outfit; it does the trick in a hurry—never fails; small size 50c; trial or sample size 25c., sold by dealers everywhere.

Yesterday before His Honor Judge Huycke, Herbert Londry was charged with perjury in a case when, the prisoner, a blacklister, claimed to have got his liquor at Lindsay. Mr. Widdifield appeared for the defense and Mr. Wering for the Crown. Mr. Widdifield remarked that the prisoner had changed his plea to guilty. Mr. Widdifield said that the prisoner whilst making his former plea was under the influence. Mr. Widdifield asked for the prisoner's release as he, the prisoner, has a family and an aged mother. He said the prisoner hasthe offer of a four months' job. Mr. Wearing left the Judge's sentence to the Judge. He said the prisoner 15 minutes after making his first statement, corrected it. His Honor told the prisoner that he, the prisoner, had once made promises that had not been kept. He reserved sentence until Friday.

Redmond said: "Mr. Croft received express parcels every day in the week, and all were regularly billed to him. What he received by express and did not pay for was only a very small portion compared to what he paid for. The idea for bringing in the liquor in a secret way was to keep it hidden from the public, so that they would not know anything of it, also that he would not be subject to a prosecution under the Liquor License Act. We did not want to get into any trouble. We were not wanting to beat anybody out of any money. Mr. Croft, as far as I know, did not want to beat any person out of any money or anything else.

GREAT SPECTACULAR FILM 'NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER'

Opens Engagement at Grand to Representative and Appreciative Audience Last Night

That famous natatorial expert, Miss Annette Kellermann, using as vehicle an eight-thousand foot motion picture entitled, "Neptune's Daughter," delighted a large and enthusiastic audience at the Grand last night. En passant, Miss Kellermann herself plays a return engagement, as headliner at the Palace Theatre, New York, this current week.

We could wish we had space at our disposal to adequately describe this really wonderful motion picture in full detail, but the pressure of war news forbids more than an expression of thanks to Manager Turner for bringing to Peterboro' a motion picture production which ranks second to none amongst pictorial exhibitions lovely natural scenery of Bermuda, seen in this city. The staging, the the thrilling episodes with which the film is brimfull, the marvellous feats of Annette Kellermann in swimming, diving, dancing, fencing and acting, the work of Herbert Brenon, the capable producer of many other Universal successes; all these combined leave nothing to be desired. As described on the programme, "Neptune's Daughter" is indeed a "weird, wild and wonderful fantasy of the sea," and our local playgoers should pack the Grand at each of the succeeding four performances, via matinee and evening to-day and Wednesday.

RECOVERING FROM EFFECTS OF THE WAR

If Regina can be taken as an example, it would appear that Western cities are already recovering from the early effects of the war. The merchants are taking a calm view of the situation, and many have combined to keep the price of goods as low as possible. Some 29 merchants have already announced that they will sell goods at a very low margin, and the result has been that prices have not advanced, and in a great many instances have been reduced.

The city of Regina has taken steps to assist the settlers in the drouth areas of Western Canada. All such settlers who have stock for which they have no feed, have been notified to ship their stock to the Regina Municipal Stockyards, where they will be properly fattened, and the proceeds, less the cost of feeding, will be returned to the farmer. This assures the farmer of good returns for his stock. A proper agreement which protects both the farmer and the city has been prepared.

The fact that thousands of acres of good land in Western Canada are not cultivated has resulted in the Regina Board of Trade starting a "closer settlement" movement. This movement has been started with the idea of increasing the production of Western Canada, as it is felt that the present is a very opportune time for such a scheme.

Even the ladies of Regina are availing themselves of the opportunity to economise. The Regina Local Council of Women have arranged for the holding of special garden produce market days, when produce will be sold at low prices. Up to the present little use has been made of the municipal market for such purposes, the average citizen having purchased such goods from the grocer or butcher. The ladies now, however, are making the market an entire success.

Public works to the value of approximately $350,000 will be proceeded with at once at Regina. The works to be undertaken or completed include the 5,000,000 gallon reservoir; filtration beds at the sewage disposal works; completion of walls and roof of the isolation hospital, and completion of proposed water and sewer extensions. In addition to these works, a number of other contracts are already being carried out, including the erection of the new power house and the pavement of the Broad street subway. It is expected that these works will provide employment for a large number of men.

The Saskatchewan Government has announced its intention of giving 1500 horses to the Empire. Dean Rutherford of the Saskatchewan University has arrived at Regina and will have charge of the selection of the horses.

Already, steps have been taken by manufacturing concerns in Regina, having in view preference for British and Canadian made goods.

Messrs. Campbell, Wilson and Strathdee, wholesale grocers at Regina, have now moved into their new warehouse at the corner of Scarth street and Dewdney avenue. This new building is five storeys in height, and over 125 feet square. The class of construction and the excellent arrangement make this building one of the finest warehouses in Saskatchewan.

Germans Credit British With Saving Paris, French Active in German Congo--Germans Are Repulsed

FRENCH FLEET HAVE BEEN SHELLING CATTARO FORTS FOR 48 HOURS

Not a Single Vessel Hit by the Enemy--Zeppelin Attacks Convent--Brave Act by Cultured Aviators--Comparative Calm at Aisne--Armistice Allowed Germans to Bring Their Dead Weich Encumbered the Trenches

London, Sept. 29.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Venice, dated Sunday, says that the French fleet at that time had been in action for the last 48 hours, bombarding the port of Cattaro, and the fortified islands on the Dalmatian coast.

Zeppelin Bombs Harm Convent

London, Sept. 29.—A Central News despatch from Amsterdam says that further forays have been made by Zeppelin dirigible balloons. Four bombs were dropped on Deynze, 9 miles to the southeast of Ghent, and two thrown on Thielt, 15 miles southeast of Bruges. At the former place the Convent of St. Vincent was badly damaged.

French Vessels Not Even Hit

Washington, Sept. 29.—Official denial of the sinking of a French warship by the Austrian forts at Cattaro was made to-day by the French Admiralty, through the Embassy here.

"The French Secretary for the Navy has made known that this statement is entirely false, and that there is nothing to justify such a report. Up to date (September 28) no French warship has been touched by an Austrian projectile," said the Admiralty statement, which attributed to the report to the Cologne Gazette."

Credit British With Saving Paris

New York, Sept. 29.—A despatch to The Tribune from The London Standard correspondent at Bordeaux says:

"In the hospital here there is a German officer, badly wounded. He speaks freely during intervals of ease and pain, and confirms in every respect what others have said, that the German generals have one great idea — to try to crush the British troops. This is to be done at any cost. They think they would have been in Paris long ago but for the brilliant stand of the small British army.

French in German Congo

Paris, Sept. 29.—"It is officially announced that the French forces in Equatorial Africa have re-occupied the greater part of the Congo territory ceded to Germany by the treaty of 1911," says the Bordeaux correspondent of the Havas agency.

Japs Capture Four Guns

Tokio, Sept. 29.—An official announcement to-day concerning the progress of events in Kiao-Chow is as follows:

"Japanese forces during the day and night of September 27, drove the enemy in the direction of Tsing-Tau.

"The Japanese casualties were 150, the German losses are not known, but fifty men and four machine guns were captured. This action, which was speedier than anticipated, has accelerated the general attack.

"The fleet has attacked the Iltis fort, effectively aided by the army.

Calm in Trenches a Surprise

Paris, Sept. 29.—The comparative calm on the French battle line yesterday, after Sunday's storm of shot and shell, was a surprise. It was supposed that the extreme violence of the German attack meant a determination to finish the campaign on the Aisne by breaking the Allies' line at all costs, and the pressure, it was expected, would continue, especially on the Allies' left, where the Germans had brought up reinforcements.

The centre, however, was the only point seriously attacked, probably on the supposition that the line here has been weakened to reinforce the left. One theory is that the armistice of four hours granted by the French for burying the dead, was not sufficient, and that the invaders needed the entire day to get rid of the bodies encumbering the trenches.

PRIEST AIDS PROTESTANT CHAPLIAN TO SOOTH DYING

Bordeaux, Sept. 29.—A young German soldier lay dying of his wounds in Bordeaux hospital. He asked for spiritual consolation and a French Protestant chaplain came to his side. The chaplain, however, spoke no German. Hearing of the difficulty, a Catholic priest volunteered to interpret. The Protestant minister pronounced the words of consolation and peace in French and the priest translated them into German to the dying man, who breathed his last peacefully.

GERMANS GHECKED BY THE RUSSIANS

London, Sept. 29.—The following official communication from the chief of the general staff, regarding the Russians operations, has been given out at Petrograd.

"Russian troops are driving fast on the offensive in the forests of Augustowo, in Russian Poland, Province of Suwalki.

"The Germans are using heavy siege artillery in the bombardment of the fortress of Ossowetz. An attempt by the German infantry to close in on the fortress has been checked.

"On the front at Silesia the enemy has been greatly reinforced and shows much activity.

"Sorties by the garrison of Przemysl have not been successful. Many prisoners, a number of cannon, and some stores of ammunition have fallen into our hands.

"As the austrian retreat in Galicia continues great confusion is noticeable in their ranks.

NEWFOUNDLAND MAN LOST

London, Sept. 29.—Among those lost by the sinking of the H.M.S. Cressy was Lieutenant-Commander Bernard Matheson Harvey, son of the late Hon. Mr Harvey, St. John's Newfoundland.

THE GERMANS ARE WAR-MAD BARBARIANS

Given a Taste of Blood in China to Fit Them for Similar Atrocities in England and Europe. Natives in Africa Butchered

Dr. Louis Livingston Seaman, of New York, it will be remembered, cabled to New York from Antwerp, an indignant protest against the bombardment of that city by Zeppelins. Dr. Seaman is a well-known figure in New York, he has figured conspicuously, for instance, in the work of the American Committee for the celebration of the Century of Peace. An English journalist had an interview with Dr. Seaman, part of which may be quoted:—

The doctor (says the interview) is a typical product of the United States, with a hobby for [illegible] out to some—officially when his country is engaged, unofficially otherwise. With means enough to pursue his hobby and with a surgical skill which makes him welcome in any hospital, he has seen every war of his generation "from the inside." He came to Antwerp instinctively, and the next day was tending the Zeppelin wounded, and working to rouse the United States to a sense of the atrocities of German war methods.

"It is not exactly news to me" he said, "and I reckon it won't be exactly news to America that these Germans are war-mad barbarians, I have seen a good deal of them before this. The other day in Potsdam I saw proudly displayed the astronomical instruments which the Germans, under Von Waldersee, stole from Peking. That was a vandal trick against which our General Chaffee in China protested at the time. The German General sent his letter back to him without any reply.

"In the Boxer campaign (I was there) the Germans practised on the Chinese the game they are playing on the Belgians now. Their army came when all the real fighting was over. By August 13 there was no more fight left in the Chinese than in so many jack rabbits. The Germans arrived Nov. 20, and for want of any fighting began a policy of sympathetic murder. They'd send punitive expeditions all round the country, levying on each village they encountered a war tax. If the tax were not paid the village were fired, and the inhabitants fired upon. From accounts which came into us the native population was in some cases almost exterminated. That was to give the German soldier his taste of blood, to fit him for the work he is doing now in Belgium, and might be doing in England if the luck had gone that way.

"I saw more of the Germans in their colony in East Africa in 1914. I was out there investigating sleeping sickness. The Germans had opposed a most oppressive hut tax on the natives, a tax which could only be paid by six months forced labor each year; and the natives were stirred up by their priests to revolt. German atrocity in reprisal was something incredible. One incident. The priests or magic men, to encourage the natives, had told them that the German rifles shot out nothing but water, which would not harm them. Well, one day, before my very eyes, the Germans collected 200 of the chief men of a village, assembled all the rest of the inhabitants, including women and children, strung the men up to trees and then fired volleys into their hanging bodies. The firing went on until the bodies were riddled with holes."

FURIOUS HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING WILL DECIDE THE BATTLE OF THE AISNE

British and French are Past Masters of the Bayonet Art--Allies Again Capture Numerous Prisoners, Eighteenth Day of Battle, Germans in Offensive Incessantly Thrown Back With Frightful Loss. Russians Have Good Foothold in Hungarian Soil

PARIS, SEPT. 29.—ON OUR LEFT WING ALONG THE RIVER SOMME, THE FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT ISSUED THIS AFTERNOON SAYS THE GERMANS ATTEMPTED NUMEROUS ATTACKS, WHICH THE ALLIES REPULSED.

THE TEXT OF THE STATEMENT IS AS FOLLOWS:—

"FIRST—ON OUR LEFT WING, TO THE NORTH OF THE SOMME AND BETWEEN THE SOMME AND THE OISE, THE ENEMY, BOTH BY DAY AND BY NIGHT, DELIVERED SEVERAL ATTACKS, ALTHOUGH THEY HAVE BEEN REPULSED. TO THE NORTH OF THE AISNE, THERE HAS BEEN NO CHANGE.

"SECOND—ON THE CENTRE IN CHAMPAGNE AND TO THE EAST OF THE ARGONNE, THE ENEMY HAS RESTRICTED HIS ACTIVITIES TO HEAVY CANNONADING. BETWEEN THE ARGONNE AND THE MEUSE THERE HAS BEEN SLIGHT PROGRESS ON THE PART OF OUR TROOPS, WHO ARE CONFRONTED BY STRONGLY ORGANIZED POSITIONS.

A "Notable Modification"

"On the heights of the Meuse, in the Woevre district, and on our right wing Lorraine and Vosges, there has been a notable modification in the situation.

Took Numerous Prisoners

"We again took many prisoners yesterday. They belong principally to the 7th Active Corps and the 7th Reserve Corps of the German army, and also to the 10th, 12th, 15th and 19th German Army Corps.

Eighteenth Day of Battle

London, Sept. 29.—The eighteenth day of the Battle of the Aisne thus far has brought no decisive result, but all indications continue to point to an approaching end to the homeric struggle. Hand-to-hand fighting now raging with such fury is bound, it is generally held, to decide the issue.

Meanwhile the fog which the French official report announced yesterday has prevented operations in Woevre district covers metaphorically the rest of the long battle line.

Human Battering Ram Fails

All that the public is permitted to know from the allied side is that so far the British and French armies have held their grip on their positions and have consistently thrown back the masses of Germans who have been incessantly hurled on them in an effort to break through the human barrier.

The losses of the opposing armies in the last few days of the fierce combat have been colossal. Even the official report contains a gruesome picture of thousands of dead and wounded lying in the fire-swept zone between the two armies and every fresh assault is adding to the ghastly litter.

Zeppelins Are Omnipresent

Gibes no longer are heard at the inactivity of the Zeppelin baloons, which now seem omnipresent. One of these unwelcome visitors created consternation yesterday at Bialystok, to the southwest of Grodno, some sixty miles inside the Russian frontier. This dirigible apparently was more fortunate in getting away than was her sister ship, which was shot down in the neighborhood of Warsaw on the previous day.

Russians Well Into Hungary

It seems now to be officially admitted at Budapest that the Russians have secured a good foot-hold on Hungarian soil, having crossed the frontier in the Ung district in considerable strength. In the plains in front of them the Muscovites will find their main obstacle to be the River Theiss which is flanked by marshes. It is believed there are no forts on the plain but possibly fortifications recently have been thrown up.

AISNE BATTLE LOSS 280.000

PARIS, Sept. 29.—While no authentic figures are obtainable from military headquarters, officers who are familiar with the situation declare that the German casualties in the battle of the Aisne, now believed entering its decisive stage, total fully 180,000 in killed, wounded, and missing. The losses of the Allies, they say will probably reach 100,000, inasmuch as at many points of the line it has been found necessary to deliver frontal attacks on heavily entrenched positions.

The British have lost heavily, but all the gaps in their forces have been filled with the members of the latest expedition to reach France.

VISITING EXPERT HAS HIGH PRAISE FOR CANADIAN RAILWAY

Mr. E. E. Goff, of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway has just concluded a tour of the Dominion. He declares that he has been greatly impressed with the progress made by Canadian railroads and by the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific, in particular.

The immensity of the Grand Trunk System's mileage and the unlimited possibility of further extension first impressed him. He says:—

"Next, the remarkable engineering obstacles of bridging and tunnelling that have been overcome in linking up so huge a system, apart from the present rapid development could hardly have been foreseen.

I was particularly struck with the good understanding which exists between the executive and the staff. The result of this mutual confidence was manifest in the local enthusiasm and efficiency of the various departments of work at the headquarters in Montreal, as well as elsewhere, and made for a general esprit de corps which is not often met with. Outside the office atmosphere the same spirit was evidenced between the travelling public and the staff. The hotels of the Grand Trunk are wonderfully homelike and surprisingly cheap. The 'Chateau Laurier,' one of the finest hotels in the world, is suitably located and a truly magnificent building. The method of dealing with passengers' luggage strikes one as remarkably simple and effective, and is a real time and worry saver. On the commercial side, the grain elevator, added to the many things that interested a stranger, and so did the large freight terminal I had the privilege of going over. Another noticeable feature that impressed me not a little was the unsolicited efforts made by one and all to see that traffic, not merely in a concrete sense, but in individual merchandise, was expeditiously transported. This regard for commerce has evolved itself into a system known as the "Manifest freight service," whereby it is within the region of possibility to keep an eye on each whole train-load of important merchandise, but on each car-load as well, from the moment of despatch from shipping point, as they term it in Canada, to destination."

Effective, Economical Complexion Renewer

One reason mercolized wax is so strongly recommended is that it really takes the place of several different cosmetics, saving time, patience and expense. It is better than any cleansing cream, better than any massage cream, and better than any rouge, for accomplishing the results for which such articles are used. As the wax actually absorbs an old, faded or discolored cuticle, a little each day, the underlying skin which gradually appears, is clearer, softer, healthier-hued and more youthful than any cosmetic-made complexion. Spreading on a thin coat of this wax at night, washing it off mornings, in a week or so produces a marvelous transformation. Just one ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, will do the work. There's nothing better to remove freckles, moth patches, liver spots, sallowness, blotches, pimples or blackheads.

For wrinkles and lines, a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel, is the best thing that can be recommended. This has remarkable astringent and tonic properties.

FOUR MERCHANTMEN SUNK BY GERMANS

German Cruiser Emden Delivers Crushing Blow to British Fleet

London, Sept. 29.—The official war bureau this afternoon gave out the following:

The German cruiser Emden during the last few days in the Indian ocean has sunk the British steamers Tamerie, King Lud, Liberia, and Foyle. It captured the British steamer Griesdale but later relegated her to carry the crews of the steamers sunk to colombo

"The Emden also captured the collier Buresk.

The Emden has been operating in the Gulf of Bengal. She was reported recently at Madras, where she conducted a brief bombardment of that port, and later at Pondicherry.

REMAINS OF LATE PREMIER WHITNEY CONVEYED TO LAST RESTING PLACE

Touching Funeral Tribute to a Statesman Whose Memory Will Ever Live Green in Ontario's History--Cortege Half a Mile Long--Solemn Service in St. James Cathedral Yesterday--Royal Representatives Present

Toronto, Sept. 29.—Members of the Legislature from all sections of the Province found their way to the Parliament Buildings to-day to pay their last respects to the late Sir James Whitney. Liberal and Conservative members forgot all party lines in their common feeling of deep regret at the loss of one who had earned the respect and regard of friend and foe alike. There were present also representatives of the Duke of Connaught, the House of Commons, the Nova Scotia Legislature and the Manitoba Legislature. The Buildings were closed to the general public. Those who had sat in the Legislature with the late Premier silently passed by the body and paid their last tribute.

The funeral cortege, which stretched almost from Carlton to King streets, began its march shortly before nine o'clock. In front walked members of the Liberal Conservative Association of Toronto. Following them came the funeral car, and directly behind it the members of the late Premier's family. Sir Henry Pellatt, the representative of the Governor-General, came next, followed by Hon. W. T. White, Hon. Frank Cochrane and Hon. A. Kemp, representing the Dominion government. Then came the representatives of the Nova Scotia and Manitoba Governments. The members of the Legislature came next and members of the Ontario Civil Service brought up the rear on foot.

Crowds Lined the Route

The route of march, east on St. Albans to Wellesley, along Wellesley to Jarvis, to King, and then west to St. James' Cathedral, was lined with people. A large crowd was massed around the entrance to the Cathedral, and the building was filled to the doors with people from all stations in life anxious to pay the last honors to the memory of the late Sir James Whitney.

The congregation was composed largely of men, many of them grey haired—great men and small, rich and poor—come to honor, not so much the Premier of Ontario, as Sir James Whitney, the man whose indomitable spirit had for a time foiled even death.

The eastern sun streamed warmly in through the stained windows, striking aslant the black and white of the clergy.

The low notes of the organ swelled tenderly over the chancel and down the body of the Church as the solemn procession drew near. The bells tolled; the great congregation held its breath.

"I Am the Resurrection"

"I am the Resurrection and the life."

The everlasting words of comfort sounded bravely forth as the procession, headed by the black robed clergy and the scarlet-uniformed army, marched slowly down the aisle.

Borne high on the shoulders of the pall bearers came the coffin, and following it a grey-haired, black-coated procession of those who came to pay their last respects to their friend.

"Peace, Perfect Peace," that hymn so filled with calm and power, was sung by all, gently, with reserve, as by a strong people whom even Death could not dismay.

The service was conducted by the Right Rev., the Bishop of Toronto, Canon Plumptre, of St. James', Provost Macklem, of Trinity, and Canon Dixon.

At Union Station

The proceedings at the Union Station were simple, yet impressive. The coffin was borne into the train through the lower entrance, placed in a car, and covered with flowers. A small procession came to the train, most of them going with the body to Morrisburg.

Just before the train pulled out a few of the clergy came and stood at the car door. Among them was the Bishop of Manitoba, a tall, spare, commanding figure of a man, the Bishop of Toronto, Canon Dixon, and Hon. Dr. Pyne.

GENTLE GERMAN GOVERNESS SPY IN ENGLISH FAMILY

An Englishman residing in Ottawa has received a letter, dated September 14th, from relatives in England. In the course of it the following passage occurs:—

"The M——'s of G—— had a German governess for the children. The police called at G—— castle a few days ago and asked to have her sent out for a walk, as they wished to search her room. This they did, and found a number of bombs, maps, etc., concealed in her trunks and about the room, and they say other German governesses round Hereford have been found doing the same thing."

The Onion

What is the reason that so few people eat onions nowadays. The onion used to be a stand-by in this country, but it is getting to be about as popular as a divorced husband at the wedding feast. There is nothing that will bring tears of repentance to a hardened sinner's eyes quicker than a stout, wide-hipped Bermuda onion with teeth like a rip-saw and a grip like an entered apprentice. One of these onions, sprinkled with tabasco sauce and inhaled slowly before each meal, will cause a man to perspire at high speed when the thermometer is 40 degrees below zero. Physicians tell us that if people would eat more onions they would have fewer microbes roosting about in their systems, as onions are death to germs of all kinds. The onion is also death to the course of true love—after marriage, but not before.

AN ECCENTRIC PLAYER

Recruit Catcher Had Queer Ideas and Had Trouble With Trunk

Most ball players have peculiarities of one kind or another. But it remained for a player named Evans, a former Cub catcher recruit, to have a number of them. On a spring training trip several years ago he had the boys wondering what he would do next. Evans was a confirmed pipe smoker. It was seldom out of his mouth. When the other men would be rehearsing on the ball field Evans would be sitting on the bench pulling at his pipe. One day Frank Chance, becoming irritated, ordered him to get behind the plate during batting practice.

The recruit lazily donned his shinguards and chest-protector. Then, keeping his short black pipe between his teeth, he caught for nearly fifteen minutes, puffing away in a most contented manner.

At Vicksburg, Miss., one day some of the Cubs noticed Evans dig up a little dirt near the plate, place something carefully in the hole and cover it up with exceeding care. He repeated this trick at every stop. Finally they discovered it was a signet ring. He chose this method of protecting it against loss or injury.

He also carried an old trunk along on the trip, bearing a large sign. The motto was, "Handle with care." In this he had nearly five quarts of beef, iron and wine for the purpose of building up his system. He had nearly as much dope as Trainer Semmons had for the entire team. This extract he took religiously three times a day.

One trip his trunk was badly smashed by the baggagemen and several of the bottles broken. It was exceedingly annoying but Evans insisted on lugging the affair along until Secretary Charley Williams objected.

"The railroads absolutely refuse to accept that trunk," said Williams.

So Evans had to purchase another. On this he placed a new sign. It read, "Handle with care, you smashed my last one."

GOLF HAS MANY THRILLS

Making a Hole in One Stroke Enough to Make Any Player Excited

It has been said that golf is not lively or exciting; that it presents few opportunities for either individuals or outsiders to enthuse; that it is too quiet, etc. While there are those ardent devotees of driver and cleek willing to admit that their favorite diversion is not wildly exciting; that opportunities rarely occur for partisan crowds to display their feelings, it is also claimed that golf unquestionably has its thrills.

For those having once experienced the sensation of making a hole in 1 it is needless to attempt to describe the feeling of exhilaration experienced by the lucky player as he sees his ball disappear in the cup. Many holes have been made in a single stroke that have always been more or less doubtful. Players have played over rising ground to blind greens and after searching for a considerable length of time have at last found "a ball" in the hole. On such occasions there is always an element of uncertainty.

Furthermore, jokes have been played on unsuspecting golfers, probably the most cruel one being that at the expense of a fat man and woman at a match several years ago. As a passerby stood near one of the greens of the course in question he noticed two balls, one after the other, land on the green in front of him. They had evidently come from the tee, which could not be seen from the green. Scarcely had the balls come to rest ere a couple of boys dashed from behind a clump of bushes, picked up the balls, dropped them in the hole, and scampered away as quickly as they had come. In a few moments the pair unsuspectingly came to the green and began looking for the balls. Finally the man casually beckoned his companion to see what he saw.

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "We have both holed out in one. Did you ever see anything like that?" Then they proceeded to rush to the club house to tell the wonderful tale, which undoubtedly they are still relating.

A Nautical Innovation

A novel feature of the Royal Holland Lloyd liner "Gelria" is the manner in which the name of the liner is displayed, either when passing stations or other ships or when lying in crowded harbors, says "Electricity."

The boat is fitted between the two funnels with an electric sign lantern 22 feet long by 6 feet deep, made of galvanized iron and bracing angles. The letters are fixed on both sides, and are colored red on the port side and green on the starboard, with white enamelled lettering for use in the daytime. The lettering is illuminated by lamps aggregating 3,000 candle-power.

Cocoanuts in Ceylon

The natives of Ceylon eat one and a half million cocoanuts a day. There are sixty million cocoanut trees on this island, and the surplus production of nuts is chiefly used to make copra, the dried "meat" of the nut, which is a valuable source of vegetable oils. It is estimated that there are produced yearly 600,000 to 700,000 tons of copra, valued at sixty-five million dollars. One-quarter of the world's production comes from the Philippine Islands.

PROTECTION FORESTS

Functions of Government Reserves Outlined—How Trees Help Soil

A perpetual timber supply, resulting from systematic methods of cutting is commonly and correctly supposed to be the chief purpose of making forest reserves.

Another purpose, scarcely, if at all inferior, is that of regulating the run-off from the water-sheds of rivers, on which, on account of the fact that the land is unsuited for farming, through its being too poor in quality or too rocky, or being too high a level and so exposed to frosts, trees form the most profitable crop.

Forests maintained for this latter purpose are called "protection forests." Possibly the best example of such a forest, and certainly the largest protection forest in the world, is the Rocky Mountains Forest Reserve in Alberta, which now has an area of 20,896 square miles.

Fortunately the Dominion Government early recognized the value of such protection forests, and, by the creation of forest reserves in the West, the great rivers of the plains having their source in these watersheds were saved from the disastrous floods, the low-water stages, and the filling up of the river-beds with eroded soil, so characteristic of the rivers originating in the denuded watersheds of the eastern United States.

In this latter region many areas in the Appalachian mountains, which cover a large part of Pennsylvania, Virginia, the Carolinas and other States were very severely cut, and have been repeatedly swept by fire so that the forests have been entirely destroyed. When rain falls on such an area, the water runs off almost immediately; if, on the other hand, the area were covered with forest, the soil would be more spongy and able to retain water, and the water would be hindered in running off by the tree-roots and the debris on the ground. Moreover, the water, in its rapid run-off, gradually takes with it the soil, and, where the soil covering the rocks is thin, it is apt to be washed away entirely. Hence there is lost any possibility of growing a new forest on the now bare rock. The soil carried away eventually found its way to the larger rivers and harbors, and did actual harm by silting these up.

ENGLISH-CANADIANS

Rev. Dr. Gordon, Winnipeg, Preaches Sermon on "An Englishman in Canada"

Here are some excerpts from a recent sermon by Rev. Dr. J. L. Gordon, Winnipeg, on "An Englishman in Canada.":

"I am not surprised that an Englishman should be homesick in Western Canada. I would be surprised if he were not. Think of England with her cathedral towns, her classic villages, her sacred monuments, her beautiful hedgelined roads, her solid splendor, her quiet dignity, her peaceful atmosphere and her ten thousand historical associations. It will be a thousand years before we will have anything to compare with the beauty —the fascinating beauty of Dear Old England.

"Yet I know certain Englishmen and Englishwomen who think and affirm that Canada is one of the finest places in the world in which to live. I have in mind at this moment one family of English emigrants of fair intelligence, average ability and less than normal health, who in a few years have purchased for themselves a modest but very comfortable home, made generous contributions to the church and kindred institutions, and induced almost a score of their relatives to join them on this side of the sea. They believe in Canada because they have succeeded in Canada (and Canada is a good country to succeed in). The emigrant who fails in Canada was a failure at home. Canada is another word for success.

"Canada is a good country. Less liquor is sold in Canada than in any other country—thanks to the 'temperance cranks.' Canada has the lowest death rate of any country in the world. There are fewer ignorant and illiterate people in Canada than in any other country. There are fewer paupers in Canada to the square mile than elsewhere. In Canada the working day is longer, the night brighter, the air more bracing, the social conditions more democratic and the prospects brighter than anywhere else on the North American continent. I believe in Canada!"

Look-out Towers

At a cost of only $50 the Dominion Forestry Branch recently erected a lookout tower fifty feet high, overlooking two hundred square miles of woodland. Similar towers are being built on all the Dominion forest reserves in the West in order that fires may be seen and extinguished before they have time to spread beyond control.

Eating Corn

To make eating corn from the cob easier and neater a New Jersey man has invented a knife with concave teeth to loosen the kernels.

Saving Labor

In rebuilding a church spire in England recently a 15 horsepower electric motor did the work of six men at about one-twentieth the cost.

Peter's Adventures In Matrimony

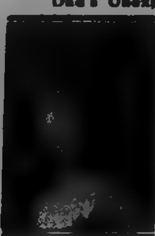
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 134.

Dad's Unexpected Visit.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

THE medicine Dad gave me for my nerves did help considerably, but Dad was one of those sensible old doctors who believes in finding the root of a disturbance instead of blindly quieting it, and, therefore, he subjected me to a more or less daily catechism.

He'd ring me up and drop into the office, and I could see that mother and he were worrying a little about my loss of weight. Not so Mary. I don't know just why it was, but she was too much absorbed in her own existence to notice that I looked tired and overworked, and that I was steadily losing weight.

My office associates had begun to notice it. My chief, one of the kindliest chaps I've ever known, offered me a vacation and a rest, but I somehow felt that if I gave up at all it would be like loosening a terrible tension. I would go utterly to pieces, and it would take me months to get into shape again. And I frankly could not afford it. There was my night work at the factory to be considered—I must keep that up or go irrevocably behind in my domestic expenses.

Now, some instinct had made me keep the fact of my night work at Foote's factory a secret from mother and dad. I knew very well they'd feel that a man's work should end at 6 o'clock, and that I was overdoing it by working on Foote's books after office hours. I could not keep this fact a secret long.

One night I was poring feverishly over the books there when I was conscious of a shadow across the glass of the factory window. I looked up and saw Dad peering curiously in. I laughed a little guiltily and opened the door for him.

"Hello, Peter," he said. "What in the world are you doing over here in this part of town?"

"What are you doing over here yourself?" I evaded.

"Well," said Dad, "that's really very simple. The watchman over in the factory across the street fell on one of his rounds, broke his arm, got to the telephone and 'phoned for me. I've been fixing him up and came back to turn in his keys. Did you know it's after 8 o'clock?"

"Yes," said I. "To tell you the truth, Dad, I'm frequently over here around this hour. I—I do Foote's book-keeping for him after I leave the office, and—and there's really much more to do than I thought there would be."

"Why?" said Dad very quietly.

I flushed.

"To tell you the truth," I said, "I have to have the extra money to keep things going."

"And that," said Dad, "is the cause of the nerves, eh? That's why my son, who was six feet in his stockings, and broad and ruddy, looks a little bent and haggard, and older than he ought. Peter, is Mary extravagant?"

I was face to face with the question at last. How to answer it? Must I admit that my wife was driving me to neurasthenia?

I looked at Dad and smiled.

"No more than I," I said. "The increased cost of living makes it a little hard for us to worry along on my salary."

"Hum," said Dad and stroked his beard. "I fancied for such a young man, Peter, you were doing marvellously well. Hum! How much does Foote pay you for this night work?"

"Twenty dollars a month," said I. "It helps."

"Keep on," said Dad, grimly, "and it will cost you double that a month to build up your nervous system." And Dad swung back the door of the factory office, slammed it—a most unusual thing for him—and disappeared.

It was a conversation that was destined to be very eventful for me.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am engaged to a young man who is a very nice young man, but he is the youngest boy in the family, and likes his own way. And if he does not get his own way with me all the time he gets quite angry and goes away for a while.

He knows I care for him very much. Should I let him see I care for him? Should I let him go?

VIOLA.

WELL, Viola, I don't thinks much of your young man, I must say. If you can't get on with him now, what are you going to do when you're married to him?

He must be a good deal of a boor—isn't he? Has he never learned to say "ladies first"? What does he want his own way about so desperately?

A man who is so determined to have his own way that he makes himself disagreeable to a girl about it can't be much of a gentleman.

Perhaps you don't care for gentlemen—in that case that, too, is your own affair. You'll have to settle it yourself.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

One Moral Effect of Lonesomeness

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

JUDGE ALLEN B. ENDICOTT is discouraged. More than that, Judge Endicott is worried—worried almost to death. He doesn't see what the world is coming to, or who is going to grab it by the scruff of the neck and pull it back into its proper place in the universe. All on account of the women.

"This decade will be known as the decade of woman's folly," says Judge Endicott. "Men are steadily going up in the moral plane; graft and the evils of ten years ago are disappearing—but the women are not keeping pace with the men.

"All over the world men are giving up the habit of drinking. A man can't drink too much and hold his job. Women are beginning to drink.

"Men are giving up smoking. They've had to. No corporation will employ a man in any position of trust who smokes cigarettes. And now the women are learning to smoke.

"Women spend most of their time in the arms of chauffeurs, cabmen, hucksters and others who pose as instructors in the new dances. The husbands of these women are down town working to buy new clothes for their wives, and the clothes that the women buy are so indecent that it has been found necessary for many of the churches to make a public protest against the modern fashion of woman's dress.

"Men are advancing in morals—and women are going back."

There—now will you be good?

And the worst of it is—it's true. So true that nobody who thinks at all can even attempt to deny it.

Men are better than they used to be—a whole lot better. They have to be—or the women won't marry them.

Men Are to Blame?

Fifty years ago six men out of ten drank a little too much once in a while. Now, if six men out of ten did that, they'd lose their jobs—both down town and at home. Employers will not hire a man who drinks—and a woman will not live with a drunken husband.

There's no great moral reform behind all this; it's simply a matter of expediency. Drink and the world drinks with you—but you'll have to hold your job alone.

And as to the women and their weird performances—how long did ye think, oh, masters of humanity, that you could set a bad example and not have the weaker sex follow it? How did you think that you could do one thing, and say another, and never have the women of your family notice it?

You have preached for generations about the virtue of modesty, humility, temperance, and obedience—and practised the very opposite of all these excellent qualities.

More than that, you have picked out for the objects of your conspicuous devotion women who wouldn't know Miss Modesty if they met her in the road, and who never obeyed anything or anybody in their lives.

A little girl sat in the school room the other day trying very hard to study. There was a substitute teacher and all the children were having fun with her.

They made faces and they mewed like kittens behind their books, and they threw spitballs and did everything they could to make the poor substitute miserable. The good little girl was shocked. She really liked the teacher, and, besides, she had promised her mother to get a certain grade in that particular lesson she was trying to study. So she studied and studied—and the teacher was very glad, for she loved the little girl and she was a friend of the little girl's mother.

But all at once the good little girl threw down her book, made a hideous face, and started to do a surreptitious tango under the edge of her foolish little skirty-coat. I don't know what might have happened—for just then the real teacher came back and order came with her.

Making His Home Attractive.

When the little girl's mother asked the good little girl about it, the good little girl looked very pitiful.

"Mother," she said, "I like to be good in school, I really, truly do—but, oh, I do hate to be lonesome."

Gentlemen of the jury—consider the evidence in the case, and consider it carefully.

Haven't you been letting the good little girl be pretty lonesome, all these years, and don't you think that has something to do with her sudden desperate attempt to act as much like the bad little girls as she can, in the hope of pleasing you, so she won't be lonesome any longer?

I knew a woman once who had a beautiful home, in a quiet, modest sort of way, but her husband never would stay in it. So one night when he came home to dinner he found the living room strangely altered.

There were no rugs and there were no books and there were no flowers—there was sawdust on the floor, there were empty bottles on the centre-table, and there was a strange smell of stale beer all over the place.

"I found out how it looked down at 'Tom's Place,'" said the woman I know, "and I thought I'd fix up the house the same way—to please you."

And then, when the man was not pleased, the woman cried.

Women are such dear, sweet, simple little things, you see. They believe what you do—and not what you say.

I don't believe there's anything particularly bad about the modern woman, Judge Endicott. I'm afraid she's just tired of being lonesome, that's all.

What do you think of it—honest and truly now?

SALARIES AND THE STAGE

Maud Hanaford
in "Along Came Ruth."

Art Is the Old Story of Dollars and Cents

By STELLA GORDON

IF you haven't any money," smiled Miss Hanaford, "you shouldn't come 'round the stage. I don't mean that money will even help you land a good part, but I do mean that it is foolish to face the long search for that part without enough money to live comfortably. More failures on the stage can be attributed to a lack of bread than a lack of talent.

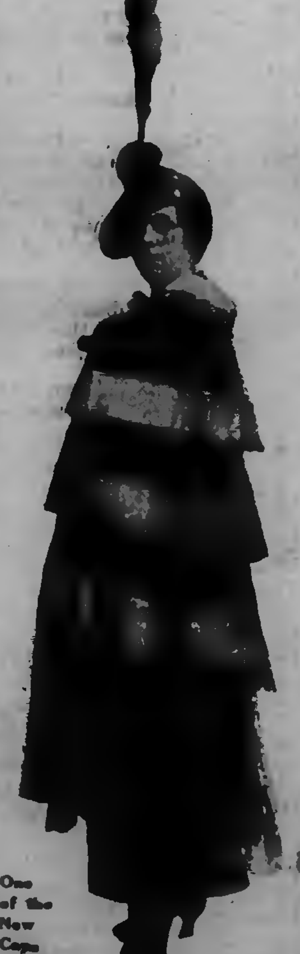
"While the glamour of the stage was entirely responsible for the stage-struck girl of yesterday, it is the glamour of big salaries that is responsible today. The press agents have written so many stories about the enormous sums their stars are supposed to make, the public has come to believe that the stage is carpeted with greenbacks. And when 'Sweet Sixteen' gets a tiny part in some company at $30 a week she thinks she is rolling in riches, and tells all of her amazed friends about it, and they spread the wonderful tale.

"But she forgets—and even the old performer seems to forget—that her weekly salary is at the best really only half of what she is paid. She is lucky if she gets her salary for 30 weeks a year—and she has to pay her expenses for 52 weeks. So you see, with even a good season's work 'Miss Sweet Sixteen'—and every one else of us—really nets just half what she is actually paid.

"It may seem unbelievable, but it is frankly true that there are many more actresses getting less than $50 a week than there are getting more than $50. Of course, as in every other profession, there is plenty of room—and money—at the top of the ladder, but I am speaking to the girl who is contemplating the stage as a business, and the chances are that she will never get to the top.

"Many a good business woman has been spoiled in the making of a poor actress, and I have listened to innumerable regrets that hold the sad wail of 'it might have been.' One little woman that I know was never tired of wishing that she had taken up stenography. She figured—rightly, too, in her case—that she was making less money on the stage than she could have made with a typewriter."

Enter the Cape, Very Latest Wrap for Fall



One of the New Cape Models.

THAT rage for black and white which has been affecting Paris throughout the summer will, if all prophecies are fulfilled, have an even more pronounced influence in the fall.

Fall capes show an astonishing interest in the blending of black and white. Many of the designs are certainly charming, uniting this daring simplicity of color combination with radical effects of design.

The design shown herewith is one of the newest phases of that furore for capes that is likely to be one of the most conspicuous appearances of the fall. The combination of satin and delicate crepe is a marked feature of many of the models that are prophetic of what is to come.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Beauty and Grace Are Signs of Well-Being

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

BEAUTY, whether awake or asleep, shouts forth peculiar graces. Many women speak mere nothings with so much grace that 'tis a kind of heaven to be deluded by them.

As long as a neat figure and a fair face are not neglected, all is optimism and the affairs of the world seem to go right. Almost any sort of a figure, girl's or youth's, man's or woman's, can be made elegant and dashing with the proper procedure. Take time enough and all other graces will soon fill up their proper places.

To some kinds of persons, their graces of form serve them but as enemies. This would, however, be a topsy-turvy world if what were comely envenomed her who bears it.

Strength and prowess in the fields of muscular daring are not looked for in women; but a good carriage, a cultured posture, with finish and grace of figure, are her elemental essentials.

The lack of feminine nobility, poise and muscular command among women is so notorious that training of railway guards and conductors, as well as the propaganda of safety-first education of railroads and street car companies, is directed toward the correction of this paramount feminine weakness. The want of muscular agility and drill among women—less apparent in those who dance—is not made up by corset wearing, posing and attitudinizing. Many who are artfully alert to these latter theatricals do not know how to board or disembark with grace and safety from a street car. Indeed, ninety-nine of the sweeter sex in each hundred leave a car backwards.

Instead of sanely, with security, walking forward in the direction in which the car is travelling as they step down upon the street, women, as a rule, awkwardly and in great danger to life and limb, use their right hand to hold the car and set their back to the motorman.

It is a fallacy to think that sylph-like figures and gazelle-like mobility are associated only with youth. The very girls who played basket ball, danced and skated, foolishly abandon these exercises as soon as marital or household duties are undertaken. Yet this should not be. Women should maintain their grace and agility to the end of a long life.

I mean that beauty is but the outward sign of inward well being. A healthy stomach shows in the roses on your face. If you earnestly desire to be beautiful, keep your disposition sweet and all of the organs of your body healthy.

Here are a few external exercises that will help you to internal happiness, and, consequently, beauty:

Before you leave your bed in the morning—though you have not slept a wink—lie flat upon your back with arms and palms down. Come forward now 10 times to a sitting posture. This will strengthen the thighs and tighten up the muscles of the abdomen.

To enhance the lines and contour of the waist, stand with the left hand on the left foot. Allow the other arm to describe a circle above your head and do a circle horizontally with the left leg. If this little stunt is repeated 20 times alternately with each arm and leg, morning and night, the waist will be made as neat and snug as you could wish.

To be erect, yet agile and flexible, is no improper ambition.

One of several ways to straighten the figure is to clasp the hands above the head and form a wide V with the legs. The feet must be separated at least a foot and a half. "Wood-chopper" is the name given to this exercise. The clasped hands are now brought down between the feet and knees 10 times. This thins the thighs, reduces the fat about the hips and straightens the shoulders and spine.

These all tend to an inborn grace, the warmth of general courtesy, the calm of self-reliance.

Answers to Health Questions

Mrs. C. C.—Do you think pains off and on for a week are caused by indigestion or being in a run-down condition from which I have suffered a great deal?

This is too obscure a query to answer. Constipation, if you mean that, often does this very thing.

A. E.—Have black lines below eyes. Sometimes they turn blue.

Excitement, worry, constipation, loss of sleep, all cause them. Be cheerful and go to bed earlier. Apply a peroxide cream to the spots.

E. J. B.—Two of fingers below knuckle joint are very much swollen, stiff and painful at times. What is the cause, and is there any remedy for this?

Microbes and infections in the joints are among various causes. Doctors now bake these parts or apply dry heat to them. Electrically generated heat called "diathermy" is used in Germany.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Men Are Entertained While They Work

By TEMPLE MANNING

IN the city of Tampa, Fla., where more cigars are made than even in the island of Cuba itself, more than [illegible] Cuban cigarmakers are employed in the great factories. And while they work they like to be entertained.

A custom peculiar only to the Cuban factories is that of employing a reader, whose duty is to read aloud the morning newspapers to the cigar rollers, translating the news into the Spanish tongue. After the local items and events of national importance have been read from the American papers, the latest events in Cuba and Spain are read, the morning being devoted to this practical and informative entertainment.

In the afternoon the latest Spanish novel is taken up, and the cigar rollers revel in romance while they work.

It was a strange scene that met my eyes one day last year when I went with one of the owners of the largest cigar factories up to the huge workroom, where [illegible] men were seated at benches rolling the cigars. The air was stifling with tobacco smoke and tobacco dust. The light seemed dim and hazy. I felt rather than saw the intense activity in the room, and yet these [illegible] men might have been deaf and dumb for all the noise they made. The soft swish of tobacco leaves and the dull sound of knives were the only sounds that marred the silence.

Rolling Cigars to a Romance.

Quite suddenly to me a soft, musical voice rose above the muffled sounds, and, though I could not see the speaker, I knew that he was reading some Spanish romance with all the dramatic gestures that it required. I turned to my guide as he whispered to me:

"That is our best reader. He makes as much as [illegible] every week that he works."

To my surprised questions my host explained the system. Each cigarmaker contributes 25 cents a week to the reader fund, and in return for this tax is assured a knowledge of current events and the entertainment of the best Spanish novels as he works. The cost to him is little more than his newspapers and magazines would cost, and his work hours are made much pleasanter.

The reader naturally finds his work very hard upon his voice, consequently there are shifts of readers, each floor having at least two. They read one week and rest their voices during the next.

As SILLY as a LOBSTER

THE old saying "as silly as a goose" should, in justice to the goose, be changed. In all the world there are few creatures as silly as the lobster.

Why, the goose is a veritable Solomon compared to the lobster! Would a goose, when once caught and released, try to get caught again right away? That's exactly what the lobster does.

The best lobster ground in the world is the northeastern coast of New England, its shoals, bays, inlets and rocks supplying the lobster to perfection with all it requires for feeding and breeding places and protection against its enemies.

The Maine fishermen use a trap called a pot. A lobster pot is a simple enough contrivance.

It looks like an immense birdcage made of wooden slats. Both ends are covered with loose, strong netting made from tarred rope. There is a hole in the middle of each net.

The trap is sunk to the bottom by being weighted with stones and lies on the bottom in a horizontal position. Its location is indicated by a buoy attached to it by ropes. A cod's head or other tempting bait is placed inside the pot, made stationary by being fastened on hooks.

This soon attracts the lobster, and he reconnoitres about the net to see how he may get at the aggravating morsel. In his skirmishing he discovers the opening in the netting at the end of the trap, and he turns and backs himself through it.

According to all observant lobster fishermen, the lobster no sooner gets inside than he becomes aware that he is in trouble. He loses all desire to sample the bait that tempted him to get in the scrape which he somehow or other has suddenly realized that he is in. He moves about in the trap in an agitated manner looking for a way to get out just as eagerly as he a few minutes before sought for an opening to get in. So agitated is he that he forgets that his best pedestrian work is accomplished backward, and he does not try to back out of the hole as he came in, but exerts himself to his utmost to get out head first, a feat his enormous claws make impossible.

But, as lobstermen say, let this crazed lobster be released from the pot, he will no sooner be out than the bait inside tempts him again, and he once more seeks for a way to get in and seize it. Finding the way as before, he backs in, is immediately panic-stricken again and renews his frantic endeavors to escape again. No matter how many times the lobster might be let out, he would just as often set to work to become a prisoner again.

Dante's Sweetheart

Dante's love was Beatrice Portinari of patrician blood. She had a tall, willowy and commanding figure, an angel's brow, a sweet, rosebud mouth, a swan-like neck, curling, fair hair, and eyes of a deep and ravishing blue. The poet wooed and won the maiden's heart, but she died at the age of 24, on the eve of her nuptials with that illustrious writer. The desolation caused to Dante by her demise cast a lasting gloom over his character and career, and inspired his verses with that melancholy pathos which runs like a dark thread through his brightest fancies. He did not, however, remain scrupulously loyal to her love, for in after years he married a certain Dame Donati, who turned out to be a vicious virago. By this woman he had a daughter, whom he called Beatrice, in honor of his first and only flame.

Cossacks Entering Hungary

Petrograd, Russia, Sept. 28.—The following official communication has been received from the staff of Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces in the field:

"An engagement near [illegible] on the [illegible] River in Russian Poland and [illegible], came to an end with the retreat of the Germans.

"The enemy has approached Ossowetz from the north and has begun the bombardment of the fortress.

"In Galicia we have occupied Dembica, on the railroad, 65 miles east of Cracow, and between Rzeszow and Tarnow.

"A numerous column of the enemy is retreating from Przemysl in the direction of Sanok, 36 miles southwest of Jaroslau, and in their flight abandoned artillery and automobile transports.

"At [illegible] we defeated a detachment of the enemy and captured the artillery and many prisoners. Continuing the pursuit we entered Hungary."

London, Sept. 28.—The Austrian forces are still retiring on Cracow, and besides having taken some of the forts around Przemysl the Russian cavalry is said to be pouring through the defiles of the Carpathians on to the plains of Hungary. Although the entrance of this latter movement is officially denied from Budapest, which announces that the repeated attempts of the Russian cavalry to enter the country have been repulsed, hurried efforts are being made along the Austrian frontier to strengthen the garrisons of the fortresses. One hundred thousand troops taken at the beginning of the war from Trent has been replaced by Hungarians, and all of the eighteen forts of the first line of defence are being brought to the highest state of repair, while the exposed defences, commanding the passes, have been re-inforced by additional redoubts and electric currents are a marked feature of the defensive arrangements. Wires have been laid over all the strategic points on the frontier, and these connect with the powerful station at Riva.

Twelve heavy mortars which were sent to help the Germans have been recalled, and have been hastily installed, in the frontier fortresses, making them a formidable obstacle.

German Finance and the War

A recent issue of the Revue des deux Mondes, the great French review, contains a passage on the origin of the war which is worthy of attention. The future historian, it says, "will understand that the present war was a financial arrangement made on the eve of bankruptcy, as much as it was the result of megalomania or a craze for fighting. Financial Germany was in great difficulties; its colossal operations had always been unfortunate; it had schemed too much, risked too much, made too large advances in goods and money to customers of doubtful credit, both in Germany and throughout the world; it had accustomed its buyers to prices and transactions which did not leave the necessary profit to the manufacturer or to the German capitalist, and it was necessary to do something drastic to bolster up the financial edifrice which was tottering to its foundations. And so it was to give to Germany in debt the huge sums in the Bank of France and an indemnity, quite as much as to satisfy the threats and swagger of the military party, the pan-Germanists and the dreamers of a greater Germany, "that William II was driven to declare the present war."

Flogging in the German Army

In the month of August the German cruiser Madgeburg ran ashore in the Baltic and fell into the hands of the Russians. When her new owners searched her a singular discovery was made. It is thus described in a dispatch from Petrograd, dated Sept. 3, appearing in the London Morning Post:—

"Considerable sensation has been created here by discoveries made on board the German cruiser "Madgeburg," that was blown up after going ashore at the entrance of the Finnish Gulf. Among the articles lying about the decks on the after-part, where boats were lowered for the majority of the crew to escape on the accompanying destroyers, were several specimens of the old 'cat of nine tales.' When the Russian authorities went through the ship they found one of these in every officer's cabin, and all bore signs of long, and, in some cases, of hard usage.

"These curious attributes of naval rank are all alike in having a handle eight inches long, with a loop for the wrist. From the other end depend nine leather thongs of formidable appearance, nearly as thick as the little finger, and twelve inches long. In each case the officer's name was inscribed on the handle. These "cats" were handed round for Press inspection last night at the Naval General Staff headquarters. Those left lying on deck had apparently played their habitual part in speeding-up the German 'Jackies' during the nervous operation of lowering the boats to escape from the cruiser lying comfortably aground. It is considered here that the little instruments tell a most interesting and significant story of the procedure on board the ships of the Royal German Navy, and provide yet another illustration of the systematic savagery of that Germanism dating from 1870, which has replaced the good old culture of an earlier and better Germany.

"The public are also to have an opportunity of inspecting these latest-discovered instruments of Prussian culture."

Pleurisy Pains Vanish! Chest Colds Cured!

NERVILINE HAS NEVER FAILED TO CURE.

Don't suffer.
Nerviline is your relief.

Nerviline just rubbed on, lots of it, will ease that drawn, tight feeling over your ribs, will destroy the pain, will have you smiling and happy in no time.

"I caught cold last week while motoring," writes P. T. Mallery, from Linden. "My chest was full of congestion, my throat was mighty sore, and I had the fiercest stitch in my side you could imagine. As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed on; and then got into a perspiration under the blankets. This drove the Nerviline in good and deep, and I woke up next morning fresh as a dollar and absolutely cured. Nerviline is now always part of my travelling kit, and I will never be without it."

The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, or you can easily get the 25c. trial size from any dealer.

Kaiser Bill might get better results if he put General Rathskeller Von Pretzelberg in command of the right wing of his army. It appears that the general has not been in action on the front, but is doing noble service in the commissary department.

THE KAISER AND GOD.

"I rejoice with you in Wilhelm's first victory. How magnificently God supported him!"—Telegram from the Kaiser to the Crown Princess.

Led by Wilhelm, as you tell,
God has done extremely well;
You with patronising nod
Show that you approve of God.
Kaiser, face a question new—
This—does God approve of you?

Broken pledges, treaties torn,
Your first page of war adorn;
We on fouler things must look
Who read further in that book.
Where you did in time of war
All that you in peace forswore,
Where you, barbarously wise,
Bade your soldiers terrorise,
Where you made—the deed was fine—
Women screen your firing line,
Villages burned down to dust,
Torture, murder, bestial lust,
Filth too foul for printer's ink,
Crimes from which the apes would shrink—
Strange the offerings that you press
On the God of Righteousness!

Kaiser, when you'd decorate
Sons or friends who serve your State,
Not that Iron Cross bestow
But a Cross of Wood, and so—
Remind the world that you
Have made Cavalry anew.

Kaiser, when you'd kneel in prayer
Look upon your hands, and there
Let that deep and awful stain
From the blood of children slain
Burn your very soul with shame,
Till you dare not breathe that Name
That now you glibly advertise
God as one of your allies.

Impious braggart, you forget;
God is not your conscript yet;
You shall learn in dumb amaze
That the mire through which you trod
Is not the high white road of God.

To Whom, whichever way the combat rolls,
We, fighting to the end, commend our souls.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking.
Write for it.

A FISHERMAN'S HEROISM IN SAVING LIFE

A very fine act by the captain of a fishing steamer relieved the horror of one of the mine disasters caused by the German Navy's warfare against non-combatants and neutrals. The Steamer Runo, belonging to the Wilson line, was on a voyage from Hull to Archangel, with some 280 passengers, chiefly Russians, though some were Americans. On the day she left port she struck a mine and sank with some loss of life. Three steam trawlers, the Silesian, Prince Victor and Straton, steamed up and rescued a large number of those who were struggling in the water.

As skipper Wicks, of the Straton, was driving in among the wreckage, the look-out man forward sighted two mines ahead. "Look out, skipper two mines ahead," he called. "Can't help it," shouted the skipper back, "It's risking lives to save lives" and he hazarded his ship to get alongside an overturned boat to which a dozen men and women were clinging. Even as they reached it a woman with an infant in her arms released her hold and fell back into the water, but the chief engineer, James Rennard, fully clad, dived overboard, caught the woman, and swimming on his back supported her and the child until the crew could pass a line and pull them to safety. The work of rescue went on at a feverish rate, for more than two hundred people were saved before the Runo, which all along had been, as a seaman put it, standing on her head, gave a lurch and disappeared.

RANCH MANAGER—ARTHUR McKINNON

General Contractor, Rollo Bay, P. E. I.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $60,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

Average — £284,15.10 or $1385.90 or skin.

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

The Onion

What is the reason that so few people eat onions nowadays. The onion used to be a stand-by in this country, but it is getting to be about as popular as a divorced husband at the wedding feast. There is nothing that will bring tears of repentance to a hardened sinner's eyes quicker than a stout, wide-hipped Bermuda onion with teeth like a rip-saw and a grip like an entered apprentice. One of these onions, sprinkled with tasco sauce and inhaled slowly before each meal, will cause a man to perspire at high speed when the thermometer is 40 degrees below zero. Physicians tell us that if people would eat more onions they would have fewer microbes roosting about in their systems, as onions are death to germs of all kinds. The onion is also death to the course of true love—after marriage, but not before.

Look-out Towers

At a cost of only $50 the Dominion Forestry Branch recently erected a lookout tower fifty feet high, overlooking two hundred square miles of woodland. Similar towers are being built on all the Dominion forest reserves in the West in order that fires may be seen and extinguished before they have time to spread beyond control.

Eating Corn

To make eating corn from the cob easier and neater a New Jersey man has invented a knife with concave teeth to loosen the kernels.

Saving Labor

In rebuilding a church spire in England recently a 15 horsepower electric motor did the work of six men at about one-twentieth the cost.

United States Has Copper Record

Japan's annual production of copper is estimated at 65,000 metric tons, Mexico's production was 52,315, and that of the United States 557,387 tons.

Special Cars For Autos

There are 2,440,000 freight cars in the United States of which 42,000 are used solely for the transportation of automobiles.

United States Capital in Canada

United States investments in Canada amount to $636,000,000.

Our Timber Wealth

The Philippine Islands, which are extremely heavily wooded, are supposed to contain [illegible] 0,000,000,000 feet, board measure of [illegible] timber. This is about one-third the [illegible] estimated timber wealth of Canada, not including pulpwood, of which there are approximately 400,000,000 cords.

HOBBIES OF ROYALTY

The King of Bulgaria Passes Spare Hours Training Elephants

The Sovereigns of Europe have, and have had, some curious hobbies. The Kaiser has a distinct penchant for carpentry, while what King Christian does not know about the printer's craft is not worth knowing.

It has remained, however, for King Ferdinand of Bulgaria to take up the strangest pastime of all—animal training. A little while ago the King, tiring of the ordinary methods of relieving his mind from the cares of State, invested in four elephants. And now he spends all his spare time teaching his giant pets all that an educated elephant is required to know. The four beasts are housed at a farm on the outskirts of Sofia, and every day King Ferdinand spends an hour or so with them, superintending their toilet and training them.

The King has brought his usual zeal and enthusiasm to bear on his hobby, and the consequence is that his elephants would do credit to a professional trainer. Not only do the pachyderms recognise their Royal master when he visits them, but they can do several simple tricks at his bidding. The King is very proud of his pets, and whenever his Court is visited by anyone of distinction the Royal guest is sure to be taken to the farm to admire the great beasts at their work and play.

TWO GUNS WHITE CALF

Shooting the rapids in a canoe, or skimming the prairie on the back of a wild antelope will be tame and unexciting adventures now to Two Guns White Calf, "big Injun" from Glacier National Park. Two Guns took a flight in an aeroplane at Dobbs Ferry, N.Y. "Heap big bird, fly like eagle; Two Guns give his gun for bird like that," was his comment on the flying machine that took him 1,200 feet in the air.

Lockless Wooden Safe

Mr. I. Sheaker, a curio dealer, London, has invented a light wooden safe, which has no locks, bolts, or bars of any description, and yet is as safe as, if not safer than, the steel article.

Mr. Sheaker offers to put a bank note in his safe and give it to anyone, professional cracksman or otherwise, who can get it out without alarming the household. The safe consists of a mahogany cupboard that can be inlaid and made to look like a piece of drawing room furniture if required. By an ingenious electrical contrivance an electric bell rings immediately it is tampered with, and a light appears. The only thing to distinguish the safe from an ordinary cupboard is an electric wire running into the back. Should the burglar cut this, the alarm will ring just the same.

Utopia Sold For $4,500

The "Model Town" on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River, opposite Evansville, Ind., consisting of ten acres of land, a city hall, and electric light and power plant, was sold at auction for back taxes to the only bidder for $4,500.

The property was valued at over $20,000. The town was laid out four or five years ago by a man named Brown, who announced that the town would be run on the Utopian plan. Stores, factories, and all other businesses were to be operated by the people, and all city ordinances were to be framed by the citizens in town meetings. After Brown disappeared the inhabitants left the town.

Electricity and Grain

Knights of Windsor

The Military Knights of Windsor are an exceedingly ancient institution. They date from 1349. The pensions vary from $250 to $900 a year, and are supplemented by free quarters, in which nine months' residence out of the twelve is compulsory. Their duties are nominal—attendance in St. George's Chapel on saints' days and at Royal weddings and funerals and supplying a guard of honor when foreign Royalties visit Windsor Castle.

CRUSHES GLASS TO END HER MISERIES

New Orleans, Sept. 29.—In an attempt to end her life at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, Elizabeth McCarthy, aged 21 years, of 828 Royal St., adopted an unusual method.

The unfortunate woman, who gave as her excuse for wishing death simply that she was tired of life, placed a glass tumbler in a piece of cloth, and with a hatchet, crushed the tumbler into tiny bits, and then swallowed a large quantity of the ground glass. She was removed to the Charity Hospital immediately, where the physicians worked hard to extract the glass from her stomach. Her condition was said to be serious.

Mrs. McCarthy boarded at the Royal street address. She lived alone it is said, and nothing much is known of her history.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

HEADACHE POWDERS

British Revenue Department Condemns Their Usage

The Inland Revenue Department of Great Britain has issued a bulletin calling attention to the danger attendant on the common use of various headache powders now on the market. When these are not worthless they are harmful or dangerous, and the official analysts have taken pains to point out the need of greater caution on the part of the public. The effective drugs used in headache powders are acetanilide and phenacetin, and their effect is to depress the heart action. The involved danger of injurious results is counteracted in some cases by including a stimulant in the formula. The Proprietary and Patent Medicines Act provides that when acetanilide is present in quantity above two grains to a maximum dose, or phenacetin in quantity above five grains, the fact must be set forth on a label. As the limit of dose of acetanilide prescribed by the British pharmacopœia is from one to three grains this requirement is obviously necessary, and not unduly restrictive. About eighty per cent. of the acetanilide powders examined contained less than four grains to the maximum dose, and of the remainder very few exceeded six grainns. This record shows how dangerous is the practice of taking such powders, especially of increasing the dose beyond prescribed limits. The report condemns the pretence that drugs can cure headache, which is not a disease, but a symptom or intimation of disease or derangement. A cure is possible only when the cause is removed or corrected.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

THE CHIEF OBJECT OF DEVELOPMENT

Secure the Best Use of Things For the Present and Leave Them in Best Condition For Future

"To often and too much the eyes of public men and the people generally are fixed exclusively upon some local political programme," says J. W. Robertson of the Royal Commission on Technical Education in Canada. "The vocational training of all the people to be contributing earners, good citizens and worthy members of the race is really the world's greatest movement at the present time. All the foremost nations are on the march. The campaign is against ignorance and inability and ill-wills. The hope is emancipation from poverty, disease and vice, and the attainment of new and higher levels of happiness and power by all the people. In the freshness and vigor of its youth Canada turns readily to questions of material growth and development. Canadians feel that they are coming into their own. Yet their attention and imagination are captivated by wealth in things more than their hearts are stirred by the possession of power with knowledge and desire to use it wisely. With all the fine attributes which belong to youth the country has many of its handicaps and dangers. Hence the urgency for educational training which will be adequate not only for material progress, but for the enjoyment of its achievements and for the real advancement of intellectual, social and spiritual interests and outlook.

"The chief object of development is to secure the best use of things for the present and to leave them in the best condition for the future, to attain the best characters in the people and provide the best quality of life and opportunities for their successors. In all the provinces there is evidence of progress. The Provincial Governments are not only responding to the demands on them as far as their revenues permit, but they are leading, encouraging and guiding the local communities.

SHIRKING THE HOME

Evils of the Boarding House For Married People

Married persons live in boarding-houses largely because of the prevalent high rents, the excessive cost of living generally, and perpetual troubles with domestic servants. In the long run they probably escape none of these ills, and certainly if any one of them be lessened there is a generous set-off in some greater evil which they will yet be called upon to suffer. There is an even more serious cause of this rush of married people to the boarding-houses. Very many wives, particularly the newly-married, have an antipathy to housework, and shrink before the idea of struggling to build up a home. Behind these feelings, which are unwomanly, is probably defective training in the home of their girlhood. It is difficult to make girls understand that domestic work is noble work. If the income be small it is no shame to the wife to do all the housework; but some sort of artificial stigma appears to attach to toil of the kind, which it seems to be impossible to remove. A consequence is that a new race of women is adding a new terror to life. The woman of this type marries not to make a home, but to dwell in lodgings. The honeymoon is spent in an hotel in the mountains or at the seaside and the happy young people immediately afterwards rush to permanent quarters in a flat or a boarding house. The wife, instead of making a home for her husband, makes calls in the morning, goes shopping in the afternoon, and attends bridge parties or the theatre at night. All these things may be good, and some of them necessary, but for the young married women in a boarding house they are practically all life has to offer in the way of occupation. She ought to be making little soft garments in her own home, instead of gadding about and making life a misery to those of her friends who have homes by extolling the advantages of life in lodgings.—Melbourne Argus.

Burns of Children

That more girls than boys are fatally burned is the interesting conclusion of investigations made in England by Dr. Brend. Due reflection upon the ages at which these fatalities are recorded in the reliable statistics which the Journal of the American Medical Association presents in a recent issue discloses the reason.

The subjoined table enumerates these fatal accidents during the five years from 1905 to 1911:

Age	Boys	Girls
Up to one year.........	314	234
From one to four......	1,663	1,883
From four to five......	363	775
From five to ten.......	289	1,427
From ten to twenty.....	90	630

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel

When They Have

Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

REVIVAL OF MINING

Renewed Activity Where There Has Been Quiet Since the Sixties

Many of the old mining camps of the United States and Canada, deserted years ago, are being rehabilitated and not a few districts which in the sixties were flourishing, but since have fallen into decay, are now being opened up with new life and energy. British Columbia, which, during the time of the Civil War, and later in 1895-97, was the mecca for miners, is again reviving and taking on new life that will undoubtedly bear much fruit in the course of the very near future. This is particularly true of the Windermere district of British Columbia, long known as a lead-silver mining district. In this section there are large deposits of low grade ore.

The Canadian Pacific Railway took over the old Kootenay Central and is now busy connecting up Golden and Fort Steele. Trains are operating from Golden south as far as Spillimachene, while steel has been laid much farther, and grading is progressing far ahead of the steel. Work is being urged north from Fort Steele to Golden so that this railway project which was a dream of the early miners of the district, will be a reality. This will bring the miners of the rich Windermere silver-lead district within a range of 250 miles of the large customs smelters and within but a few miles of Trail, B.C., where most of the silver-lead smelting is done. It is interesting to remember that the silver used in coining the money for the Philippine Islands was smelted at Trail.

About fifteen years ago John Hays Hammond and Randolph Brade started operations on a series of rich claims known as the Paradise Mine. Some work was done and splendid showings were made. The ore was rich, but the transportation facilities were so poor that all of the profits were eaten up before the silver-lead got to the smelters. Pack trains proved too expensive, so the project was abandoned until time should bring railroad facilities. The Paradise Mine, according to recent advice, will be reopened in the near future. It was in the rich valley of the Columbia, however, that Robert Randolph Bruce did make his fortune. Along with many others, he recognized the possibilities of the district both as to its minerals and as to its agriculture. He has developed both and has wide holdings both in mining claims and in lands. Married recently to Lady Elizabeth Northcote, he plans to make his home at Invermore, where he will devote his attention to the development of his mines and his lands.

An old bachelor may not believe that life is full of contradictions, but a married man always does.

A meddlesome woman is bad enough, but when the meddling bee gets into a man's bonnet it is time to stand from under.

Occasionally we meet a man who can't stand prosperity, but more often we encounter men who never had a chance to find out.

WASTE FROM DESKS GOES INTO BRUSHES

Remnants From One Factory Used as Raw Material For Another

Waste wood in the manufacture of school desks is used for the backs of cheap brushes. A large manufacturer of school desks in Michigan had a considerable amount of waste material in sizes which were too short to enter into the manufacture of the smallest desks, and could not be utilized further with his machinery or in his line of work. This material was all hard maple in pieces an inch thick, a foot or so long, and about three inches wide; for a long time it had been consigned to the waste pile and sold as firewood. This waste amounted to from 1,000 to 1,500 board feet each day. A nearby manufacturer was using practically this quantity of maple, which he was sawing up into small pieces for making the backs of cheap brushes. Members of the Forest Service, investigating methods of eliminating factory waste, conceived the idea that the blocks used by the brush factory could be readily secured from the waste of the school desk manufacturer, and on this basis an arrangement of mutual benefit was soon concluded. Arrangements were made so that the brush manufacturer now places orders with the other firm for its raw material and what was formerly waste is now a source of profit.

WOUNDED IN BATTLE

Bullets Mostly Strike Heads and Hands in Modern Fighting

Dr. O. Laurent, a surgeon who served as a volunteer during the Balkan War, rendered to the French Academy of Medicine a very interesting and instructive report concerning casualties in battle.

His statistics show that, in modern warfare, 82 to 84 per cent. of the wounds inflicted are caused by bullets, 15 to 17 per cent. by shrapnel, and 1 per cent. by cold steel. The penetrative force of shrapnel bullets is, he declares, very much less than that of rifle bullets—at all events, when the shrapnel bursts at some distance from the soldier; for, whereas shrapnel is often found embedded in clothing, rifle bullets never are. On the other hand, complications arise very much more frequently from shrapnel wounds than from rifle bullet wounds.

Dr. Laurent has observed that nowadays, since the soldier usually fires under cover, lying either prone or in a trench, a large majority of wounds are received in the skull and the hands, especially the left hand.

To combat this, he suggests the use of a light, resistant shield to protect the head, and that another shield should be fixed to the left hand or the rifle itself. A third might be placed in the region of the heart. Indeed, many British soldiers who fought in the Boer War owe their lives to the chance presence of a cigarette case or wad of papers in the left breast pocket.

ONE HUNDRED ACRES

What It Cost to Run and What It Produced in a Year

A young farmer who has been farming one hundred acres of land in Ontario for four years sent to The Canadian Farm the following account of his financial year, with explanations:

I grow my own roots (two acres) and about four acres of corn for silage and twenty acres of hay every year to feed stock. I keep track of every cent going out and also coming in. My wife pays running expenses of house and little things with fowl and butter and eggs. I keep no track of it, but she does. Anyway, that is not mine.

PRODUCERS RATHER THAN MIDDLEMEN

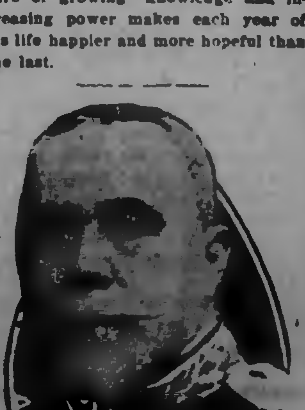
W. H. Cushing of Calgary, Alberta, Speaks of the Need of Settlers on the Land

Mr. W. H. Cushing, in referring to Alberta as the land of opportunity, says:

"There is no country like it for the young man providing he is sensible and does not insist on getting rich quick. Think of it! 100,000,000 acres of the finest agricultural land in the world, and only 2,000,000 acres of it under cultivation! Too many are going to the cities and too few back to the land. We want producers more than middlemen in the West. Industry and patience are all that is necessary to win for the ambitious at least a comfortable competence in Alberta." Mr. Cushing does not see any danger ahead because of exhaustive wheat growing. Optimist that he is, he says that it is questionable whether the sponge-like soil of the prairies could be robbed of its virtue no matter how many crops were taken from it. Certainly it would not deteriorate if given proper care and a rest occasionally. Even admitting that the wheat growers were taxing their land in the effort to grow wealthy quickly, the danger faded away when it was remembered that but little over 2 per cent. of the agricultural land had yet been ploughed. "Alberta," concludes Mr. Cushing, "stands on immense beds of coal, deposits of gas, oil, etc. In the north, there are large tracts of practically pure salt and other valuable minerals abound. All this is in addition to her agriculture. Who can predict what lies in front of such a storehouse of natural wealth? As I said before, I am firmly convinced that, for the young man, Alberta is the land of opportunity."

LIFE AFTER FORTY

The best half of life is in front of the man of 40, if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hands of a master and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man is the world so new and the future so fresh as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in striving to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and beautiful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thing as staleness in life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes each year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.



VICE-ADMIRAL R. H. S. STOKES who was appointed to succeed Vice-Admiral Sir C. H. Coke as senior officer on the coast of Ireland.

Perpetuating Game

Large game preserves have recently been set aside in Somaliland, Uganda and other British protectorates in Africa, in which the hunting is prohibited of elephants, giraffes, rhinoceroses and other valuable game in danger of extinction. This policy has also proved successful in perpetuating the game supply on certain Dominion Forest Reserves in Western Canada, and as occasion demands the number of these game preserves will be increased.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

DRY IRRITATING HACK OF BRONCHITIS INSTANTLY RELIEVED BY "CATARRHOZONE

No Failure, Cure in Every Case Treated By Catarrhozone.

Catarrhozone can't fail to cure Bronchitis; its so healing and balsamic that every trace of the disease flies before it. When you inhale the pure piney vapor of Catarrhozone, you send healing medication to the spots that are diseased and sore.

Isn't it rational to apply medicine where the disease exists? Certainly! and that's why Catarrhozone is so successful; it goes where the trouble really is, gets where a spray or ointment can't penetrate. For the relief and complete cure of bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, throat trouble, we guarantee Catarrhozone in every case. You don't take medicine—don't take drowsy drugs—just breathe the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone; it does the rest safely and surely.

"For three years I was seriously bothered by a bronchial cough. At night I would awaken with dry irritable feeling in my throat. I couldn't cough up anything, but very soon coughed my throat into quite an inflamed condition. Once I got Catarrhozone Inhaler I was all right. I took it to bed, and if an attack awakened me a few minutes use of the inhaler gave me relief. Catarrhozone has cured me and I strongly urge everyone with a weak throat to use it regularly.

Signed J. B. BEAMER,
Reading.

Catarrhozone will not disappoint you. Get the complete $1.00 outfit; it's guaranteed. Small size 50c; trial or sample size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

A Too Fresh Local Hardware Man.

If an employe of a local hardware store does not cease, when the sun is in proper condition to allow such proceeding, throwing reflected rays from a mirror into the eyes of a writer of dots and dashes, legal proceedings may follow. How can a girl give her attention to her type-writing machine when her eyes are puzzled by rays not known by her to be sunshine or beams from a love struck eye?

Mr. Wood's Successor

It is understood that Mr. Geo. W. Hatton, barrister, of this city, will be the next Crown Attorney in succession to the late R. E. Wood, his name having been forwarded to the Ontario Government with the recommendation that he be appointed to that position. There is no doubt but that the Government will be guided by the recommendation and will appoint Mr. Hatton at an early date.

Lindsay Boy in Narrow Escape.

A little son of Mr. Alex. Scott, East Ward, narrowly escaped drowning in the Scugog on Sunday around noon hour. The youth, in company with his little sister, were playing on a platform in front of a boathouse near the lower wharf when the little fellow slipped in. His sister's cries attracted Mr. Raymond to the scene and he jumped in after the boy and brought him to shore in an unconscious condition.—Lindsay Post.

Victoria Council to Take Action

On Saturday morning a committee of citizens consisting of Messrs. J. D. Flavelle, J. Carew, M.P.P., Senator McHugh, G. H. Hopkins, K.C., and Thomas Stewart met Warden Varcoe at the county buildings in connection with the National Patriotic Fund scheme. The hearty cooperation of the county council was desired in order to make the proposed contribution one worthy of the County of Victoria. After hearing the deputation, Warden Varcoe decided to call the county council together on the last Tuesday in October.—Lindsay Post.

Port Hope Austrian Stabbed

Port Hope, Sept. 29.—Two Austrians were drawn into an argument in a local hotel on Saturday evening and the result was that one was stabbed in the mouth. The injured man has been attending the weekly drill at the Drill Shed and his fellow countrymen jeered him for the same. The case comes up in police court on Thursday and if the story as told by the plaintiff is correct, Col. Smart should have the offender sent to Fort Henry.

Hastings Man Shoots Himself

Belleville, Sept. 29.—Henry Logan, who resides in the northern part of Hastings County at New Carlow, committed suicide by shooting himself. Logan was employed in the Corundum Mines at Burgess, and it was noticed that he was suffering apparently in a fit of melancholia. He carried a rifle around with him most of the time, but it was not surmised that he would be likely to end his own life with it. He was working in the rock cut and Richard Edwards was standing not more than eight feet from him when he deliberately picked up the weapon and fired a bullet through his brain. An inquest was not considered necessary.

Lost Some Of His Bait.

On Monday a neophyte at fishing who resides on North George Street went fishing at Rice Lake. On his arrival at the lake he began looking around for bait, which, he was informed, was one of the necessary articles in a fisherman's outfit. He spent hard-earned money for a supply of frogs and crickets which were highly recommended as being alluring to the lake fish. Shorty, as he is known, had a nice, new green minnow bucket and in this bucket he placed the frogs and crickets. That night he slept peacefully, with now and then a pleasant dream of heroic struggles with the big fish of the lake. He was going fishing in the morning. He got up, gathered his traps together and then inspected the bucket of bait. The crickets had disappeared, but the frogs were still there, and they appeared to have fattened considerably during the night.

Von Kluck In Desperate Position--Forced to Face Allies Both Ways--Germans' Left Centre Meets Heavy Loss--Getting Ready For Retreat

GEN. VON KLUCK BADLY OUTFLANKED HE IS FORCED TO FACE TWO WAYS

London Daily News Military Expert Says No Danger Resulted to Allies From Attack on the Meuse. German Right Wing Faces Disaster Unless They Can Defeat the Allies. Enemy Quite Exhausted and Reinforcements are of a Weak Nature. Apparently are Powerless to Make Headway

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Daily News military expert says:

"If we were anxious on Saturday about the German movement in the Woevre district, directed against the Verdun-Toul defensive line, we have now been fully reassured. Had the movement been a serious one, it would have materialized before now. But it is clear that it is dragging and may now be regarded more as a feint attack than a determined effort to cross the Meuse in force.

"What seems probable is that when General Von Kluck asked for re-inforcements, the German general staff had no where to draw on except Lorraine, and the offensive power of the German armies on the eastern frontier had to be sacrificed to the vital necessity of keeping the right wing of the German army from losing its hold on its communications with Belgium.

MIXTURE OF REINFORCEMENTS

"If the reinforcing troops had been 48 hours later on the Oise than they were, the German army would by this time have been in full retreat to the Rhine. It gained time for the Germans, but time is of no use to them, except to preserve their amour propre for a little while longer. Judging by the mixture of troops which were sent up as reinforcements, they were drawn by hook and crook and crook from whatever corps could spare them.

"Exhaustion is already beginning to make itself felt. Sooner or later the German staff must recognize this and adapt their strategy to meet the altered conditions of the campaign, due to the tremendous waste of men brought about by the obsolete battle tactics. What is certain is that the German army cannot stay indefinitely where it is, and it cannot go forward.

NOTHING TO DO BUT RETREAT

"There is nothing left for it to do but go back.

"If we look at the map with the positions of the troops as now located, in yesterday afternoon's Paris communique, we see that General Von Kluk has been outflanked and that his army is now facing two ways one part of it looking west and the other looking south. Unless a miracle intervenes there is nothing left for the German commander except to defeat his enemy and this he has already failed to do; or leave a position which is no longer tenable. The Paris communique issued yesterday has put the seal on his ultimate fate."

HIGH PRAISE FOR FRENCH

The Standard military correspondent writes:

"The note of quiet confidence which one feels, has been sounded of late in the terse and guarded official communications which have had reference to the course of the war in France, appears to me to get louder and more persistent. Even a negative inspires hopefulness in an extraordinary and unaccountable manner. This feeling is most prominent in Paris, where it is likely certain people know a great deal more about what is happening than we do here. The French press, which has shown remarkable all-round restraint throughout the war is now encouraging the feeling of optimism which the public has begun to cherish.

"The French soldier has developed qualities of fortitude and steadfastness in this crisis, such as he never possessed before. He has now got the measure of his adversary and he is beginning to feel that victory is assured to him."

THE GERMAN PLAN OF CAMPAIGN AGAINST FRANCE, RUSSIA, ENGLAND

Foretold Accurately by General Sir John French in 1911. Almost Every Move of Germans in Present War Anticipated by Commander-In-Chief of Expeditionary Forces in Europe. No Wonder the Teutons are up Against an Unexpected Impediment to Their Investment of Paris

One person who has not been greatly surprised by the development of the campaign in Northern France, it may be guessed, is Field Marshal Sir John French. The Fortnightly Review for September, 1911, contained a remarkable article entitled "The German Plan of Campaign against France," by a writer who was content to sign himself "Y". It was an open secret in London at the time that "Y" was no other than Sir John French, the British General who to-day, 3 years after the appearance of the article, is leading the largest single British army which ever has gone aboard in a struggle to frustrate "The German plan of campaign against France." The article is an extraordinary accurate prophecy of what so far as happened. Without the slightest parade of possessing unusual information, in an impressively business-like manner, the soldier-author stated that there would be little fighting of importance in Southern Alsace; that Germany would violate the neutrality of Belgium and Luxemburg; that Liege might give the Germans some trouble, but that Namur was a weaker position; that the Germans would try to mass a great army on the Aisne; that the French armies would do well to fall back to Rheims and Chalon. He even dropped some hints as to certain "new theories for the capture of fortified places," entertained by the Germans. He made it clear that the German Empire had been preparing for fifteen years to violate the neutrality of Belgium and Luxemburg, the evidence being the network of railways constructed opposite the corner of Belgium originally selected as the scene of the German march across. The only thing that is not fortified is the wide westward extension of the German sweep, which took their right wing through central Belgium and into France at Lille; it is to be remembered that the article was written three years ago.

A further feature of the article is the information which it gives as to lines of advance across the frontier, and readers who have good war maps after reading the article can mark on them the routes along which the tide of invasion will ebb and flow.

Following are extracts from the article:—

The German move in Morrocco has at least compelled the public to recognize the possibility of war at an early date between France and Germany.

A Franco-German war, becoming, 24 hours after its opening a general European war, must then be recognised as a possibility of the near future. The purpose of this article is not to deal with any of the side issues or incidental contingencies, but to give a succinct account of the official German plan of campaign against France, and by so doing to contribute perhaps towards its being quelled.

The main German idea upon which the plan has been formed is that France must be seriously damaged in the first three weeks of the war, so that Germany may find herself in the position of victor in the first round before England and Russia have entered the field. It is considered that the effect of serious French defeats would be to deter England from landing troops on the Continent, and to induce Russia to conceive that she was doing all she need for her damaged ally by waging a defensive war on the Vistula. The German "mot d'ordre" on the commencement of hostilities, which are to precede the formal declaration of war, will be at all cost to get well established on French soil, and concentrate as large an army as possible behind, that is to say, west of, the line of the Vosges so as to fight a decisive battle somewhere in the neighborhood of Rheims or Chalons.

There was a time when it was thought that the chances of a direct

ENEMY OUTFLANKED AT EXTREME POINTS

London Times Despatch Held Five Days by Censor—Lifts the Fog

London, Sept. 30. The Times has received the following despatch from its Paris correspondent.

The message is dated September 25, and has been delayed by the censor.

It analyses the positions in the battle of the Aisne, and the terrible fighting which took place in the valley of the Somme. The correspondent continuing says:

"Movements hitherto concealed or vaguely hinted at are now unveiled, and the frontal attack of the Allies Oise and the Argonne now sinks into on the German position between the the background. One thing is certain, and that is that the German armies are in a position of gravest danger. The Allies have succeeded in a masterly fashion in threatening both flanks of the enemy simultaneously and he is compelled to fight for his life. He may succeed in extricating his forces intact, for he is still formidable in every way. To save himself, however, he can hardly maintain his centre upon his present position, and it looks as if he will unfailingly have to retire in order to withdraw himself from the grip of the Allies' claws. If he is unable to do this he is beaten, and it will only be the wreck of his forces which will then reach the German frontier."

Germans' Bombardment of Antwerp Does Little Damage

London, Sept. 30.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Amsterdam says that The Telegraaf has received this message from Antwerp:—

"From various points the garrison made sorties and repulsed the Germans with heavy losses. The bombardment of Forts Woelhem and St. Catherine by the Germans continues. A single attack has been delivered by the Germans on Forts Liezele and Breedonk."

A despatch to the Central News from Amsterdam, says that refugees arrived from Ghent report that Belgian forces marching on Brussels are in contact with the Germans.

BERLIN AND PARIS BOTH REPORT; GERMANS ADMIT ALLIES' ADVANCE

Allies Advance Between Argonne and Meuse--Enemy's Attack on Verdun--Toul Line a Failure--German Attack on Tracy-Le-Mont Thrown Back--Enveloping Movement Around Von Kluck's Armies Continues More and More Towards the North--Austrian Armies Continue to Retreat in Disorder

Paris

PARIS, Sept. 30.—According to the official bulletin on the war given out in Paris this afternoon the turning movement of the Allies north of the Somme is developing rapidly. A German attack on Tracy-Le-Mont has been repulsed with heavy losses. The text of the statement is as follows:

First—On our left wing north of the Somme, the action continues to develop more and more towards the north. Between the Oise and the Aisne, the enemy has delivered a vigorous attack on Tracy-Le-Mont. To the north-east of the forest of Aigne, the Germans have been repulsed with heavy losses."

Second—On the centre there is relative calm along the entire front, extending from Rheims to the Meuse, we have made slight progress.

In the Woevre district there have been severe battles. Our troops have advanced at several points, notably to the east of St. Mihiel.

On our right wing, in Lorraine and the Vosges, there has been no change. In Galicia the efforts at sorties made by the Austrian garrison at Przemysl have failed. The Austrian armies continue to retreat in disorder, losing numerous prisoners, artillery and war material. At Mount Duztoh, south of Przemysl, in the Carpathians, a Russian detachment has defeated a Hungarian brigade and penetrated into Hungary.

Berlin

Berlin, Sept. 30.—A report given out at army headquarters to-day says:—

"There has been general fighting on our right wing in France, but nothing decisive. The centre is quiet. The French advances in the vicinity of Verdun and Toul have been renewed."

London, Sept. 30.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Berlin, coming by way of Amsterdam, says that the headquarters of the German general staff made the following statement last night:

"On our right wing in France indecisive battles have occurred. Between the Oise and the Meuse it is generally quiet. The army operating against the forts on the Meuse were repulsed.

"The French have made a new assault along the line from Verdun to Toul.

"Our siege artillery has opened fire on the forts of Antwerp. The assault of the Belgian forces against the attacking line has been repulsed.

"In the eastern theatre of the war, the Russian assaults on the Government of Suwalki failed. Heavy artillery yesterday began a bombardment against the fort at Ossowiece."

CANADA HOLDS TRUMP CARD IN CONSTRUCTION OF WAR SHIPS

Could Effectively Cripple the Ship Building Industry of Germany--Nickel Necessary for Battle Ships and Cruisers--France and Canada Own the Only Two Nickel Deposits in the World Which Pay to Work

Judge Barron of Stratford, formerly of Lindsay, who has often played cricket in Peterboro, and who is a brother-in-law of Mr. A. P. Pousette, K.C., formerly of this city, has written to the Toronto Star a letter dealing with the use of nickel as it enters into the building of German warships. He says:

"The recent destruction of three British armored cruisers in the North Sea by German submarines, has drawn attention to the relative strength of the navies of the two countries, and Mr. Winston Churchill is reported to have said that Britain, during the war, would build three ships to Germany's one. This only goes to prove that there is still a race in warship building between the two nations.

"May I again draw attention to the fact that Canada holds in her hand the 'trump card' in the way of rapid construction of warships by the enemy, and that, if not at once, at all events, later on, Canada could effectually cripple the ship-building industry of Germany.

Nickel Absolutely Necessary.

"Nickel is now a 'sine qua non' in the construction of every warship. The amalgam of nickel-steel is a factor without which no ship would be built. The progress of armor and the difference in quality and power of resistance between the armor-plates of various periods is remarkable. The old iron-clads had 18-inch wrought iron plates. This was in 1869. Then in 1897, steel-faced or compound 14-inch armor, was introduced, of which three inches was supposed to be equal to four inches of wrought iron.

"Then in 1893 the steel armor was improved by the Harvey process, which hardened its face and made two inches equal to four inches of wrought iron. Then came the important improvement which introduces Canada as a national factor in the building of warships. Nickel and steel alloyed in 1895 was employed instead of ordinary steel and hardened on the Harvey plan. The Harvey nickel steel of eight inches became equal in its power of resistance to the old eighteen-inch wrought iron. Then Krupp further improved the Harvey system of hardening, so that in 1900 six inches of Krupp steel was the equivalent to nine inches of the older Harveyed, and to over three times their thickness of wrought iron. Then (lastly, so far as I have been able to discover) in 1908, the Simpson steel of [illegible] has been in use which surpasses all former armors and is better in quality and greater in resisting power than each one of the former armor plates, notwithstanding their vastly greater thickness.

ZOUAVES ARE SUPERB FIGHTERS COVERING THEMSELVES WITH GLORY

Japanese are Closing in on the Enemy. French and British Take Many Prisoners. Berlin's Admission That Germans Have Failed to Ease the Pressure of the Allies is Taken to be Significant. Guns Turned on the Enemy

Confirmation of a news agency story that the German right wing had been broken and was in flight, is still lacking. Commentators show much skepticism of this report, although they consider the breaking of the German right wing to be only a natural result of the great turning movement, the present status of Rhich is pictured in the French official announcement of yesterday. This shows that the Allies have pushed back the invaders in this region until the German right wing is virtually at right angles with the rest of the line.

REGARDED AS SIGNIFICANT

The fact that the Germans Army Headquarters admit that their great efforts to throw back the pressure of the allies have proved indecisive is regarded in England as significant.

MILLION UNDER ARMS IN OCTOBER

London, Sept. 30.—The calling to the colors of the 1885, 1886 and 1887 classes of Italian reserves early in October have been confirmed by several Italian newspapers, according to the correspondent of The London Daily Mail at Venice. Eleven first category classes will then be under the flag, and will total 1,390,000 men.

Without counting the 80,000 men now in Tripoli, Italy will have an army of 1,310,000 men in her own territory, divided into 30 army corps. Continuing, the correspondent says the Austrian troops are still throwing up defence works along the frontier the Pontafeltarvis line being defended by the Landwehr.

ALLIES TAKE MANY PRISONERS

Paris, Sept. 30.—It was again the turn of the Allies' left yesterday to sustain the shock of the enemy on the battle-front in Eorthern France, and though the official communication does not say so, it is reliably stated that it was again their good fortune to take many prisoners.

The lack of consistency in the operations of the Germans, added to the increased vigilance of the censors, is making the lot of the military prophets a hard one. All they can deduce to-day from the information given out, is that the Germans failed to break through the Allies' front anywhere.

NOT UNFAVORABLE TO THE ALLIES

Naturally the absence of news makes a place for rumors very plentiful, but which no one dares to publish, even if their truth has been ascertained. Commentators are also required to be very circumspect, as is shown by the blank, white gaps of various lengths in the censored articles in the Paris newspapers. All that can be said of the unofficial reports that are printable, is that they are not unfavorable to the Allies.

ZOUAVES ARE SUPERB FORCE

The Zouaves are reported by returning wounded soldiers to be covering themselves with glory on the Allies' left. It is related that one day recently the French were obliged to recede under a tremendous pressure of numbers, and left eight 3-inch guns in the hands of the enemy. This enraged the Zouaves, who begged to be allowed to get them back and recapture the position. When trumpet was sounded for the charge and the Zouaves bounded forward, many turned their heads, as they did not wish to see what they thought was sure to happen to them, but on they went, singing, shouting and defying the rain of machine gun fire.

GUNS TURNED ON ENEMY

A great proportion fell on the way, but the rest never faltered until they pounced on the enemy's line. It seemed then as if there was only a few xashes of steel before the enemy broke, and the cannon were immediately trained on the fleeing foe, to avenge the brave Zouaves who had fallen in the heroic charge.

FOUR NAMES FOR ONTARIO PREMIER

Hon. Messrs. Hanna, Lucas, Hearst and Cochrane are Mentioned

Toronto, Sept. 30.—"Who is going to be the next Premier of Ontario?" is the big question, and coupled with it is the query, "Will there be a party caucus?"

That there will be a caucus to select a leader is highly improbable. It looks as though Hon. Dr. Pyne, the senior member of the Council, held the balance of power. Col. Hendrie will be sworn in as Lieutenant-Governor before the day is over, and then it will remain for the Minister of Education to suggest to His Honour the name of the man to lead the Government and the party.

There are four names mentioned for the position: Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon W. H. Hearst, Hon. I. B. Lucas and Hon. Frank Cochrane. There is a strong feeling that Hon. W. J. Hanna has done more in the public service than any other man in the Cabinet, and it is felt by many that he should be offered the leadership.

There is a feeling among some members that Hon. Frank Cochrane is not anxious to leave Ottawa. He would come to Toronto only if it seemed imperative in the interests of the party.

UNCLE SAM'S MONEY

Over $636,000,000 of it Invested in Canada

The Monetary Times says that the amount of United States capital invested in Canada is $636,903,952, as follows: 450 branch companies, with average investment of $300,000, $135,000,000; investments in British Columbia mills and timber, $70,000,000; investments in British Columbia mines $62,000,000; land deals in prairie provinces, $40,000,000; investments in lumber and mines, prairie provinces $10,500,000; theatrical enterprises, $3,000,000; packing plants, $6,750,000; agricultural implement distributing houses, $9,255,000; land deals, British Columbia, $60,000,000; investments of United States life and fire insurance companies, $67,331,497; miscellaneous industrial investments, $12,325,000; purchase of city and town property, $20,725,000; investments in the Maritime Provinces, $13,125,000; purchase of government, municipal and corporation bonds (1905-1913) $123,742,455; and fox farm investments, Prince Edward Island, $1,500,000.

CARRIER PIGEONS

Scientific Breeding of Birds Followed With Considerable Interest

The scientific breeding of carrier pigeons in France received a great impulse from their practical utility during the siege of Paris, and this industry has since been followed with much interest. While the siege was in progress, 363 carriers were sent out in balloons, of which 362 were liberated and 73 returned safely. They bore messages photographed microscopically on collodion, which were enclosed in goose quills attached to a silk thread to the upper part of the tail feathers. The success of these experiments led to the organistion in France of a military pigeon system. The minister of war maintains control over all the carrier pigeons in the country.

Careful attention is given to the feeding of birds destined for racers. Their usual diet is wheat, but as a contest approaches they are fed on small dried beans and maise, and are given water containing iron. Just before a race some amateurs give their birds beechnuuts and buckwheat which are believed to impart special strength for the flight. The training of the young birds begins when they are three or four months old. They are placed in a basket, taken a mile or so from home, and liberated. A few days later they are again transported, usually in the same direction, but twice as far and so on in successively longer stages, until they are able to fly homeward 100 miles or more. At the age of five months they can fly 300 or 350 miles in ten hours. They are not at their best, however, until the age of four or five years, when they can easily cover 600 or 700 miles. The average velocity of a good carrier is twenty-seven to thirty miles an hour, although an instance is on record where a bird attained a speed of seventy-five miles an hour. The average height in flying is 450 to 500 feet. The price of a carrier at Havre varies from $3.80 for an ordinary subject, to $250 or even more for a prize-winner in a race.

A NATURE TALK

How Ants Find Their Way to and From Nests

Not only naturalists, but everyone, who has watched ants has wondered how they find their way to and from their nests. A French naturalist, M. Cornets, who watched ants in Algeria, tells the results of his observations. The ant, he says, in its outward journey, proceeds throughout in the direction initially chosen; on its return the insect places its body at the same angle, and walks in the opposite direction. The body of the ant would, therefore, act as a kind of compass needle. If an ant is caught at the nest and transported to a point some yards distant the insect is quite incapable of finding its way back. It runs around on the ground until it accidentally comes across the entrance to the burrow. The case is quite different if an ant is allowed to find its way to a distance unmolested. On leaving the nest it places itself in a certain direction, and holds the same, no matter what obstacles it may meet with on route, and not matter what side tracks it may occasionally strike in order to seize some article of food or of structural value fr its nest. The return is effected directly, rapidly, and without hesitation, even if the ground covered has been swept in order to change its nature. The return is obviously determined completely by the outward trip, and an ant which has left its nest on a voyage of exploration finds its way back just because it has made the outward journey.

WITH THE ESKIMO

Twenty Years of Mission Work Brought Good Results

"Mission Work Among the Eskimo" was the theme of an interesting illustrated lecture by Rev. C. E. Whittaker who took his audience on a pictorial tour of the Arctic region, starting at Athabasca Landing, proceeding north to St. Matthew's Anglican Church at Fort McPherson, the most northerly church of the British Empire, being 100 miles within the Arctic Circle. Views were shown depicting the habits and customs of the Eskimo and the progress of civilization among them. [illegible] to certain strictures that have been made and the aspersions cast on the work of missions in the Far North by some individuals, the lecturer was able to prove these were not only unjustifiable, but unfounded. Twenty years of mission work among the Eskimo had been productive of great beneficial results. When the Church sent the first missionaries to the Eskimo those people had every mark and every habit of barbarism. Those conditions had been changed. Instead of living in snow houses, as formerly, most of them now lived in huts built on hygienic principles. The missionaries did not attempt to change any habits of the Eskimos that were not hurtful to their character. Any evil habits they had contracted were due to the influence of certain commercial adventurers, whose regard for the ten commandments was not very strong. That class of people were enemies to religion and morality wherever they went. To prevent any of the "adventurer class from contaminating the 'Blonde Eskimos'" the Church proposed to establish a mission among them at the earliest possible moment.

COOKING AS A REFUGE

A well known Parisian, a club man and sportsman, disappeared from the boulevards and its diversions and was found in a monastery, where he was acting as cook. He was tired of the old life, he says. No other reason. Let us place our emphasis less on the monastery than on its kitchen. Other French noblemen have retired to monasteries, but few have taken an active hand in the cooking. Very likely this particular count, only too well aware of the emptiness and unsatisfactoriness of his earlier life, yearned to turn his hand to something practical and useful. Being a French count, he turned his hand to cooking. There is nothing more practical and useful than that. There is nothing which, when well done, is capable of yielding a more general satisfaction all round. Every man should be able to cook a little, and should cultivate appreciation and respect for good cooking by others. Of course there drawbacks to such a career. Few cooks can enjoy their own cooking and few get a due measure of praise for their work, however well done. Perhaps the count is an exception. Since he has kept his "place" two years, he may enjoy his work as an artist if not as a gourmet, and he may have been heartened now and then, by a word of approbation from the brethren he serves. Such a word goes well in any kitchen.

Bored Holes in Skull

One of the most remarkable and heroic experiments of surgery ever attempted went to naught when a patient at St. Mary's Hospital, Philadelphia, died from the effects of the operation made in an effort to save him from the ravages of paresis.

Physicians at the hospital who found the patient hopelessly afflicted bored a series of holes in his skull and injected a serum of salvarsan. This is the one method known to medicine by which the disease may be checked. Salvarsan is the compound used in the most dangerous of all blood diseases. The physicians so far have made no report on the case. It is said the patient did not revive sufficiently from the shock because of previously weakened vitality.

With the Habitants

In the province of Quebec, as one can see from reading Doctor Drummond's charming book, "The Habitant," seldom a night passes, no matter how stormy, without 15 to 20 neighbors gathering together at one of the French farm houses, which are strung close together for 100 miles along the banks of the St. Lawrence where, by the wise orders of Louis Fourteenth, the farms were divided into narrow strips two acres wide and a mile and a half long. It is a pity that in surveying the Great Empire of the West that a similar plan had not been followed, for then there would have been a house every 400 feet on each side of the railroad on the division line, and a great comfort and convenience in time of sickness while a great joy in time of health.

Douglas Fir

Douglas fir is the chief timber species in British Columbia, and is third in importance in Canada, deriving its name from David Douglas, who discovered it in 1827 and introduced it into the gardens of Europe. Its adaptability and rapid rate of growth led to its being largely planted as a forest tree in Germany, France, Denmark and England, and the Indians in British Columbia sell immense quantities of seeds to European dealers every year. A Danish plantation at the age of 29 years produced 87 cords of wood, equal to an annual production of three cords per acre, which is about three times the growth-rate of white pine on average soil in Canada. The wood of Douglas fir is also considerably stronger than white pine, and is valued highly for construction purposes because of its size, strength and comparative lightness.

District of Patricia

In the 157,400 square miles added to northern Ontario there is very little timber of any present value. Mr. J. B. Tyrrell, reporting on his trip through this new district of Patricia, says: "Most of the timber was small and much of it has been burned. . . . Larch or 'tamarack' is associated with white and black spruce to the northern limit of the district, but unfortunately most of the trees are dead."

Strength of Hickory

Hickory is the strongest Canadian wood. When properly seasoned a hickory column will support a weight of twelve tons per square inch cross-section, which is considerably more than what could be borne by a pillar of cast iron or steel of the same length and weight.

Pulp Mills in Canada

In the little country of Denmark there are 230 pulp or paper mills. In Canada, according to the latest available statistics of the Dominion Forestry Branch, there are only 48 pulp mills in actual operation. The Canadian mills are, however, many times larger than those in Denmark.

Dead Cats as Scarecrows

A novel method of scaring away birds was adopted by a Kentish farmer. He had killed a number of cats had them stuffed, and placed them in various attitudes among the branches of the fruit trees in his orchard.

The Strange "Mystery" In the Brain of a Thief

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

I HAD a long talk with a Thief, the other day, all about the world and the people in it, and what a pity it is that nobody is really honest.

The Thief was just out of the penitentiary and he had a great deal to say for himself and his friend, and honest and dishonest people in general. I sat on deck in a San Francisco ferryboat and watched the California sunshine making a gay pattern of froth upon the blue of the bay—and listened to what the Thief had to say. He was a good talker—was the Thief. Most thieves are, I've come to notice. I suppose they have to be—to keep people from noticing what they do.

"I'm sick of being a crook," said the Thief. "It's never brought me anything. I'm going to be straight from this day out. What is there in stealing? Not a thing in the world.

"You don't get much to begin with—and what you do get you have to divide up with some other crook or he'll squeal on you.

"I've had a good many pals since I've been a crook—and there never was one of them on the level with me. How could they be on the level? That ain't the way they learn to be crooks—being on the level.

"I've heard a man make a spiel about honor among thieves. Take it from me, kiddo—there's nothing to it.

Remember That Stolen Pie?

"A thief ain't a thief because he wants to be, any more than a guy is a hunchback because he hates straight shoulders. A thief is born—he ain't made. I can't make him—I've tried to. I met a young guy once—the smoothest talker I ever heard—and quick with his hands—my—my! But he was never no good at the business.

"I did my best to learn him the tricks of the trade—but he always muffed it. He said he'd like to be a crook, just for the excitement of it—but it always made him feel dizzy when anybody trusted him—and as sure as he got dizzy he'd turn straight, right in the midst of a game, and throw the whole business.

"You can't make a crook out of a straight guy—no matter how you try.

"Funny thing about me—I am a crook because I want to be—I ain't a natural thief. That's the reason I'm going to be straight now. I'm sick of the game—there's nothing in it.

"Were you happy when you stole the cherry pie out of the cupboard? Nobody could see the stain of the cherries on your sleeve—but it was there—and you knew it—and you couldn't forget it—not for a minute. And when the preacher came to dinner—every time he spoke you twisted your sleeve and wondered what he'd say when he got round to you.

"A born crook—he can't never get out of it, poor devil, he's cross-eyed and club-footed—born that way—and it's no use bein' mad at him for it.

"I'm different—I'm on the level—by nature. I just fooled myself into this game, because I thought there was something in it. I'm through now—and through for good."

The Thief's eyes brightened with a sudden gleam as of hidden steel—I looked up and saw a woman pass—the diamond pin she wore sparkled in the sunshine. The Thief's eyes narrowed, as do the eyes of one who calculates.

"I must be movin'," said the Thief. And he rose and stepped close behind the woman who wore the diamond pin—did I imagine, or did his fingers twitch a bit?

Theft and Free Will.

Two days after that I was in the police court—and there, in the prisoners' dock, sat my friend the Thief.

On the table, where the policeman who had arrested him had thrown it, glittered the diamond pin I had seen on the breast of the woman who had crossed the bay on the same boat with the Thief and me—the day he told me that he was tired of being a crook, and that he was going to be straight.

The Thief straightened himself in his chair, and stared at me with the bold look of conscious innocence—almost.

Yes, he had pawned the pin—he found it on the ferryboat—he tried to find the owner. No, he didn't advertise—well, of course, there was no use—when the cops had it in for you you might as well give up. They gave him a stiff sentence—an old offender, they say he was.

I had a little talk with him there in the court room.

"Didn't I tell you there's nothin' in being a crook?" said the Thief. "You always think you're goin' to make a get-away—and you never do." The Thief's eyes hardened to something which he evidently considered an expression of injured innocence.

"You know the judge, don't you?" asked the Thief. "Can't you put in a good word for me? I'm tryin' to live straight—ain't nobody goin' to let me?"

The Thief's eyes followed mine to the diamond on the table, and to the face of the woman who had worn it. He had the grace to grin—sheepishly.

"See," he said, "that woman has got the look I told you about. She believes I found the pin—you can't never get no cop to believe that."

And there was a look upon the Thief's face of envy, and of wonder, and of a kind of childish wistfulness—for he wasn't a thief by nature—I know he wasn't—for he told me so himself.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I went with a young man for over a year and promised to marry him. About Christmas time last year I met some one else and gave him up. The second one wants me to marry him. I know he would make me a better husband than the other, and I am very fond of him.

But when I hear of the other going out with any one else I feel mad and bad-tempered for some time after. Even when the other young man is with me. TOPSY.

TOPSY, which of these two men do you really love?

Do you love either of them, or do you just love yourself—and the fun of making some one else love you? When are you happiest—when you're with the first man or the second? Which is your kind of a man?

Which one is most like one of your brothers in the things he likes and the things he hates?

Glamour is a fine thing for a love affair, but it doesn't always wear very well after the rice is all brushed out of your going-away gown. The man who will make you happiest, and the man that you can make happiest is apt to be one who has something the same sort of ideas that you have—at least the same standards.

Which do you like best—a garden rose or an orchid?

Marry the man who likes the same sort of garden, and you're apt to marry a man who's had something the same sort of parents and the same sort of home life as you have. And you'll be apt to be able to make a home for him where he can be happy.

From your letter I think—I don't know why—that the second man is a good man, who loves you, and the first man is one who is not so good—and you love him—or think you do.

Why did you break off your engagement with the first man? Was there just a foolish little quarrel, or did you become convinced that he wasn't worthy of you? That makes all the difference in the world.

If he wasn't worthy then, what reason have you to think that he is worthy now? Has he changed—or have you?

Marriage is a serious affair, you know, Topsy, and you can afford to take a little time before you slip your hands into a running noose that may not be so easy to untie, after all.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

THOSE HOME-MADE AIR CASTLES

By Michelson

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

YOU see, she didn't get away for the summer. Even for one of those precious two-weeks in the long-dreamed-of country, or by the sea. She was held at home, where most of the people in the world are held. She could only look out of the window at the tantalizing sky and let the visions come.

Maybe she had seen trains moving away with cushioned Pullmans and dining-cars. Maybe she had seen big ships, with bands playing, slip out to the shining sea. Anyway, she has thought and thought of far and bright places, of castles and minarets, and white-browed mountains, and valleys drenched with flowers, and gondolas, and pergolas and shimmering lakes and forms and colors that may not really exist anywhere on earth.

She is quite right. When you build air castles build them high and make them wonderful beyond the dreams of poets. Such moments are not wasted. No duties can rob you of your dreams. You are THAT much to the good.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

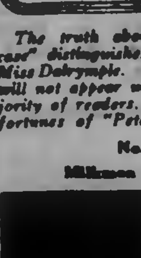
Milkmen and Nerves.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

I WAS working very hard now. Every night found me poring over the books at the factory. I began to lose weight, and I was growing nervous. Nights I was frequently too tired to sleep, and lay and tossed until morning.

It was about this time that I took an unreasoning dislike to the milk man. After lying awake all night, I'd manage to drop into a comfortable doze just as he came clanking into the street around 4 o'clock in the morning. He was noisy—there was no getting around that. He'd clank his bottles and run along gravel driveways and thump the bottles down on porches with a thud. He always woke me. And, somehow, his wagon seemed crankier than any wagon I'd ever heard, and his horses heavier.

Moreover, he had a habit of singing out to them when it was time to move on—and, altogether, he was such a pest that I grew to hate him. Likely my subconscious mind was tuned to expectancy, and a spiritual alarm went off to wake me when it was time for him. At any rate I frequently awoke just before he turned into the street—and, then, there was no sleeping again for an hour. For after he was through with our street I could hear him clanking about on the next.

One morning he was so perniciously cheerful that I rose and stuck my head out of the window.

"What the devil do you mean," I demanded, "by clanking about at this time of morning and waking everybody up? You're so darned noisy nobody can sleep."

"Sleep!" said the milkman with a great, hearty chuckle, "myself I could sleep standing up. I'd like to have your chance."

"He's a coarse brute," murmured Mary sleepily from bed, "likely he could."

"Well," said I, "you'd oblige me considerably if you wouldn't chirp at your horses and clank your bottles so. It's darned annoying."

Here a window of the downstairs apartment shot up and Alvin stuck his head out.

"What's all the row," he asked fretfully, "what's all the row? Did somebody throw anything at that fool milkman?"

"No," said I cordially, feeling something in common with my downstairs neighbor for the first time, "but I'd like to."

"Shoot him," said Alvin. "He's a great, healthy, noisy animal with no regard for nerves."

I went back to bed distinctly thoughtful. Was I drifting to that silly stage of nerves which made of Alvin a notorious pest? Had the milkman ever gotten on my nerves until this winter? Had I, indeed, ever heard him turn into the street until I began to worry about money and overwork?

"I'll see Dad tomorrow," I said. "I need some attention."

Dad listened very carefully.

"Well," he said, "you're losing weight, Peter, and you're not in the best of trim. I've never seen you just as you are now. Working pretty hard?"

"Yes," said I. But I said nothing of the overwork I did at night.

"Better go slow," advised Dad, "or you'll have to knock off and take a rest. Are you worrying about anything?"

"I'm getting to be a sort of a worrier," I admitted. "Things bother me more than they used to."

"Quit it," said Dad. And he gave me a prescription that has helped a lot.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How a Sheep's Pancreas May Aid the Human Body

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

THE sweetbread of the human body is called by anatomists the pancreas. It resembles a flattened-out, pink banana and it abides comfortably abaft your stomach.

The pancreas is from one-half to two-thirds of a foot long, and it pours a digestive fluid into a little hose-like gutter, or canal, which empties into the loop of the bowel; which is really a continuation of the small end of the stomach.

The pancreas not only gives forth a digestive fluid into the intestines with "pancreatin" and other "ferments" in it, but it manufactures an internal juice or "hormone," which enters the blood just as thyroid juice, adrenin juice, pituitary juice and the juices of the rest of the glands. This "hormone" of the pancreas seems to be necessary to burn up or oxidize sugar in the blood and tissues. Diabetes, or sugar disease, which is recognized when doctors find sugar to pass out in the kidney fluids, in the major portion of instances, is associated with deficiency, deformity or sickness of the pancreas.

As an example of a woeful want of knowledge about the pancreas and its work, it is only necessary to quote a famous doctor's recent words. "I think," he says, "I voice the opinion of all pathologists when I say that every individual who has a diminished tolerance for sugars and starches exhibits the symptoms of diabetes and must be considered as subjects of a defective pancreas."

In the blood of those who have diabetes, there is an absence of the pancreatic hormone. This juice is absolutely necessary for the tissues to use up sugar. This is proved by a simple experiment:

If a sheep's or calf's pancreas is boiled up and the extract added to the blood of one with diabetes, the power to burn up sugar is at once restored.

Dr. Morris of New York is convinced from his researches that many sufferers with diabetes have succumbed to this because of inflammation of the pancreas. This was caused by microbes which crawled and colonized their way from the bowel into the pancreas.

It might now be expected that all a doctor need do to "cure" diabetes is to feed the victim some pancreas or some of the hormone or extract of one. But such treatment, unhappily, has been often tried, like wishing for wealth, without success.

Sugar in the kidney fluids may be caused by taking or injecting certain other "hormones," such as thyroid, or especially adrenin. In such instances the administration of pancreas augments instead of diminishes the loss of stored up sugar.

Sugars are stored up in the liver and muscles, for the same purpose that Joseph used to fill the granaries of ancient Egypt. They are reserves for days of tissue famine.

Dr. Zuelzer, a German savant, reports good results in the treatment of diabetes by taking sheeps' and calves' pancreas and extracting the digested albumens from it. His treatment causes sugars and acids to disappear from the fluids by the injection of his prepared pancreatic extract.

Two recent investigators, Drs. Rennie and Fraser, made a mixture of dry pancreas tissue from a genus of fish called teleostei. The five patients who used it were somewhat improved.

Dr. Pochon, a French research worker, was the first one to suggest that a diabetic medicine be made from the walls of a sheep's intestines, in addition to that of the internal islands of the pancreas itself.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

Removing Candle Grease.

Sprinkle a little spirits of wine on the spot and rub gently. The grease will soon work up into a fine powder, which can be brushed off.

Keeping Plants During Holidays.

One of the woes of the about-to-go-on-a-holiday-housewife is the keeping of her cherished room plants in good condition during her absence. The best method is the following:

Place as many bricks as you can at the bottom of a large zinc washing tub, just cover the bricks with cold water, and leave until you are just about to depart. Replace the water which the bricks will have absorbed, and place one plant on each brick. The cellar is the best place in which to keep the tub, but any room which can be darkened and kept ventilated will do.

Cleaning a Brown Leather Bag.

Rub the bag well with a soft cloth, and then apply a coating of brown leather polish and polish off in the usual way. Any polish suitable for brown boots can be used.

Renovating a Scratched Mirror.

Commence proceedings by mixing some powdered whiting to a paste the consistency of cream with methylated spirits, smear the surface of the mirror thickly, and wipe with tissue paper. Remove the back, wipe over the silvered side quickly with a cloth wrung out in hot water, and dry with a hot dry towel. Wipe the specks and scratches with a little spirit of wine, paint over with silver paint, and leave to dry. Replace the back. Sprinkle some tissue paper with a little powdered washing blue, and give the surface of the mirror a final polish.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Houses Melt Away in the Rain

By TEMPLE MANNING

A Fair-Weather House.

IN Algeria one of the perplexing biblical puzzles of my childhood was set at rest. Until I went there I had never been able to figure out exactly what was meant by the passage in the Bible that reads: "How can we make bricks, for we have no more straw?"

But when I saw the Algerians make bricks by incasing short straws in the mud of the fields, patting the bricks into shape, and drying them in the sun, the mystery was explained. And then one day when it rained I wondered why they ever did it.

Fortunately it seldom rains in Algeria, but that day it rained as I never saw it rain before or since. The very heavens seemed to open and the celestial reservoir to empty itself within a few hours. A veritable river gathered in the street and ran from house to house through the little village, and every once in a while I heard through the darkness of noonday a dull splash.

The next morning I waded through the village to see what had happened, and I found whole families camping out on the higher ground, for their houses had melted away. Rain comes so seldom that the natives do not include it in their scheme of life, they build their houses for the sunny days. And when the rain comes their mud brick houses, unless strongly white-washed, and they seldom are, fall down and melt into mud heaps. Then the whole family goes camping until the house is rebuilt. "[illegible] Allah!" smiles the serene owner—"It is the will of God."

THE GERMANS ARE WAR-MAD BARBARIANS

Given a Taste of Blood in China to Fit Them for Similar Atrocities in England and Europe. Natives in Africa Butchered.

Dr. Leslie Livingston Seaman, of New York, it will be remembered, cabled to New York from Antwerp, an indignant protest against the bombardment of that city by Zeppelins. Dr. Seaman is a well-known figure in New York, he has figured conspicuously, for instance, in the work of the American Committee for the celebration of the Century of Peace. An English journalist had an interview with Dr. Seaman, part of which may be quoted :—

The doctor (says the interview) is a typical product of the United States, with a hobby for rushing out to wars—officially when his country is engaged, unofficially otherwise. With means enough to pursue his hobby and with a surgical skill which makes him welcome in any hospital, he has seen every war of his generation "from the inside." He came to Antwerp instinctively, and the next day was tending the Zeppelin wounded, and working to rouse the United States to a sense of the atrocities of German war methods.

"It is not exactly news to me" he said, "and I reckon it won't be exactly news to America that these Germans are war-mad barbarians. I have seen a good deal of them before this. The other day in Potsdam I saw proudly displayed the astronomical instruments which the Germans, under Von Waldersee, stole from Peking. That was a vandal trick against which our General Chaffee in China protested at the time. The German General sent his letter back to him without any reply.

"In the Boxer campaign (I was there) the Germans practiced on the Chinese the game they are playing on the Belgians now. Their army came when all the real fighting was over. By August 16 there was no more fight left in the Chinese than in so many jack rabbits. The Germans arrived Nov. 20, and for want of any fighting began a policy of sympathetic murder. They'd send punitive expeditions all round the country, levying on each village they encountered a war tax. If the tax were not paid the village were fired, and the inhabitants fired upon. From accounts which came into us the native population was in some cases almost exterminated. That was to give the German soldier his taste of blood, to fit him for the work he is doing now in Belgium, and might be doing in England if the luck had gone that way.

"I saw more of the Germans in their colony in East Africa in 1914. I was out there investigating sleeping sickness. The Germans had opposed a most oppressive hut tax on the natives, a tax which could only be paid by six months' forced labor each year; and the natives were stirred up by their priests to revolt. German atrocity in reprisal was something incredible. One incident. The priests or magic men, to encourage the natives, had told them that the German rifles shot out nothing but water.

What a Submarine Is

So much has been written concerning what the submarine, by a flight of imagination, may achieve, writes the naval correspondent of the London Morning Post, that most people are somewhat uncertain as to what the submarine actually is and does. To begin with, she is shaped like a cigar, and she carries a tower on her back. Inside the tubular steel hull, valves and tubes and pipes line the walls; aft, in a space so low that the engineers can hardly stand upright, are the internal combustion engines and the electric motors which drive the vessel when she is under water. Below the floor or deck, of the inside of the hull are petrol and stores. Forward are the torpedo tubes. Amidships there projects downwards from the ceiling a thick brass column ending in a brass cross-piece. This is the base of the periscope. When the boat is submerged and the officer desires to see what is going on above, he sets a hand on each arm of the cross-piece, which is level with his face, and rotates the column, while he looks into the mirror. In the mirror he beholds an image, little and bright, of a section of the sea and horizon, and by swinging it round he can scan the whole circle, reflected in the periscope above, which is the eye of the steel fish. Alongside the periscope is the upright steel ladder leading through two hatches to the deck of the conning tower, which is raised five or six feet above the top of the hull. It is about four feet in diameter, and is protected by a breast-high rail lined with canvas. Here is the wheel, and here, when the vessel is running awash, stand the captain and the quartermaster. In fine weather those of the crew who are not required below are grouped on the little half-deck below the conning tower, just above the steel hull itself. Officers and men are dressed in sea-boots, sweaters and rough clothing.

The submarine running awash forges sullenly onwards with a heavy grinding noise, the water lifting and dripping from the gills which reject on either side of her snout. Below, the hull is filled with the crashing of the furious engines cramped in the narrow tube of steel. The engineers squat placidly among the racing rods and pistons, in the thick atmosphere tainted with fumes. Should the sea-water enter the hull and mix with petrol gas, the fatal chlorine gas is formed, and the crew are suffocated.

The method of the submarine is to cruise at economical speed, ten knots or less, on the surface, until she sights a hostile vessel. As she is so small he can see another vessel before the other vessel can see her. Then she sinks. The captain and the crew go below; the hatches are closed; and the captain, swinging his weight upon the cross-piece from the periscope, his eye upon the mirror, gives his orders. The crew are lying along the sides, ready to turn valves on or off. The internal combustion engines are stopped and the propeller shaft is connected up to the electric motors. There is a sudden silence.

The process of submerging is a process in the brain of the captain. He has a mental picture of what each tank contains, and how much weight is driven out forward or aft at each order, and what will be the effect upon the vessel. He communicates this process to the vessel itself. He must first dip her bows slightly, then her stern, then bows again, and so on. If he makes a mistake the submarine may dive down, and then all is done. The process is reflected in the brain of his lieutenant, who stands near the captain. In ordinary vessels, if an officer faints or makes a mistake, there are a dozen people at hand who can put it right, because they know what ought to be done. Not so in the submarine. The only person besides the captain who knows what is going on is his lieutenant, but the consequences of a mistake would follow so quickly that the lieutenant could not rectify it. Nor would he know in all probability that a mistake had been made until the consequences began. The men lying beside the valves know nothing except how to do what they are told. Nor is there any sensation of motion as the boat sinks. It seems to be as still as a drawing-room on shore.

The periscope, which is about the size of a saucer, remains about eighteen inches above the surface, and, viewed from the deck of a ship all that is seen is a flitting pennant of white spray, as it cuts the waves, like a sea-bird's wing. In any lop it would be almost imperceptible at two or three hundred yards.

Upon approaching to attack the submarine sinks lower and submerges her periscope, so that her captain, looking in the mirror, sees his little and bright picture washed out in green—the green of the water. And from above nothing is visible at all.

The submarine is now blind. She cannot see through water. But she can steer a course. Her captain has made his calculations before he submerged his periscope. And the range of a German torpedo is about 3,000 yards at 25 to 30 knots. The submarine can fire her torpedoes, go about, presently rising until her periscope is above water, then herself continues beneath the surface until it is safe to rise, and like a whale, to breathe again.

Ridiculous War Reports

We caution our readers against ridiculous and inconsistent war reports and rumors. So many unsubstantiated rumors are circulated that in reading the bulletins the citizens, were they to exercise their own judgment, would readily recognize the absurdity of many announcements. For instance Tuesday evening one bulletin announcement read, "Von Kluk's army surrounded and offers to surrender." This did look possible, but when a later bulletined rumor read, "Gen. Joffre refuses to accept Von Kluk's surrender," the whole elaborate optimistic structure fell to the ground. Such bulletins are quite in keeping with Berlin's misleading announcements show an utter disregard for the truth, and reflect discredit upon their authors. When an armed force offers to surrender, its enemy is bound by international humane laws, to accept that surrender. Had Gen. Joffre, as bulletined, refused acceptance of surrender, he would stand besmirched as a barbarian of the first water and undeserving his present enviable reputation as warrior of the strictest honor, and a gallant French gentleman, every inch of him. The refusal of proffered surrender on the part of a brave but defeated foe, means nothing else but cold-blooded murder, unworthy the suggestion as applied to any of the present belligerents. We would counsel our readers to use their own judgment in digesting bulletin news.

Our Point of View

Because a New York publisher wrote verses on the war his wife sued for separation. Some of the samples of the verse submitted as evidence shows that she had ground for action.

Speaking of the dogs of war, the Red Cross dogs which the French have trained to seek out the wounded on the battlefields are doing excellent service.

Mr. Berrang B. Bump is a citizen of Sisterville, West Virginia, but from all accounts he is not a bumptious individual, although his name sounds like a falling window sash.

The Russians are now bombarding Przemysl and workers in newspaper offices are hoping that they will knock the z out of it.

Colonel Bolivar Beasley contends that there is no excuse for women not feeling cool in hot weather. He says his wife recently bought a shirtwaist for $4.98 which contained 8 cents worth of material and $4.90 worth of holes.

The officers of the British army have been pictured as dudes and aristocrats, but the war has demonstrated that they have fine staying qualities, and don't mind a little thing like dying for their country.

A news item says New York has passed an ordinance which denies the populace the right to raise chickens. Probably a shrewd scheme to get rid of its colored citizens.

A correspondent writing from "dry" territory says that a suit case can comfortably carry a case of beer. True, but we know some men who can do the same thing without the aid of a suit case.

Europe is so obsessed by its great war that we are inclined to believe that even the babies are in arms.

General Frank Villa is the most industrious rebel that Mexico ever produced, probably because rebelling is the only business he knows.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps End Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure?

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache, toothache or cramps, Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.

(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

General Contractor, Rollo Bay, P. E. I.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

The Onion

What is the reason that so few people eat onions nowadays. The onion used to be a stand-by in this country, but it is getting to be about as popular as a divorced husband at the wedding feast. There is nothing that will bring tears of repentance to a hardened sinner's eyes quicker than a stout, wide-hipped Bermuda onion with teeth like a rip-saw and a grip like an entered apprentice. One of these onions, sprinkled with tasco sauce and inhaled slowly before each meal, will cause a man to perspire at high speed when the thermometer is 40 degrees below zero. Physicians tell us that if people would eat more onions they would have fewer microbes roosting about in their systems, as onions are death to germs of all kinds. The onion is also death to the course of true love—after marriage, but not before.

Look-out Towers

At a cost of only $50 the Dominion Forestry Branch recently erected a lookout tower fifty feet high, overlooking two hundred square miles of woodland. Similar towers are being built on all the Dominion forest reserves in the West in order that fires may be seen and extinguished before they have time to spread beyond control.

Wireless on a Train

News bulletins taken by wireless were displayed on a moving train, when passengers on the Lackawanna Railroad were astonished to see the latest foreign and home despatches spread before their eyes as they were being whirled along at sixty miles an hour. The "Scranton Times" sent 356 words from the Lackawanna wireless station to the moving train, the messages dealing with internal and external affairs. A few days previously the same railway company successfully experimented with the transmission by wireless of running orders to a train staff.

Dead Cats as Scarecrows

A novel method of scaring away birds was adopted by a Kentish farmer. He had killed a number of cats had them stuffed, and placed them in various attitudes among the branches of the fruit trees in his orchard.

TWO WOMEN JUDGES

These ladies, Mrs. E. C. Rungle (above) and Miss C. R. Dunn (below) preside over a court in St. Louis, Mo., where all cases concerning wayward girls are heard. Their decision as to release, probation or imprisonment is accepted as final, but few indeed, are the instances of a sentence is imposed. Their work is to reclaim girls who have taken the wrong path, not to punish them.

PROF. J. W. ROBERTSON ON TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Our whole civilization moves under the influence of the fishermen of Galilee, the tent-maker of Tarsus, and above all the Carpenter of Nazareth.

In Ireland in 1899 there were only about 2,000 pupils in industrial continuation schools, chiefly in the north of Ireland; by 1910 there were 65,000 pupils enrolled under the schemes of the Technical Instruction branch.

After the hand work for boys was introduced into the schools of Munich, of the 2,300 boys who left school the first year thereafter, no less than 2,150 went at once into hand work in skilled employments.

What is required is that individuals and communities possess intelligence, practical ability and co-operating good will. These are not inherited.

The development of labor for the carrying on and carrying out of undertakings in connection with the natural resources is a most important duty, and at the present time is pressing upon the people for discharge. It presses upon the people both as individuals and communities.

The schools do not teach a trade, but give a good preparation for the learning of a trade immediately after the children leave school.

The fruits of technical education would be found in the circumstances and homes of the people and in the residuum of intelligence, practical ability and good will.

Hereafter the top of the ladder will be in every kind of institution where a man or woman is needed and can be trained for efficient service in agricultural work, in industrial work, commercial work, or housekeeping work.

Arctic Bird at Ayr

A curious specimen, in the form of an Arctic bird was captured at Ayr, Ontario, by the employes of Wm. Hawes Livery Company. While out hauling wood one of the men noticed the bird and commented on its tameness. It was captured without any difficulty and taken to the livery stable, where it was allowed perfect freedom. It did not seem to want to fly away. It measured about six inches long and was about the size of a robin, only the colorings were different. The ornithologist called it a "Snowflake." It lived in Labrador, and was rarely seen so far south. One other authority on birds says that it is a male pine grosbeak. One peculiar feature about the bird is that it walks, does not hop.

Largest Lobster on Record

The largest lobster caught in the district within living memory was brought ashore at Totland Bay, Isle of Wight, recently by a fisherman named Simonds. It weighed 9 pounds 3 ounces, was 2 feet 4½ inches long, and 5 inches across the largest claw.

A BORN GOLFER

Francis Ouimet, who at the age of twenty won what practically amounts to the golf championship of the world, has been a golf enthusiast since he was six years old, when he would sit for hours watching the members of a club near his home playing. When only a little older, his mother was unable to prevent him becoming a caddy. He always tried to caddy for those whom he considered the best players. He used to copy them, and soon began to play himself.

Then he had to go to school, but his mother says that his heart was really in golf and nothing else. When he used to come home from school in the evenings, and after he had gone to bed, his mother used to wonder what was the cause of the noises that came from his bed room.

One night she went up to find out, and found him practising putting!

MARKINGS ON MARS

Do These Indicate Land and Water, Snow and Ice?

There is no doubt that the main features of Mars are to be regarded as well established and some astronomers have given names to all the prominent objects. The markings on the surface of the planet are of two kinds. Some of them are iron-gray in color verging on green and the others are generally dark yellow or orange, sometimes verging on white. It seems natural to think that the former represent the oceans and the latter the continental masses of Mars.

It had been noted by early observers that each of the poles of Mars was made conspicuous by a white spot. To William Herschel we are indebted for the first systematic study of these extraordinary polar caps. He discovered that these arctic tracts on Mars vary both in extent and distinctness with the seasons of the hemisphere on which they are situated, attaining a maximum development from three to six months after the winter solstice on that planet and then shrinking until they are smallest about three to six months after the summer solstice. This paralleling of the behavior of the snow and ice which surround the earth's poles [illegible] is remarkable [illegible] any question but that the white spots of Mars are about like ours.

Mars having a year of 687 days, the seasons on that planet are also like the year, much longer than ours. In Mars' northern hemisphere the summer lasts for 381 days and the winter must be 306 days. During the summer time the polar cap at the north diminishes from its winter diameter of 50 degrees to about five degrees, while the south polar cap, being placed to one side of the exact pole, appears to be quite free from ice and snow once a year.—Toronto World.

"Bone-head" Column in Box Scores

"I believe," says Secretary John Heydler, of the National League, "that the day is not far distant when we will see a new column in the box score to record the errors of judgment made by ballplayers. Errors of judgment are frequent, and they have far more importance on the outcome of games than the ordinary mechanical errors a player makes. It seems to me that more attention is being given to scoring each year, and the recording of errors of judgment will follow before many more seasons."

British Columbia Pursues Progressive Policy to Reduce Fire Menace

Much progress has been made in British Columbia in connection with minimizing fire risks through the disposal of slash resulting from lumbering operations. In one year about 20,000 acres of lumbering slash were burned in that province, and a much larger area would have been burned had it not been for unusual rain. On the Coast and in the Interior, several experimental areas were burned by the Forest Branch, which, also, in co-operation with the Department of Public Works, burned a great many miles of slash along public roads. Such inflammable débris constitutes a serious fire menace as long as it is allowed to remain undisposed of. The Forest Branch, in co-operation with private land owners, secured the burning of quantities of slash created by road and railroad construction through private lands. It was a condition of the charter of the railways building through the province, through timbered territory, that where timber is taken from Crown lands for construction purposes, the slash shall be piled and burned, scattered and burned, or lopped, according to the direction of the forest officers.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

WOOD AND INDUSTRY

Twelve Thousand Ontario Manufacturers Require Wood

Leaving out of consideration the numerous industries engaged in the production of shingles, lath, ties, bridge-timber and rough lumber, there still remain at least thirty-eight different industries in Ontario more or less dependent on wood for their operations, and it is significant that even the makers of wood substitutes require wood in the process of manufacturing such. The exhaustion of Ontario's wood supplies, the depletion of which is already evident from the fact that over one-quarter of the total expenditure of $19,161,284 is paid for imported wood stock, would seriously cripple every Ontario industry.

Thirty-four different kinds of wood were used by these industries in the manufacture of everything in wooden produce from toys to threshing machines. Only eight of these woods had to be entirely obtained from outside sources, but, on the other hand, only six were entirely home grown. However, almost 90 per cent. of the three principal species, namely, pine, spruce and maple, which represented over one-half the total quantity used, were purchased in Ontario.

The sash and door industry easily takes first place among the wood-using industries, using 21.2 per cent. of the 807,456,000 feet, board measure, of rough lumber annually worked up by the one thousand two hundred Ontario manufacturers reporting to the Forestry Branch. The importance of this one industry will better be understood by comparison with the pulp industry, which although using 119,496,000 feet, board measure, of raw material, nevertheless was responsible for only 14.8 per cent. of the total consumption.

THE QUESTION OF SLANG

Always Changing, as Youth Must Have Its Own Variety

However much slang we may use ourselves, we all dislike and despise slang that is not our own. Old men who have tender memories of the slang of their own youth, see nothing but pertness and vulgarity in the slang of their grandsons, and for all of us there comes a time when we no longer feel contemporary with the slang of the present, when we have no part in making or using it, and have to ask what it means when we first hear it used. Then the new slang words seem to us presumptuous upstarts expressive of the general brainless presumption of youth, and indeed they are expressive of that free masonry of youth which we no longer share. Slang, in its first meaning, seems to have been the language of thieves, and it still keeps something of this first meaning in that it is the language of youth keeping its own secrets from middle age, and a token by which the young recognize all who are of their fellowship. That is the reason why it is always changing, for youth must always make its own slang afresh. The slang of five years ago is middle-aged and has associations that are already hostile. No self-respecting youth can use the slang of his uncle; indeed, he pities his uncle for finding any savor or fun in words so old fashioned. Elderly men have always protested against the vulgarity of new slang and professed to fear that the English language would be utterly corrupted by it. But the language outlives the slang, for the slang passes with the youth that made it, or only stays when it expresses a newly-discovered thing rather than a mood that is always coming and always going.

RAINBOW POTATOES

New Variety of Tubers Boast a Vivid Color Scheme

All interested in the culinary art, will hail with delight a new potato that has been placed upon the market. Branched like a spruce tree, fluted like a shell, some specimens being as small as marbles, the new potatoes also reflect every color of the rainbow. Blue-purple potatoes with red centres, scarlet potatoes, and yellow potatoes recently flaunted their hues for the first time in public, when their propagators were awarded a gold medal at London, England. They make a welcome addition to salads, which they improve in both color and flavor.

Many people avoid the use of potatoes in the belief that they contain an excessive quantity of starch. This is a fallacy. In reality they contain less than a quarter of the quantity of starch included in bread. Potatoes can be used as the only item of diet if taken in sufficient quantities. Nevertheless, they should never be eaten alone, but consumed with other flesh-forming foods, when their value is inestimable. It is the alkaline mineral salt contained in the potato that is so valuable to man, and which cannot be obtained to the same degree in any other food.

As light as lager,
but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

WEATHER FALACIES LONG SINCE EXPLODED

There Are Some Signs, However, Which May be Taken as Usually Reliable

There are two widespread popular fallacies in connection with the weather. One is that rain may be caused by concussion. This idea, that any loud noise, such as cannonading or even the ringing of bells, would bring rain, was suggested centuries ago. It was fully disproved in 1892 by experiments made by the United States Government. In these tests heavy charges of dynamite were carried aloft, even into the interior of clouds, by kites and balloons and exploded there but no rain resulted. The other fallacy is that the moon has an influence on the weather. This notion has been proved, by years of careful meteorological observations to be entirely without foundation. The old belief that certain crops should be planted at a certain stage of the moon is so absurd that it is no longer held by any intelligent people.

Popular Sayings

There are many popular sayings concerning the weather. Some of these are quite unreliable, and only persist because of the popular tendency to count the hits and forget the misses. No credence should be attached to the innumerable sayings regarding the character of certain seasons as determined by the weather on certain dates of the calendar. The same is true of the saying that the early appearance of winter birds denotes a severe winter. On the other hand there are many weather signs which can usually be relied upon. An observant person whose occupation takes him outdoors can very often predict the weather from one day to the next with a good degree of accuracy. Much appears to depend upon knowing one's locality, as a person who is "weather wise" at home is often decidedly off in new regions.

Some Explanations

Smoke falls before a storm, because the condensation of vapor on the smoke particles weighs them down. This increase in humidity before a storm also causes an increase in rheumatic pains, and make the walls of stone houses damp. Dew formed plentifully after a fair day and soon dissolved the next morning indicates a strong range of temperature under the clear sky of an anticyclone, and hence may foretell a day or two of fair weather. It is said that "the northwest wind is a gentleman, and goes to bed," meaning that the nights are usually calm after a northwest wind by day; this naturally follows from the diurnal variation of velocity in the clear weather of such a wind. When the wind shifts to the north with the sun (that is "veers") we usually get clear weather. This is because it indicates that the cyclone which has brought us the bad weather has passed. If, on the other hand, the wind backs (that is goes in the opposite direction to the sun) another spell of bad weather is coming.

HANDLING OF HORSES

Every man who handles horses should have the fundamental gift of common sense.

A young, highly-bred, trotting-bred mare was working on a farm for two years with an aged horse of lighter weight. The young mare fretted and fumed, always half a length ahead of the old horse. Then the man handling the team changed to open bridles. At once the young mare fell into her proper place, accommodating herself to the older horse. She could see what was going on, and seemed to realize what was expected of her. The man showed brains and responsiveness.

Be sure to give each horse exercise every day, in harness or yard—except, of course, during storms.

Box stalls are the ideal ones, and every stable should have several, at all events one or two. On stormy days during winter horses can be changed to these boxes and given a chance to move around.

Gait is a matter largely of breeding. Think of this before it is too late.

Lounging along in the harness is bad for any horse, young or old. It is a sure sign of a slouchy driver. Either drive or let it alone.

Monument to Humorist

In memory of Samuel Langhorne Clemens, "Mark Twain," a monument has been erected at Hannibal Mo. The monument is so situated that it overlooks the spot on the Mississippi river made famous by the humorous activities of "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer."

HUMAN FREAKS PUZZLE DOCTORS

English Boy Writes Upside Down—German Lad Sees Well Only in the Dark

Doctors were recently much interested in the case of Eddie Burn, a five-year-old school boy of Chester-le-Street, Durham, England. The lad has one of the most wonderful pairs of eyes ever set in a human head. While writing he not only unwittingly reverses his letters, but writes from right to left, and as a result his work appears as ordinary handwriting would be reflected by a mirror. It is thought that some defect in the nerve centres prevents young Burn's brain from carrying out its proper task. In persons of normal vision objects are reflected on the retina (the membranes at the back of the eye) upside down, but the brain translates the vision right side up. In the case of Burn the brain refuses to reverse the vision.

During recent years several children have been discovered who possess peculiar eyes. Lionel Brett, of Massachusetts, and a young girl of Narbonne were both found by oculists to have eyes which were capable of penetrating substances in the same fashion as the X-rays, while a German lad named Schaefer, although he was practically blind in the day time, had wonderful keenness of sight in the darkness of the night and could pick up pins from the floor of a pitch dark room.

All Have Two Hearts

It was reported that a doctor at Easton, Pennsylvania, had discovered a family of four, composed of mother and three children, each of which has two hearts. The medico was called to attend one of the children for chicken-pox, and, much to his astonishment discovered a heart beating on the child's right side as well as the left. This led him to examine the two other children and the mother with a similar result. This remarkable two-hearted family bear the name of Perkins, the children being Anna, Allen and Doris, aged thirteen eleven and four respectively. It is imagined that the hearts of the mother and her three children grew in two parts. That is to say the component parts of the organs did not unite the right ventricle of each heart (the chamber which receives the blood from the auricle and veins) and the right auricle growing on the right side of the body, and the left ventricle and the left auricle on the left.

A Movable Heart

A man named Hermann, of Hungary, has an extraordinary heart. He has the strange power of dislocating the organ and moving it from its proper position on the left side of the body to the right, keeping it there for several minutes at a time, while Professor von Bergmann declared that he knew a man who has such power over his muscles that he could move each of them as he pleased, and in this way he was not only able to move his heart from side to side, but stop his pulse from beating.

Miss Tardo, who was born on the Island of Trinidad about forty years ago, was devoid of physical feeling. [illegible] the opinion that there was no connection between the sensory and motor nerves in her body. She was proof against poison and disease, and she could control the beating of her heart, stopping it at will and permitting it to beat again.

There is a woman living in Spain who has a pair of horns, five inches long, on her head. The first indication of the horns were gatherings above the woman's ears, which afterwards grew into hard, fleshy lumps. At the end of four years from the commencement of the disease a pair of horns made their appearance.

The Humble Onion

Many [illegible] virtues reside in the humble onion. To ease neuralgic or rheumatic pains there is nothing better than an onion poultice. Very few people know that As a remedy for sleeplessness, try the effect of eating a Spanish onion before retiring. A few leaves of parsley steeped in vinegar and eaten afterwards will prevent any disagreeable taste or smell.

Scorched linen can be restored by squeezing the juice of an onion on thse marks. The smell of paint can be removed if a saucerful of sliced onion is placed in the room overnight.

For a wasp sting there is no better remedy than the juice of an onion. The onion is an excellent blood purifier, and its continued use makes the complexion peculiarly smooth.

A sliced onion placed in a sick room on a sheet of paper will absorb infectious odors. Burn, and renew daily. Flies will not disfigure gilt picture frames or mantels if the latter are washed in onion water.

Testing Cigars

A well known cigar expert dispels some popular misconceptions anent the fragrant weed. He alludes to the belief that the whiter the ash and the longer it holds on, the better the cigar. This is quite wrong, he points out. The length of the ash depends on the size of the pieces used in the filler, and a clear steel-grey ash denotes the best Havana. Then, again, nearly every man will reject a spotted cigar, but the spots mean absolutely nothing as regards quality. Most men think they can tell a cigar by squeezing it or smelling. Neither test is the slightest good. And every smoker believes that color denotes strength—that a dark wrapper denotes a strong cigar, a light one a mild cigar. The color has nothing whatever to do with the strength. As a matter of fact, for the average smoker there are practically no outward indications of the quality of a cigar. The only test for the non-expert is in smoking it.

Prescription by Wireless

How a ship's doctor prescribed by wireless for the sick captain of another ship was told on the arrival of the liner "Orduna" at Liverpool. Just before the vessel entered the Straits of Magellan a wireless message was received from the British steamer "Brodstone" saying that the master was ill, and asking the doctor of the "Orduna" to prescribe for him. Dr. Aylward first asked five questions, which were put and answered in twenty minutes. The doctor then prescribed for the patient, who was at least 100 miles away.

IF CATARRH KEEPS YOU HAWKING USE "CATARRHOZONE"-THE QUICKEST CURE

Nothing Known So Sure For Throat Weakness, Bronchial Trouble, &c.

No doctor attempts to-day to cure a genuine case of catarrh or bronchitis except by the inhalation method. Stomach dosing has been discarded because useless medicine so taken effects only the stomach—never reaches the seat of catarrh.

The advanced physician recognizes that only air can be sent into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Fill this air with healing medicaments and you solve the problem. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. It contains the richest pine-balsams and the greatest healers known.

One breath of Catarrhozone instantly circulated over the area that is afflicted with catarrh. Relief is instant—suffering stops at once—germs are destroyed—every taint of disease is removed. Think it over seriously. Here is a remedy that clears the throat, relieves hoarseness, coughing and bad breath. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, inflamed bronchial tubes are healed, throat and voice are strengthened.

Catarrhozone is pleasant and certain. You breath Catarrhozone—you don't take it. Large $1.00 size is guaranteed; smaller size 50c, and trial size 25c. at all dealers everywhere.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Syrup Company."

FEMALE DOPE FIEND TRIED HERE YESTERDAY

At yesterday's police court, in the afternoon, Mrs. Leavis and a man named Nelson were charged with keeping a disorderly house on Brock St. Mrs. Leavis was almost in a moribund condition. She is a morphine, laudnum and sulphate of atropia fiend. Her arms and body show evident signs of using a hypodermic and were covered with abscesses. The first witness called was Mrs. Alice Butcher, star witness in the case tried just before, against John Godfrey, first gave evidence. Mrs. Leavis is said to have used four tablets of sulphate of atropia just before the trial began. Witness said she has resided at Mrs. Leavis' and her evidence clearly showed the bad character of the house. A woman named Mrs. Green said she went to work for Nelson. She gave evidence showing the immoral character of the house. The case was continued until six o'clock. Judgment will be given at 2 p.m. to-day. The Matron, Mrs. McElhenny, whose good work in the cause of fallen humanity is well known, ably supported the half fainting female prisoner.

GODFREY IS REMANDED AT YESTERDAY'S COURT

At yesterday's police court John Godfrey was charged with having "procured" (under Section 216 of the Criminal Code) a girl for immoral purposes. Mr. Widdifield acted for the prisoner, and Mr. Wearing for the Crown. Mr. Wearing asked that the Court be cleared. The Magistrate remarked substantially that it would not hurt the audience to hear the evidence and he did not approve of secret sessions.

Alice Butcher, first witness, said she came here from Liverpool 7 years ago and is married. Her husband left her two months ago. Margaret Tucker and she had since then had a room. She went to work for Godfrey, as housekeeper. Godfrey's wife had left him. Witness said she and Godfrey had lived as man and wife. One night witness had her goods packed to leave Godfrey's and then Margaret Tucker arrived. Margaret asked Godfrey to let Mrs. Butcher stay for two weeks. The case was adjourned until 2 p.m. Margaret Tucker, in the witness box said prisoner had on several occasions made improper proposals. She refused and prisoner told her he would have no woman in the house that was not "complaisant." Her story as well as that of the former witness was simply a story of man's wickedness and woman's frailty.

The prisoner, in the box, referring to the evidence given by the two women, remarked "They must have been dreaming!" Here Mrs. Butcher exclaimed, "I dream, but not in the day time!" Judgment was reserved until 2 p.m. to-day.

CANADA HOLDS TRUMP CARD

"The question is what has brought this about. The answer is 'Nickel.'

French and Canadian Mines.

"France and Canada own the only two nickel deposits in the world which pay to work—the former nation owning the Caledonian Mines, and Canada the Sudbury Mines. It is needless to say that France now will not permit Germany to get an ounce of nickel from Caledonia. Why should not Canada, as part of the British Empire, in like manner, deprive Germany of the Sudbury nickel and thus help old England in maintaining her supremacy over the common enemy? Now, how is this to be done? The answer is. Let Canada do that which by statue in 1896, she declared her right to do, and her readiness to do, by proclamation, viz: put an export duty on nickel, so as to compel its refinement in Canada by the International Nickel Company, which practically controls Canada's nickel mines and whose net profits from our raw material for the year ending March 31, 1914, were $4,792,664.75, whereby they paid to their stockholders a dividend of six per cent. on the preferred stock, and six per cent. on the common stock.

"As matters stand to-day, our raw material goes to Bethlehem, N. J., and if the Quebec arsenal wants an ounce of nickel it must go there for it. Canada, of course, cannot control the sale of the refined article from the refineries of the United States, and thus Germany gets our nickel from them to build their ships to sink our 'Cressys' and 'Aboukirs' and 'Howges,' with the fearful loss of 1500 lives, in the twinkling of an eye—and we never raise a finger to prevent it. I do not maintain that Great Britain gets no nickel from the same source. She probably does, but it is right that Germany should. Nor do I overlook the fact that England gets nickel from the Victoria Mines (owned by Sir Alfred Mond, M.P.) in the Sudbury district, but the export from that mine is about one-sixth of the whole quantity exported. Yet, whatever England gets, it is right that she should get it, and wholly and absolutely wrong that Germany should get it.

A Strange Anomaly.

"A strange anomaly appears between the Federal and Provincial Governments, in relation to this metal. The Legislature of Ontario, following its wise practice as to the export of saw logs, wants its nickel to be refined in Ontario, and so by statute (R.S.O. cap. 33, taken from 7 Ed. VII, cap. 14, s. 1) offers a bonus of six cents a pound on fine metallic nickel oxide, to induce its refinement in the Province. The Parliament of Canada answers this by permitting the metal to be taken out of the Province without any restriction.

IVANKA CHRISTITCH

Servian soldiers will miss the ministrations of Ivanka Christitch, the "Florence Nightingale of the Balkans," for Ivanka has changed her Red Cross uniform for the habit of a nun. The Servian nurse is at Tyburn convent on "Tyburn hill" in London, preparing for her consecration as a nun. She will be known as Sister Elizabeth, but as she is entering a cloistered order she will devote her time to teaching rather than nursing.

attack on the line of the Vosges was not inconsiderable, and that weak points might be found between Belfort and Verdun. But this view, is now held in only a modified degree, for it is considered that that best chance of making the frontal attack a success will be by exercising a disconcerting and menacing offensive movement through the comparatively open country between Verdun and Sedan. All the French plans being based on the concentration of the national forces at Neufchateau, behind Toul, one of the objects of the German strategists has been to seek a line to attack which would evade that base of concentration, render it inapplicable to the situation created by their strategy, and embarass the French to devise another in time.

With this end in view the Germans have for the last fifteen years been making the necessary preparations to secure that broadened front for their advance which is essential for the accomplishment of their purpose, and these preparations are now practically completed. The line of the Vosges is not merely exceedingly formidable as a fortified position, but it is also exceedingly narrow. From Belfort to Verdun, the two extremities, is no more than 145 miles, and although Belfort might be turned by the violation of Swiss territory, the invading army could only operate against Lyons, which would take time, and exercise little or no influence on the first phase of the war. It is not safe to assume anything too positive in a problem which must become modified by fresh factors from time to time, but unless Austria can be induced to carry on offensive movement through Porrentruy (a town in Switzerland, near Basle) and the Rhone Valley, Germany will stand on the defensive in South Alsace

Nothing Known So Sure For Throat Weakness, Bronchial Trouble, &c.

No doctor attempts to-day to cure a genuine case of catarrh or bronchitis except by the inhalation method. Stomach dosing has been discarded because useless medicine so taken effects only the stomach—never reaches the seat of catarrh.

The advanced physician recognizes that only air can be sent into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Fill this air with healing medicaments and you solve the problem. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. It contains the richest pine-balsams and the greatest healers known.

One breath of Catarrhozone instantly circulated over the area that is afflicted with catarrh. Relief is instant—suffering stops at once—germs are destroyed—every taint of disease is removed. Think it over seriously. Here is a remedy that clears the throat, relieves hoarseness, coughing and bad breath. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, inflamed bronchial tubes are healed, throat and voice are strengthened.

Catarrhozone is pleasant and certain. You breath Catarrhozone—you don't take it. Large $1.00 size is guaranteed; smaller size 50c, and trial size 25c, at all dealers everywhere.

Who Knows Ada Peacock

Chief Thompson has received a letter from T. Foster, of 62 William street, Hamilton, enquiring as to the whereabouts of Ada Peacock, of Lancashire, England. The young lady, who is said to be between 20 and 30 years of age, last wrote her mother from Peterboro in April, 1913, but has not been heard of since that date.

When the Auto Died.

Mr. Frank Montgomery's horses, Ora Medium and Jimmy Direct, raced yesterday at Campbellford. At 8 o'clock in the morning Mr. Montgomery and a party of friends started in the former's car for that village. When the car reached the C.P. R. station, it gave a sob and a sigh and lost its energy. The party took a railway car and proceeded on their way. The car was dragged to Wilson's garage.

Illicit Drinking.

County Police Magistrate F. D. Moore, held a session of the County Police Court in Lorneville on Monday when a party was fined $30.00 and costs for being drunk in a local option district. A proprietor of a livery stable was charged with having a quantity of liquor on his property. Judgment in this case was reserved until Friday. A third party who is charged with being drunk in a local option district, was not served. It it expected that he will come to Lindsay and plead guilty.—Lindsay Post.

Yesterday's Police Court.

At yesterday's police court Bruce Kennedy was fined $2 for having had too heavy a fall from the water wagon. Paul Godfrey when asked "Were you drunk yesterday?" replied, "I was certainly good and drunk." He paid $2 cash for his indiscretion, and departed smiling. He held the chief for some minutes demanding the change for a $5 bill out of a $2 bill he had handed over. The Chief remarked, "I don't think you are quite sober yet!"

A Local Hague Tribunal.

At yesterday's police court a local man was charged with assaulting his wife. It seems the trouble started by a neighbor sending the husband a letter. The wife, in the witness box, said her husband had scratched her face which showed evident results of some kind of accident. The wife, who works in a laundry, said all she wanted was peace in the house. The magistrate remarked to the witness, "Your husband has said he is sorry. What good would it do if I fine your husband?" "No good," she replied. "I'd have to pay the fine." The two left the court on friendly terms.

A Wages Case.

At yesterday's police court Walter Cowan was charged with non-payment of $15 wages due to a man named Vincent. Vincent, in the box, showed a contract signed by defendant. Complainant, is a photographer. He said he had been dismissed at a moment's notice. He demanded, under the contract, a week's notice as he had come from Toronto to work for Cowan. The only reason Mr. Cowan dismissed him was that he could not afford to pay him.

Mr. Cowan, in the box, said he had given complainant notice a week before the latter quit. The complainant's case was dismissed. Mr. Widdifield acted for the defendant.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy, after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Syrup Company."

OBITUARY

LEWIS McDONNELL

The death occurred yesterday morning of Lewis McDonnell, a well known resident of Otonabee. He is survived by his wife and family, John Annie, Vincent, Mary, Kathleen, Theresa, Michael, Agnes and Daniel.

The deceased was born in Smithtown 65 years ago, and has resided in Otonabee 24 years.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Joseph's Church, Douro.

MRS. WM. DUMMITT

The death occurred yesterday morning of Mrs. Wm. Dummitt, of North Monaghan after an illness of two weeks. The deceased was well known in the community. Before coming to Peterboro' she resided in Bobcaygeon.

Besides her husband and four small children she leaves a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graham, a sister, Mrs. Payne, three brothers, George, William and Meldum, all of Bobcaygeon, and a sister, Mrs. Hunter, of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence, to the Little Lake cemetery.

FEMALE DOPE FIEND TRIED HERE YESTERDAY

At yesterday's police court, in the afternoon, Mrs. Leavis and a man named Nelson were charged with keeping a disorderly house on Brock St. Mrs. Leavis was almost in a moribund condition. She is a morphine, laudnum and sulphate of atropia fiend. Her arms and body show evident signs of using a hypodermic and were covered with abscesses. The first witness called was Mrs. Alice Butcher, star witness in the case tried just before, against John Godfrey, first gave evidence. Mrs. Leavis is said to have used four tablets of sulphate of atropia just before the trial began. Witness said she has resided at Mrs. Leavis' and her evidence clearly showed the bad character of the house. A woman named Mrs. Green said she went to work for Nelson. She gave evidence showing the immoral character of the house. The case was continued until six o'clock. Judgment will be given at 2 p.m. to-day. The Matron, Mrs. McElhenny, whose good work in the cause of fallen humanity is well known, ably supported the half fainting female prisoner.

GODFREY IS REMANDED AT YESTERDAY'S COURT

At yesterday's police court John Godfrey was charged with having "procured" (under Section 216 of the Criminal Code) a girl for immoral purposes. Mr. Widdifield acted for the prisoner, and Mr. Wearing for the Crown. Mr. Wearing asked that the Court be cleared. The Magistrate remarked substantially that it would not hurt the audience to hear the evidence and he did not approve of secret sessions.

Alice Butcher, first witness, said she came here from Liverpool 7 years ago and is married. Her husband left her two months ago. Margaret Tucker and she had since then had a room. She went to work for Godfrey, as housekeeper. Godfrey's wife had left him. Witness said she and Godfrey had lived as man and wife. One night witness had her goods packed to leave Godfrey's and then Margaret Tucker arrived. Margaret asked Godfrey to let Mrs. Butcher stay for two weeks. The case was adjourned until 2 p.m. Margaret Tucker, in the witness box said prisoner had on several occasions made improper proposals. She refused and prisoner told her he would have no woman in the house that was not "complaisant." Her story as well as that of the former witness was simply a story of man's wickedness and woman's frailty.

The prisoner, in the box, referring to the evidence given by the two women, remarked "They must have been dreaming!" Here Mrs. Butcher exclaimed, "I dream, but not in the day time!" Judgment was reserved until 2 p.m. to-day.

CANADA HOLDS TRUMP CARD

"The question is what has brought this about. The answer is 'Nickel.'

French and Canadian Mines.

"France and Canada own the only two nickel deposits in the world which pay to work—the former nation owning the Caledonian Mines, and Canada the Sudbury Mines. It is needless to say that France now will not permit Germany to get an ounce of nickel from Caledonia. Why should not Canada, as part of the British Empire, in like manner, deprive Germany of the Sudbury nickel and thus help old England in maintaining her supremacy over the common enemy? Now, how is this to be done? The answer is, Let Canada do that which by statue in 1896, she declared her right to do, and her readiness to do, by proclamation, viz: put an export duty on nickel, so as to compel its refinement in Canada by the International Nickel Company, which practically controls Canada's nickel mines, and whose net profits from our raw material for the year ending March 31, 1914, were $4,792,664.75, whereby they paid to their stockholders a dividend of six per cent. on the preferred stock, and six per cent. on the common stock.

"As matters stand to-day, our raw material goes to Bethlehem, N. J., and if the Quebec arsenal wants an ounce of nickel it must go there for it. Canada, of course, cannot control the sale of the refined article from the refineries of the United States, and thus Germany gets our nickel from them to build their ships to sink our 'Cressys' and 'Aboukirs' and 'Hawkes,' with the fearful loss of 1500 lives, in the twinkling of an eye—and we never raise a finger to prevent it. I do not maintain that Great Britain gets no nickel from the same source. She probably does, but it is right that Germany should. Nor do I overlook the fact that England gets nickel from the Victoria Mines (owned by Sir Alfred Mond, M.P.) in the Sudbury district, but the export from that mine is about one-sixth of the whole quantity exported. Yet, whatever England gets, it is right that she should get it, and wholly and absolutely wrong that Germany should get it.

A Strange Anomaly.

"A strange anomaly appears between the Federal and Provincial Governments, in relation to this metal. The Legislature of Ontario, following its wise practice as to the export of saw logs, wants its nickel to be refined in Ontario, and so by statute (R.W.O. cap. 33, taken from 7 Ed. VII, cap. 14, s. 1) offers a bonus of six cents a pound on free metallic nickel oxide, to induce its refinement in the Province. The Parliament of Canada answers this by permitting the metal to be taken out of the Province without any restriction.

Allies Still Advancing on Both the Enemy's Flanks
Both Paris and London Optimistic for Big Victory
German Fleet Repulsed by Russians in the Baltic

ALL THE BRILLIANT STRATEGY OF VON KLUK HAS FAILED SO FAR

Germans Nearly Broke Through Allies' Lines Once, But After Two Days Enormous Sacrifice of Life Were Forced to Retire, Giving Up Valuable Positions--Events Are Shaping Themselves for Repetition of Battle of the Marne

The screen of secrecy erected by the censorship almost entirely across northern France, and behind which military craftsmen for the past three weeks have been, figuratively speaking, fashioning the rough outlines of a new map of the eastern hemisphere, stands to-day almost unimpaired. It has, however, judging from indications in London, been pierced here and there with holes, which permit some inking of the events happening on the stage behind it.

From what can be deducted from these fragmentary glimpses there would appear to be justification, in the opinion of British observers, for the confident, even seemingly inspired, optimism on the part of the allies. This describes events as shaping themselves for a repitition of history as it was written on the River Marne when the allied forces sent the Germans back on their tracks.

All the brilliantly skillful tactics employed by General Non Kluck, the commander of the German right wing, to counter or break through the band of bayonets constantly reaching northward beyond his extreme right, have thus far failed.

These efforts, however, have by no means ceased, and the German general staff, it is felt in London, probably will risk something elsewhere in order to reinforce this wing before the eng of the chapter is written. Heretofore reinforcements have been met by reinforcements in this critical quarter of the battlefield.

GERMANS NEARLY BROKE THROUGH.

The Germans nearly got through the allied ring near Albert, to the north-east of Amiens, but after two days of fierce struggle for the mastery they failed. These incessant assaults on the part of the Germans, have, according to the allied commanders, whose reports are augmented by statements from independent sources, cost the assailants such appalling losses in men that, even allowing for reinforcements, their ranks must have been materially weakened.

The announcement from France of the recreation of the post of Marshal of France, coming simultaneously with the report of Gen. Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French forces, of the satisfactory condition along the entire battle line, has been hailed by the allies as peculiarly significant.

In the western field the German navy is showing increased activity on the Baltic coast. It is in readiness to support German land forces if they succeed in forcing the passage of the River Eiemen.

In the meanwhile there has come to London news that within a week a new Russian army a million strong will join the present armies in Poland and Galicia for "Russia's principal attack on Germany."

JAPANESE AND GERMANS FIGHTING A BIG BATTLE NEAR TSING-TAU

German Warships Cannonaded Jap's Position With Little Result--German Destroyer Was Sunk by Japanese Siege Guns--Japanese Lose 1000 Killed and 800 Wounded In Action

Tokio, Oct. 1.—The Japanese War Office announced late this afternoon that a Japanese mine sweeper off Kia-Chow was blown up and sunk. Three men were killed and thirteen others were wounded. Another Japanese mine sweeper was damaged, one man being killed and six injured.

A third Japanese vessel, the supply ship Wakamiya Maru, was damaged. One man on board was killed and six were injured.

The name of the mine sweeper which went down was the Nagato Maru.

"A severe engagement has been opened by the German warships, which cannonaded the Japanese positions near Tsing-Tau, the seat of the Govern ent of Kia-Chow, the German leased territory in China. Two officers were killed. German aeroplanes assisted the warships."

The German War Office announced that the artillery duel at Tsing-Tau continued. A German torpedo boat sank in the harbor on Wednesday. Apparently this ship was not in action. From other sources it was stated the destroyer was sunk by Japanese siege guns.

Say Japanese Lost 2,500.

Pekin, Oct. 1.—A German report from Tsing-Tau, the fortified position of the Kiao-Chow territory, sent by carrier pigeon to Tsi-Nan in Shan-Tung Province, and thence to Pekin by telegraph indicates that the German retirement from the second line of defences around Tsing-Tau, which took place last Monday, was due to the overwhelming numerical strength of the Japanese.

Continuing this report says that the Japanese losses were 1,000 killed and 800 wounded, a result from the fire from German warships coupled with the fire of machine guns on the land. The German losses are described as small.

Germans Destroyed Bridge.

At the German legation in Pekin, it was said today, that Germans caused the destruction early this week of the railroad bridge at Ta-Yu-Ho, six miles west of Wei-hsien and that they will cause other bridges to be dynamited if the Japanese continue to Tsing-Tau, when a further defense of that place becomes possible. The Japanese legation today expressed the belief that the troops now attacking Tsing-Tau would await the arrival of siege guns.

MISS LEAVIS GIVEN A YEAR IN THE MERCER

Yesterday afternoon, the adjourned case against Mrs. Leavis and the man Nelson was continued. A local doctor, in the witness box, said he lived opposite the premises occupied by Mrs. Leavis, and the man named Nelson. The house had a bad reputation. The man Nelson always seemed to be at the house in question.

Mrs. Tinnie Butcher, in the box, said she had lived in a house on Patterson Street owned by Mrs. Leavis. Nelson had sometimes collected the rent. Nelson and Mrs. Leavis invited her to the Brock street house telling her "there were some fellows there." She went at once. She told a sad story of immorality. Nelson seems to have run the house. She had met "Smoky Jim" McDonald at the house

P. C. Dainard said he was called to the Leavis house one night at 11.20. The trouble was that Mrs. Leavis wanted a "shot" of cocaine. Nelson ordered witness out of the house. Mr. Widdifield acting for Nelson discredited evidence of the three women. Mrs. Green, Miss Tucker and Mrs. Alice Butcher. In the case of John Godfrey charged with 'procuring' in the case of Mrs. Alice Butcher, Mr. Widdifield spoke for the defense. Another charge was laid against Godfrey of keeping a disorderly house. Judgment was reserved until this morning on all three charges.

Later—Mrs. Leavis was sent to the Mercer Institute for one year. Mr. Wearing remarked that Mrs. Leavis could not be shut off her dope at once. The Magistrate remarked, the doctors there wouldn't let her die. Mr. Widdifield claimed as she had been tried similarly six months was the limit

PARIS ANNOUNCES PROGRESS IN ITALY DEMANDS $1,000,000

There has been no modification in the general situation, We have, nevertheless, made progress on our left, to the North of the Somme, and on our right, in the southern Woevre district.

Italy Demands $1,000,000.

Rome, Italy, Oct. 1.—The Austrian Government has replied to the Italian protest against the floating mines in the Adriatic Sea. Austria deplores the sinking of Italian vessels and promises to take measures to remove the menace to shipping and to indemnity fully the families of the victims. It is reported that Italy demands an indemnity from Austria of $1,000,000.

London, Oct. 1.—It is officially announced today that 70,000 Hindu troops were landed in France last Friday.

POLICE PROBE BIG JEWEL LOSS

Boston, Oct. 1.—Diamonds and other jewels, conservatively valued at between $15,000 and $18,000 were lost by one or more women who arrived on the Canopic.

Police officials began a quiet but thorough investigation of the loss—not yet admitted to have been a theft—soon did it become known that the jewel case containing the valuables was missing.

The diamonds were missed when their owner reached her destination from the dock in an automobile. Whether the case was dropped by her in the vicinity of the Commonwealth Pier, or on the dock, is not yet known.

Inspector Harry Pierce of police headquarters was assigned to the case as soon as it was reported to Chief Inspector McGarr.

The victim or victims are believed to be women from out of town, who arrived on the Canopic and went to a Back Bay hotel for a brief stay before leaving for their homes. When their valuables were not recovered immediately they authorized a reward of $1000 for the return of the articles.

PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD MET LAST NIGHT

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Public Library Board was held in the Library last night at 8 p.m.

There were present Mr. Kenner, (Chairman), Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, F. Sollitt, W. G. Morrow and A. Mowat.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Mowat, Chairman of the Library Committee, reported that very few books had been purchased during the month of September, and owing to the fact that the appropriation for books was almost exhausted, the purchasing of books for the balance of the year will be curtailed in order that the appropriation for the year may not be overdrawn.

Mr. Hall read the report of the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of the following accounts'

Bell Telephone Co., $1.50; A. G. Dickson, $1.30; Otonabee Power Co., $11.49; J. H. Reid, 43.90; Arant and Thorpe, $7.00; Peterborough Examiner $4.00; The MacMillan Co., 74c.

Moved by Mr. Hall, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that the report be adopted. Carried.

Mr. Sollitt, on behalf of the Property Committee, reported that to improve the lighting of the enlarged Reference Room a new chandelier would be installed.

After discussing various matters in connection with the Library the meeting then adjourned.

GERMAN PLAN OF CAMPAIGN AS FORETOLD BY GEN. FRENCH

Continuing from yesterday's edition the probable German invasion of France, Sir John French in 1911 wrote:

In any case, there is no necessity for any overwhelming anxiety on the part of the French authorities with regard to what may happen South of Belfort. Here, if anywhere, the opening for an offensive movement seems more favourable to France than to Germany. For our present purpose, which is limited to the consideration of what is aimed at in the first two or three weeks of the war, the southern scene of conflict need not again be referred to.

The contracted front of the Vosges is almost as serious a disadvantage to the army acting on the offensive as the formidable character of its defence. The lines of possible advance for any considerable body of troops are also further diminished by considerable stretches of impossible country. For instance, any advance between Belfort and Epinal, speaking, as we are, only of large operations, would be out of the question. There are, indeed, only four lines of advance open to the Germans in this quarter. They are from Metz to Verdun (two roads, one via Conflans, and the other via Mars la Tour), through Pont a Mousson to Commercy, through Chateau Salins to Nancy and Toul, and from Strasburg to Luneville. The two last named are available for a combined attack on Toul and its system of dependent forts. The total frontage for the German advance between Verdun and Luneville is then no more than seventy miles. In this restricted space it would be impossible for the Germans to employ more than half a million men, and in the event of any reverse or breakdown in the execution of the plan of attack the Germans would find themselves exposed to heavy loss before they could get outside the range of the French fortress artillery.

Although the German authorities are not set on putting the efficiency of the Vosges forts to the test, and also of experimenting with some of their new theories for the capture of fortified places, it is to the widened front that they are mainly looking as the scene of their first victories. From Luneville to Verdun they have seventy miles of fortress, fort, and battery in front of them. From Verdun to Givet there are seventy-five miles of undefended country. Longwy and Montmedy do not count as fortresses. Givet-Charlemont and Mezieres, both on the Meuse, are more up to date, but from Verdun to Mezieres stretches open country with a frontage of fifty miles. This is Germany's objective.

When the French drew the line of the Vosges fortification at Verdun it was assumed that the undefended gap south of the frontiers of Belgium and the Grand Duchy (of Luxembourg) was too narrow to admit of any considerable German advance from Thionville, and that if it were undertaken a favourable opportunity would offer for their assuming the offensive under promising conditions It is not quite evident why the French authorities did so, but they seem to have assumed that Germany would respect Belgium neutrality. The German text books of twenty years ago encouraged this view by representing that Germany gained by Belgian neutrality. These passages have long been eliminated. They were made ridiculous by the elaborate preparations for taking the offensive through neutral territory from Dalheim to Treves.

Sir John French here outlined the probable invasion of France by the Germans by way of Belgium, exactly as it has occurred, and which is now familiar history. He concludes his now famous article as follows:

Violation of Belgium Neutrality Not Hostile.

In violating Belgian neutrality Germany would endeavour to convince the Belgian Government and people that she was not animated by an hostile spirit towards them, and there have been some indications that she flattered herself that her persuasive utterances would be accepted. General Hellebaut's statement must then have administered a considerable shock to the German strategists who have regarded Belgium as a "quantite negligeable." The fortified position of Liege, well held, with its lines of communication open to Namur and Antwerp, is a very awkward fact for the invader sweeping across the Ardennes for France. It would not perhaps count for a great deal if all went well at the front, but a retreating German army would be a very favourable mark for the resentment aroused in Belgium by the unprovoked invasion of that country.

As It Happened.

The completeness of the success of Germany's attack on the north east frontier of France would depend therefore on the fate of Liege. If it passed into their hands in the first few days of the war German strategists would have no anxiety about their right flank, and would press on on the the broad front from Givet to Thionville. We have dwelt more especially on the role of the troops marching across the Belgian Ardennes, one entire army corps in the first place to be increased to two as soon as the fate of Liege was decided. This would be the right wing of the army of invasion. But the left wing, moving through Treves' Thionville, and Luxembourg would be even more formidable. Its objective would be Stenay and Vouziers. The taking up of a strong position of the Aisne by the two armies moving through Belgium and the Grand Duchy would represent the successful achievement of the first stage in the German plan of campaign, against France.

It is not easy to see how a German success up to that point can be prevented, and it is to be hoped that France in a vain attempt to hinder what is practically inevitable may not squander her magnificent cavalry, which, if preserved intact, might in the second phase of the struggle turn the scale in her favour. To obtain her primary objectives, Germany is prepared to waste a large number of men. The cost of men will not prevent her straining every effort to attain her end. If the French pour over into Belgium to meet her halfway, they will be playing her game and equalising the chances of loss. An obstinate defence without risking too much in any pitched action north of the Rheims-Laon-La Fere line is clearly the best French strategy. Time would thus be gained for England to play her part, and the further German troops have got south of the Semois, the better our chance of striking at their rear. It will not be a bad thing for France's chances of

Hon. W. J. Hanna Declined To Accept Premiership

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Hon. W. J. Hanna has declined to accept the Premiership, and the office will go to Hon. W. H. Hearst.

Such is the sum and substance of the gossip at the Parliament Buildings today. The News learned from an authoritative source that the candidates had narrowed down to Hon. I. B. Lucas and Hon. W. H. Hearst. It is well understood that the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, is strongly favored by an influential element, who also consider that Mr. Lucas lacks to some extent the experience necessary for the position. The question will very probably be settled today, although the announcement may be delayed longer.

Col. the Hon. J. S. Hendrie has not yet been sworn in as Lieutenant-Governor, but this formality may take place at any moment.

ALLIE'S STILL PRESS BACK BOTH WINGS OF THE GERMAN ARMY

Continued Successes North of Somme and on the Woevre Region--French War Office Will Not Commit Itself, But Paris is Confident of Victory--Germans Forced to Fight in Desperation--War Office Admits Enemy is Returning at Several Points

London, Oct. 1.—The following communication was given out at Paris this afternoon :

"There has been no modification in the general situation. We have, nevertheless, made progress on our left, to the north of the Somme, and on our right, in the southern Woevre district."

PARIS IS CONFIDENT.

Supreme confidence prevailed at Paris military headquarters to-day, according to advices received here. The battle of the Aisne is already claimed as a sweeping French victory. There was no disguising the jubilation among the members of Gen. Gallieni's staff. But there is still no deviation in the official communique, which brusquely declares "there is no change."

The same announcement states "the French left progresses north of the Somme and we also make progress in the Woevre region." In explanation of this, however, it is pointed out that the French War Office has already announced that it will not be put in the position of making premature announcement of victories.

"Not until we are actually holding the entire German line will we officially claim a complete victory," declared one of the highest officials on duty in Paris to the assembled newspaper reporters this afternoon. "Personally," we are confident. We know that the Germans are retiring, very rapidly at some points, and that they have been forced to fight with desperation to prevent their extreme right being completely routed. But that does not yet justify an official claim of a sweeping victory.

"So long as the Germans hold the lines along the Aisne and their centre remains unchanged, so long will there be danger that they may yet turn the tables. But every day of our successes at both ends of the long battle line means much and unless I am greatly surprised you will see an entirely new alignment by the first days of next week."

This statement, coupled with Gen. Gallieni's cryptic utterances of last Friday that the side able to throw fresh troops into the field would win, for that is already the way in which even the reserved French military experts are now designating the present situation, was actually won by England's fresh levies. Certain of her territorial forces are also reported in action, and it was probable this later force that turned the tide on the extreme French left, north of Noyon.

FRENCH WIPED OUT STAIN LEFT ON THEIR ARMS IN BATTLE OF SEDAN

At Sedan They Gave Germans One of Their Most Disastrous Defeats in Present War--Set a Trap for the Enemy, and Annihilated Whole Battalions--Would Have Held The Positions Had They Not Been Ordered to Retire

London, Oct. 1.—During the strategic retreat of the allies southward from the Belgian frontier, the French troops exacted from the Germans bloody revenge for the French defeat at Sedan 44 years before. On this same battlefield, according to the Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail, the Germans suffered one of the worst defeats of their present invasion. They were led in a trap which cost them thousands of men, he says. The French could have held their position indefinitely, but strategy required them to continue falling back with the remainder of the allies along the line. Here is the story of the second battle of Sedan, as told by the correspondent '

French Ruse Succeeded.

"The French general ordered his troops to fall back across the river and take up positions on the opposite heights. The bridges were mined, but were left standing in order to deceive the Germans into thinking that the French were retreating hastily. The ruse succeeded. The Germans advanced across the bridges in close formation. When several German regiments had crossed the French blew up the bridges and the French artillery started firing at the huddled German columns which retreated hastily to the river only to find the bridges gone."

"The French regiments then advanced with quick firers and the merciless slaying continued until dusk. Many attempted to swim the river, and large numbers were drowned. When Germans threw down their arms and nightfall came the French brought up searchlights and continued the work of carnage.

French Loss a Handful.

The artillery threw shells at the rate of a dozen rounds a minute into the German ranks, and varied its tactics by throwing incendiary shells into the forest, where part of the German force had taken refuge. The burning woods lit up the whole front of fifteen miles.

"In the morning an armistice of 2 hours was granted to allow the Germans to bury their dead. The French had suffered the loss of only one handful."

Russian Fort in Baltic Drives Off German Fleet

Paris, Oct. 1.—A Petrograd special to the Havas agency, dated Sept. 30, says: "The details of the naval engagement which occurred Sept. 24th, off the coast of Windau, a Russian seaport in Courland, on the Baltic, have been made public. It appears that a German squadron, comprising forty ships of all classes, appeared off the harbor and were prevented from landing forces by the heavy fire from the forts. One officer and two sailors were killed and three more drowned.

"The ships withdrew, but on the day following two cruisers returned, opened fire and destroyed the lighthouse. They killed a civilian and a number of soldiers, but were driven off again by the fire from the forts."

GARDEN MEDICINES

Every vegetable garden is a medicine chest full of remedies that are recognized by physicians as of considerable value in the treatment of various diseases.

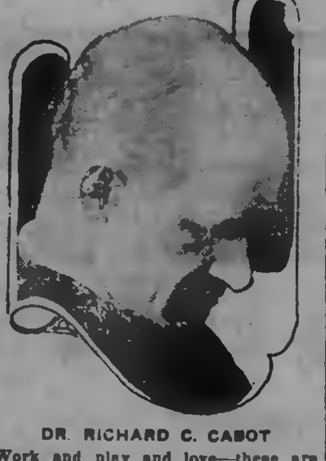
Onions, for example, contain sulphur oil, and are recommended for insomnia and as an aid to gastric digestion. They should have a prominent place in the diet of sufferers from rheumatism, for they help to allay the pains.

Turnips and parsnips both have peculiar oily principles which are of value as an aperient and diuretic. It is also claimed that they are good for coughs and hoarseness.

Carrots are useful for correcting derangements of the liver. They are also excellent as a dressing for painful wounds and swellings.

The tomato exercises medicinal effects which are not completely explained by the presence of alkaline salts. There is a principle present which, when taken in a concentrated state, produces salivation and a free stimulation of the liver.

The Needs of Life



DR. RICHARD C. CABOT

Work and play and love—these are the triple keys to the secret of life. This is the conclusion of Professor Cabot of Harvard in his book, "What Men Live By." "With these any life is happy, despite sorrow and pain, successful despite bitter failure," is his creed.

Freaks of Lightning

The antics played by lightning are sometimes almost beyond belief. A comparatively common trick is that of undressing its victims. In 1898 two girls and an elderly woman were standing by a reaping machine during a storm. A lightning flash struck the woman and killed her on the spot, while the two girls were stripped to the skin, even their boots being torn from their feet. Otherwise they were safe and sound—and astonished.

In 1855 a man was struck by lightning near Vallerois, in France, and stripped naked. All that could be found of his clothes was a shirt sleeve, a few other shreds, and some pieces of his hob-nailed boots. Ten minutes after he was struck he regained consciousness, opened his eyes, complained of the cold, and inquired how he happened to be naked.

Such instances have been recorded again and again. In one case a man and two oxen were struck simultaneously and all three killed. The man was found stripped to the skin, and his boots had been carried thirty yards away. "In other cases," says Camille Flammarion, the astronomer, "lightning has been known to split men in half, almost as with a huge axe. On June 20, 1868, this happened to a miller's assistant at a windmill near Croix. The lightning struck him and split him from his head downwards in two."

ENGLISH-CANADIANS

Rev. Dr. Gordon, Winnipeg, Preaches Sermon on "An Englishman in Canada"

Here are some excerpts from a recent sermon by Rev. Dr. J. L. Gordon, Winnipeg, on "An Englishman in Canada.":

"I am not surprised that an Englishman should be homesick in Western Canada. I would be surprised if he were not. Think of England with her cathedral towns, her classic villages, her sacred monuments, her beautiful hedgelined roads, her solid splendor, her quiet dignity, her peaceful atmosphere and her ten thousand historical associations. It will be a thousand years before we will have anything to compare with the beauty—the fascinating beauty of Dear Old England.

"Yet I know certain Englishmen and Englishwomen who think and affirm that Canada is one of the finest places in the world in which to live. I have in mind at this moment one family of English emigrants of fair intelligence, average ability and less than normal health, who in a few years have purchased for themselves a modest but very comfortable home, made generous contributions to the church and kindred institutions, and induced almost a score of their relatives to join them on this side of the sea. They believe in Canada because they have succeeded in Canada (and Canada is a good country to succeed in). The emigrant who fails in Canada was a failure at home. Canada is another word for success.

"Canada is a good country. Less liquor is sold in Canada than in any other country—thanks to the 'temperance crank.' Canada has the lowest death rate of any country in the world. There are fewer ignorant and illiterate people in Canada than in any other country. There are fewer paupers in Canada to the square mile than elsewhere. In Canada the working day is longer, the night brighter, the air more bracing, the social conditions more democratic and the prospects brighter than anywhere else on the North American continent. I believe in Canada!"

To cleanse wind shields on automobiles of snow and sleet a Washington man invented a rotary brush which is provided with power through a flexible shaft by a car's motor.

AN ECCENTRIC PLAYER

Recruit Catcher Had Queer Ideas and Had Trouble With Trunk

Most ball players have peculiarities of one kind or another. But it remained for a player named Evans, a former Cub catcher recruit, to have a number of them. On a spring training trip several years ago he had the boys wondering what he would do next. Evans was a confirmed pipe smoker. It was seldom out of his mouth. When the other men would be rehearsing on the ball field Evans would be sitting on the bench pulling at his pipe. One day Frank Chance, becoming irritated, ordered him to get behind the plate during batting practice.

The recruit lazily donned his shinguards and chest-protector. Then, keeping his short black pipe between his teeth, he caught for nearly fifteen minutes, puffing away in a most contented manner.

At Vicksburg, Miss., one day some of the Cubs noticed Evans dig up a little dirt near the plate, place something carefully in the hole and cover it up with exceeding care. He repeated this trick at every stop. Finally they discovered it was a signet ring. He chose this method of protecting it against loss or injury.

He also carried an old trunk along on the trip, bearing a large sign. The motto was, "Handle with care." In this he had nearly five quarts of beef, iron and wine for the purpose of building up his system. He had nearly as much dope as Trainer Semmons had for the entire team. This extract he took religiously three times a day.

One trip his trunk was badly smashed by the baggagemen and several of the bottles broken. It was exceedingly annoying but Evans insisted on lugging the affair along until Secretary Charley Williams objected.

"The railroads absolutely refuse to accept that trunk," said Williams.

So Evans had to purchase another. On this he placed a new sign. It read, "Handle with care, you smashed my last one."

GOLF HAS MANY THRILLS

Making a Hole in One Stroke Enough to Make Any Player Excited

It has been said that golf is not lively or exciting; that it presents few opportunities for either individuals or outsiders to enthuse; that it is too quiet, etc. While there are those ardent devotees of driver and cleek willing to admit that their favorite diversion is not wildly exciting; that opportunities rarely occur for partisan crowds to display their feelings, it is also claimed that golf unquestionably has its thrills.

For those having once experienced the sensation of making a hole in 1 it is needless to attempt to describe the feeling of exhilaration experienced by the lucky player as he sees his ball disappear in the cup. Many holes have been made in a single stroke that have always been more or less doubtful. Players have played over rising ground to blind greens and after searching for a considerable length of time have at last found "a ball" in the hole. On such occasions there is always an element of uncertainty.

Furthermore, jokes have been played on unsuspecting golfers, probably the most cruel one being that at the expense of a fat man and woman at a match several years ago. As a passerby stood near one of the greens of the course in question he noticed two balls, one after the other, land on the green in front of him. They had evidently come from the tee, which could not be seen from the green. Scarcely had the balls come to rest ere a couple of boys dashed from behind a clump of bushes, picked up the balls, dropped them in the hole, and scampered away as quickly as they had come. In a few moments the pair unsuspectingly came to the green and began looking for the balls. Finally the man casually beckoned his companion to see what he saw.

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "We have both holed out in one. Did you ever see anything like that?" Then they proceeded to rush to the club house to tell the wonderful tale, which undoubtedly they are still relating.

A Nautical Innovation

A novel feature of the Royal Holland Lloyd liner "Gelria" is the manner in which the name of the liner is displayed, either when passing stations or other ships or when lying in crowded harbors, says "Electricity."

The boat is fitted between the two funnels with an electric sign lantern 22 feet long by 5 feet deep, made of galvanized iron and bracing angles. The letters are fixed on both sides and are colored red on the port side and green on the starboard, with white enamelled lettering for use in the daytime. The lettering is illuminated by lamps aggregating 2,000 candle power.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

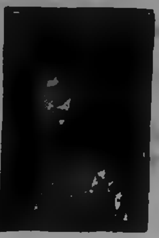
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 133

Shades and Sympathies.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

I MET my mother-in-law on the street next day and she cut me dead. I presently began to realize that I was expected to apologize to her for speaking plain truth and that there would be absolutely no peace in my home until I did.

My wife and I then entered upon a period of quietude, under which thunder was constantly rumbling with a menacing suggestion.

Whenever Mary spoke of her mother now it was with a lingering gentleness, as if that dear, patient martyr who had reared her had been greatly misunderstood. Whenever I was looking she'd cross over to the window, study her mother's windows intently and brighten wonderfully if that estimable lady happened to be in sight. Then they'd exchange hand-waves and Mary would sigh. To be honest, that fluttering wave of the hand began to get on my nerves.

"It looks so foolish," I insisted. "People will think you're crazy. Whenever you go near the window you begin that sickly little flutter of your hand."

"I want mother to know that I'm thinking of her," said Mary. "I don't see why you should object in the least to that."

As a matter of fact, the motive behind Mary's action was that she wanted her mother to know she was in perfect sympathy with her, and disapproved decidedly of me.

Finally we quarrelled about the hand-waving. And then it began surreptitiously. Mary would wander nonchalantly over to the window and seat herself in the window seat. Frequently, in glancing up, I would just detect the flutter of her hand finishing one of those fool waves. It said as plainly as day: "I'm here, mother, and I'm thinking of you—but Peter's here and of course I can't go over there, and you can't come over here until he apologizes."

For these were the terms my esteemed mother-in-law had made. Until such time as I should humble my pride and apologize to her for speaking the truth, she would not set foot within my door—"absolutely not," she had said. "Certainly one could not expect it," etc.

Finally, one night, catching Mary in a surreptitious hand-assurance of sympathy to her mother, who, it seemed to me, was most always hanging about the window of late, I arose and pulled down the shade.

Childish? I admit it. I am neither a saint nor a rational being any more. I'm getting nerves and I'm easily irritated.

Instantly Mary put the shade up again, with a jerk that sent it flying to the top. It was an act of rebellion [illegible] by the presence of my gloating mother-in-law in the opposite window.

I pulled the shade down again and held it.

"What in the world do you suppose people are thinking of us?" I demanded. "Banging a shade up and down and glaring at each other while your mother watches the show from her window! It's silly!"

"Who began it?" demanded my wife. "You pulled the shade down."

"You waved your hand again in that silly way," I said. "If you want to talk to your mother, go over and talk. I don't in the least mind being alone—but I do mind such sickly exhibitions of sentimentality as you've been indulging in lately."

But I'm learning that it isn't wise to fight your mother-in-law. Instantly you exalt her in your wife's mind to the plane of a martyr and after that everything in the world is hers. A man stands very little chance, anyway, of getting away with a dispute when his mother-in-law is the other disputant. "Mother," I'm learning, comes first, right or wrong.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going with a young man for a month, and he seems to be very nice. But when I ask him to come up to the house and call for me he always makes some excuse, and asks me to meet him at the corner.

Do you think it is right for me to meet him there? LONELY ONE.

DON'T be lonely, Lonely One, the world is full of jolly girls who would like you for a friend, and nice fellows who would like you, too, if they knew you.

Don't allow this very shrinking young man to take up too much of your time. If he doesn't care enough for you to come to your house after you, you'd better find some one who does.

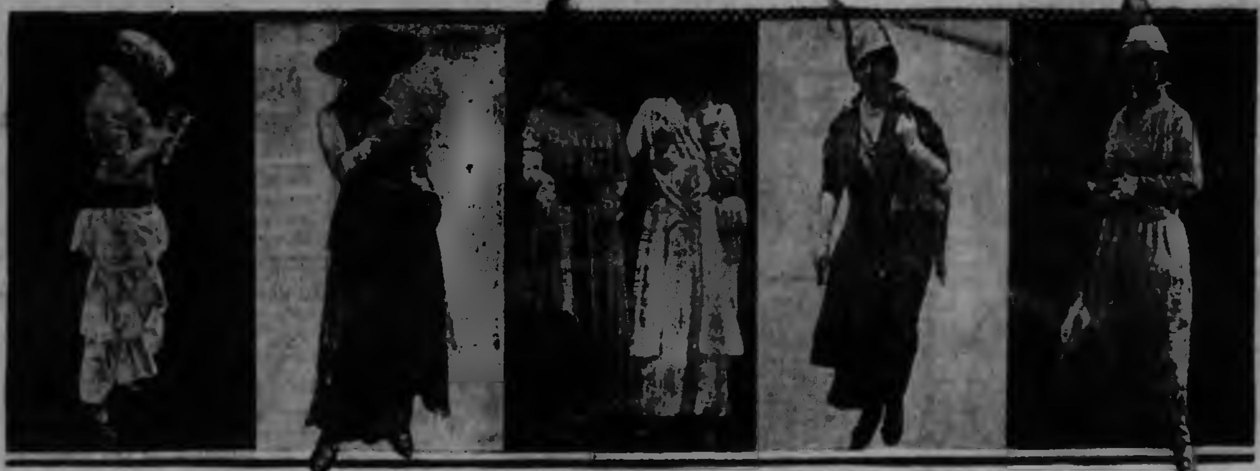
What's the matter with him—is he in disguise and afraid some one will see his face—or what?

Either make him come to the house after you or don't go with him at all.

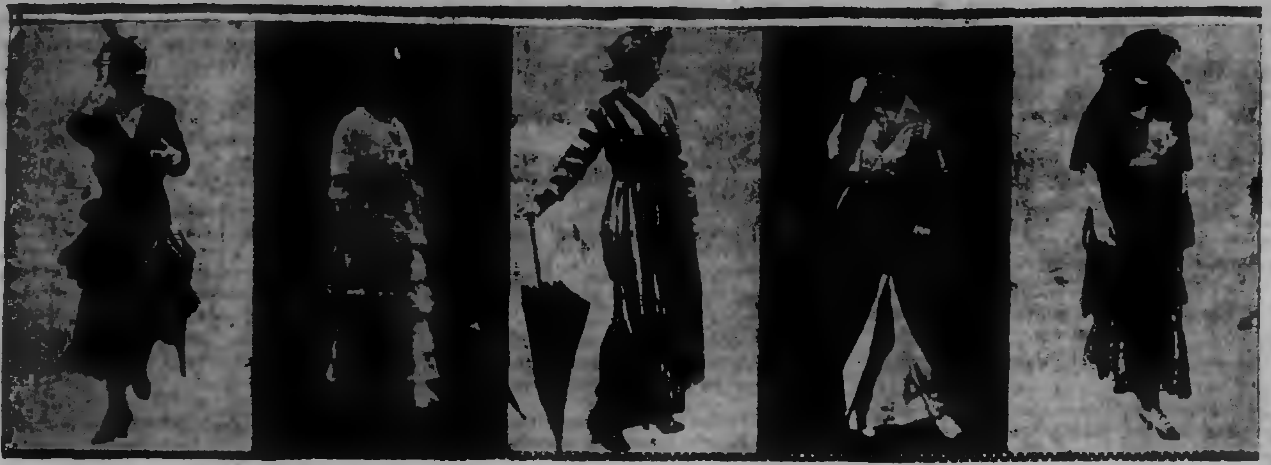
Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

PARIS' "BLACK AND WHITE" SEASON



These Pictures and Those in the Panel Below, Are from Snapshots Made in Paris, and Show the Great Popularity of Black and White in Feminine Costumes.



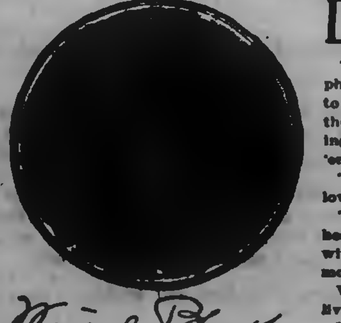
Snapshots That Show the Curious Rage for "Non-Colored" Clothes

THERE never was anything like it in Paris—this rage for black and white clothes. Whether Mlle. Forzane started it or not, the fact is undisputed that, with all the shades of the spectrum to pick from, those non-colors, black and white, have been more widely chosen than any others for the clothes that are worn this summer. Designs are various—they never were so various—but whether the goods are satin, chiffon, linen or include the diaphanous veilings that add the final touch to so many of the smartest costumes, black and white seem to get first choice among the more artistic exponents of the art of dressing. Stripes and checks naturally have a conspicuous place, but the all-white suit is exceedingly prominent, and many of the soft variations from the all-black designs look (with some delicate splash of flower color) like a half mourning, though vastly more "chic" than is commonly permitted in such effects.

It Is Not "Smart" to Be Delicate Now-a-Days

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

DR. LOUIS BROCQ of Paris, France, says that the new-fashioned woman is a failure.

"Women are fast deteriorating physically," says Dr. Brocq, "owing to the exaggerated efforts, principally the intellectual efforts, they are making toward what they call their 'emancipation.'

"Women are stoop-shouldered, hollow-chested, pale-faced and dull-eyed.

"Where is the beautiful, rosy, healthy girl of 20 years ago? Gone—with the old-fashioned ideas as to modesty and a demure deportment!"

Well, well, well—what a world we live in, to be sure.

I suppose the frog in the puddle, there by the roadside, thinks all the world is green—when the scum begins to show on the top of the waters of his existence.

It's some little time since I've been to Paris, so I can't tell about the French women. But there isn't the least trouble in the world to tell about the American women, and I'm going to do it right here and right now.

The American woman was never so clever, never so interesting, never so pretty, never so good-humored, never so happy—and never in such rude health as she is in this very year of our Lord nineteen fourteen.

She's broader shouldered, deeper chested, bigger footed and taller by an inch and a half than she ever was before. All this by actual measurement.

Did you happen to know, Dr. Louis Brocq of Paris, France, that the girl babies born in the public hospitals of America average an inch and a half more in length and a pound and a half more in weight than they did ten years ago?

Women Becoming Taller.

And has it been brought to your attention that the graduates of the girls' high school in any city in America where they keep statistics on such matters is taller by two inches than the average girl of ten years ago? And, let me whisper, have you heard the terrible news from those high schools besides?

Sh, I'll tell it to you.

The high school boys' average in height and in weight, and in general physical development is going down, and has been going down, slowly but very, very steadily, for the last ten years.

What does it mean? I wish I could tell you—I'd love to do it.

But don't let any French gentleman distract your attention with his strange, weird statements concerning the modern woman—as he knows her.

The modern woman is the most amazing creature this world has ever produced. Some of the things about her are not particularly pleasing—oh, come, let's face the truth—for once—but she isn't anemic and she isn't stoop-shouldered, and she isn't hollow-chested.

Compared to the woman her mother was at her age, she's a great, big, husky, wholesome, good-natured, loud-talking "How are you, Tom," and "Where did you come from, Bill," person, who eats like a hired man, sleeps out in the open air, and thinks nothing at all of a little stroll of 20 miles or so just for a constitutional.

It isn't fashionable to be lazy, it isn't "smart" to be delicate, it isn't the thing to die of a broken heart.

Age and Athletics.

I invited an old-fashioned relative of mine to visit me not long ago—a Sweet Girl from the back woods. She was just about twenty years behind the times, poor thing, and hadn't the faintest idea of it.

She wore a tight corset and high heeled shoes and a smothering veil. She didn't like to walk, she couldn't play golf—tennis tired her, and she was too timid to learn to swim.

I think she wanted to sit on the piazza and have somebody hold hands with her, but everybody was too busy—walking and motoring and canoeing and swimming and being generally about as active as a good, healthy, well-intentioned grasshopper on a June day.

Poor little cousin—she was a belle down home where she came from. It was hard on her—at first. But she had brains under all her blonde hair, and by the time she started home she was made over. I don't believe her own mother knew her when she met her at the station.

The woman of a generation ago always "had a headache" once a week, anyway, and the best aunt that ever lived in the world keeps telling me that she never went to a funeral or a wedding or a party in her young days without having somebody faint during the ceremony. She fainted herself, she says, when there was no one else to do it.

Aunty is a good bit over 60 now—she's taking tango lessons, and yesterday she joined a mountain walking club and is having a great time getting an Alpen-stock with a big enough spike in the end of it. She likes cliffs, and precipices and canyons and things.

Aunty has the fresh-air fad—now. She sleeps outdoors—the year round. If she'd tried to do it when she was a girl somebody would have locked her up in a sanatorium.

Tut, tut, Dr. Louis Brocq of Paris, France—come on over to America and let us show you a few modern women as they really are—and you'll change your mind. You'll have to—or stop being a clever, quick-witted Frenchman.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Cold Storage Fowls Should Be Bought Undrawn

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

FRANCIS BACON died a victim to the first scientific experiment in cold storage, if Lord Macaulay is to be believed. Nearly 300 years ago, in 1626, at the end of March, he was at Highgate. It was a snowy day. He left his coach to collect snow with which to stuff a fowl in order to observe the effect of cold on the preservation of its flesh.

A chill resulted and he was taken to Lord Arundel's house, where he died of pneumonia. His cold storage experiment was successful, but the patient died.

Some time later, in 1663, Samuel Pepys wrote in his diary that a fowl killed in December by Aldermen Barker, and put in a box under his sledge, was forgotten and left until April. When found it was frozen hard, fresh and sweet—and tasted as if it had just been killed.

The unearthing of animals such as dinosaurs, mammoths and other ancient creatures preserved in glaciers, and other eternally frozen regions, shows Nature's cold storage lesson to man.

The ancient Persians, Egyptians and Romans must have known how to make ice and to use cold storage, for they had dainties and delicacies from all the corners of the globe. In such torrid climates such victualary novelties would have been impossible unless refrigeration had been in use.

It is known that in 1664 iced drinks—a supposedly American, hygienic or antihygienic measure—were a common table necessity in France. Yet just two years ago the International Cold Storage Association opened a public subscription for Charles Tellier of Paris, who was then 84 years old, as the discoverer of refrigeration.

At the present time there are more than $2,000,000,000 worth of food stuffs placed each year in cold storage. One-half of this is meat and fowl. Products that were perishable in days a-gone, which caused Joseph to build granaries in ancient Egypt to avoid lean years, are now guarded by science in appropriate refrigerators.

With the change from the theory of bacteriology to the proved science of bacteriology, it was learned that decay in foods is always due to microbes. These tiny creatures are held in sterile abeyance at icy temperatures.

Since preservatives and the destruction germs of heat often injure the commissariat, as much as they head off decomposition, it is obvious that frigid temperatures are more to be desired than the other methods.

Unluckily, even cold storage, like an iced mint julep, has its felonies and misdemeanors, its dangers and drawbacks.

The water in the tissues evaporates, and the material shrivels. The fat under the influence of light, air and oxygen is, after some months, burned into acids. Furthermore, the few non-growing bacteria still present effect a few changes in the frozen foodstuffs.

Any victuals not fresh placed in cold storage will necessarily be bad when removed.

No "drawn" poultry should be purchased if previously kept thus. Poultry can only be hygienically stored undrawn.

Foods that come from cold storage decompose more rapidly than fresh foods. This is due to the fact that the "physique" and make-up of the refrigerated ration has been so changed by freezing that it is more accessible to bacterial invasion.

The weekly use of meat as an edible in Greater New York is about 100,000,000 pounds. Yet there are only about 2,000,000 pounds kept in that neighborhood in cold storage.

What may happen some day during a tragic cyclone, a shipping disaster or other cataclysm if cold storage facilities are not augmented, may well be left to the imagination.

Answers to Health Questions

G. M. A.—1—Have had cold in head all winter. What will cure it? 2—Have flat feet. What will help me?

1—Expose yourself more to the air. Sleep in the open, if possible. Have large tonsils removed. 2—Exercise on the toes and side of feet. Wear arches in the shoes, but wear soft ones.

R. D. R.—Have varicose veins on one leg which bother me, also a dull ache in the middle of my leg, inside, which does not seem to be in the bone. Is an elastic stocking the only remedy for varicose veins? Is cold water good? Is the other trouble from internal vein?

Varicose veins are now stitched up very easily. Elastic stockings are make-shifts. So are most other temporary reliefs.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

Apple and Tomato Jam.

Wipe five pounds of apples with a clean damp cloth, and cut them into quarters. Do not peel them. Put them in a preserving pan, and barely cover with cold water. Simmer until they are quite soft, and strain through cheese muslin.

Put some tomatoes into boiling water for one minute, and then take them out and skin them. Slice them thinly. Add the sliced tomatoes to the apple liquid, and weigh. To every pound of liquid and tomatoes put a pound of preserving sugar. Then color with a little cochineal. Simmer until a little of the jam put on a saucer gets firm. Pot while hot.

Banana Jam.

Slice up a dozen large bananas. To every pound of the fruit allow three-quarters of a pound of preserving sugar. Take the juice and pulp of five lemons, and add them to the bananas and sugar. Add a little water. Then chop up half an ounce of preserved ginger and add. Simmer very slowly for 50 minutes.

Date Jam.

Buy the dates by the pound. Remove the stones from three pounds and put the fruit in your preserving pan. Add about three breakfastcupfuls of water. Let the fruit just get hot, and then add a pound and a quarter of preserving sugar, a sprinkling of ground cinnamon and a teaspoonful of fresh butter. Stir until the jam begins to thicken, and pot while steaming hot.

Three Minute Journeys

Where the Women Wear Trousers

By TEMPLE MANNING

IN the mountains of Switzerland, near the village of Champery, some years ago I saw the strange sight of women working in the fields dressed in men's trousers. At a distance I thought that they were men, but when I approached and asked a question I discovered my mistake. And yet, with the exception of their hats, which were a sort of long toga hanging down their backs, their costumes were identical to those worn by their brothers.

This curious custom interested me so much that I diligently tried to discover the origin of it, but all I could get in answer to my questioning was this reply: "We have always done this, our ancestors always did it. We like the field work, and our men like the house." True enough, when I went down to the village I found the big sturdy men calmly smoking their pipes as they busied themselves with the babies or cooking dinner.

So many tourists have gone to Champery in recent years that the village elders have passed a law that no woman shall wear her trousers in the village streets, therefore the women hide their skirts by the roadside when they go out into the fields, and don them again on their way back. They seem to like the work in the open, singing as they pile the hay, or knitting as they tend the sheep and goats. But it is a curious thing that wearing trousers does not cause them to discard any of the motions that are peculiarly feminine when they climb a fence. Instead of vaulting over the fence, or stepping over, they invariably climb to the top rail and slide down woman fashion.

From earliest childhood these women of Champery are accustomed to the wearing of trousers, and they do not even discard them upon their wedding day, as I was fortunate enough to see. Coming down the road was a bridal procession, and I could not at a distance tell which was the bride and which was the groom. The bride was dressed white trousers, a white bodice, and wore a bunch of white violets in her hair. And yet she was as shy and blushing as any bride I have ever seen.

A Champery Shepherdess.

ENEMY OUTFLANKED AT EXTREME POINTS

London Times Despatch Held Five Days by Censor—Lifts the Fog

London, Sept. 30.—The Times has received the following despatch from its Paris correspondent.

The message is dated September 25, and has been delayed by the censor.

It analyzes the positions in the battle of the Aisne, and the terrible fighting which took place in the valley of the Somme. The correspondent continuing says:

"Movements hitherto concealed or vaguely hinted at are now unveiled, and the frontal attack of the Allies Oise and the Argonne now sinks into [illegible] on the German position between the [illegible] the background. One thing is certain, and that is that the German armies are in a position of gravest danger. The Allies have succeeded in a masterly fashion in threatening both flanks of the enemy simultaneously and he is compelled to fight for his life. He may succeed in extricating his force intact, for he is still formidable in every way. To save himself, however, he can hardly maintain his centre upon his present position, and it looks as if he will unwillingly have to retire in order to withdraw himself from the grip of the Allies' claws. If he is unable to do this he is beaten, and it will only be the wreck of his forces which will then reach the German frontier."

Yesterday was the Jewish "Day of Atonement," and it was fittingly observed by the local Hebrew colony.

Unrivalled enthusiasm was shown at the Armouries when at the weekly drill of the 57th Regiment forty-six recruits were added to the ranks.

FOUR NAMES FOR ONTARIO PREMIER

Hon. Messrs. Hanna, Lucas, Hearst and Cochrane are Mentioned

Toronto, Sept. 30.—"Who is going to be the next Premier of Ontario?" is the big question, and coupled with it is the query, "Will there be a party caucus?"

That there will be a caucus to select a leader is highly improbable. It looks as though Hon. Dr. Pyne, the senior member of the Council, held the balance of power. Col. Hendrie will be sworn in as Lieutenant-Governor before the day is over, and then it will remain for the Minister of Education to suggest to His Honour the name of the man to lead the Government and the party.

There are four names mentioned for the position: Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon W. H. Hearst, Hon. I. B. Lucas and Hon. Frank Cochrane. There is a strong feeling that Hon. W. J. Hanna has done more in the public service than any other man in the Cabinet, and it is felt by many that he should be offered the leadership.

There is a feeling among some members that Hon. Frank Cochrane is not anxious to leave Ottawa. He would come to Toronto only if it seemed imperative in the interests of the party.

Invasion of England

Reports are frequently circulated that Germany will attempt the occupation of Antwerp, which part will, if the siege is successful, be used as a naval base for invasion of England. Antwerp would unquestionably make a valuable naval base for the Teuton, if he had any navy to operate therefrom. At present Germany's boasted fleet is in rather an embarassing position at Kiel, sheltering itself from attack by the British. As soon as Antwerp is occupied by the Germans, the British fleet would welcome any attempt of the German fleet to emerge from the Kiel and steam for their new base in Belgium. Until such time as the enemy defeats the British fleets to a finish any invasion of the British Isles is merely an idle dream, and nothing more. As for boasted attacks by air craft, to couple such operations with the term "invasion" is ridiculous, and needs no comment. Zeppelins could probably be annoying and do some damage, but would most likely meet with disaster themselves. Britain is prepared to counter-attack such operations, both from land and in the air.

Turkey and the War

The possible entry of Turkey into the world-war is likely to cause a certain amount of uneasiness in the ranks of the amateur strategists, says a contemporary. It is not so much because of any harm the Sick Man of Europe may do to the allied forces, for the Balkan States will be only too pleased to have another fling at him, and besides there are two things he must do before Europe will take him seriously. He must learn to organize and feed his men better, and he must "fire" his German instructors.

The uneasiness of the amateur strategists springs from quite another cause. The entry of Turkey into any war naturally raises the possibility of her complete defeat, and that again raises the question of disposal of Constantinople and the Dardanelles, which are important points of vantage. The wily Ottoman knows perfectly well that he is only tolerated in Europe because his enemies cannot agree as to the disposal of his heritage.

The city of Constantinople dates back at least two thousand five hundred years. It was founded by the Greek sailor Byzas, and bore his name for a thousand years, as Byzantium. After that it was held by the Persians and later by the Romans. It was Constantine the Great who first recognized the supreme importance of this site, for the Roman Empire was growing in the East and Rome was no longer the best centre for its activities. And so Byzantium became Constantinople. The Crusaders captured it in 1204 and the Turks succeeded them in 1452.

Few will deny its strategic importance in those days, but its value is [illegible] discounted to-day. Some of our pessimists are already saying that the close of this war will be merely a prelude to a tremendous struggle for the spoils of victory. That of course is quite unlikely because this war will give the Powers all they want in the way of fighting for a good many years to come.

The idea is that sooner or later Russia will attempt to seize this bottleneck of the Black Sea, which is certainly more vital to her than to any of the other powers except possibly Roumania. It may be the Powers will agree to dismantle the forts and dynamite both the Bosphorus and the Dardenelles to widen them, and thus give to all the nations a free passage between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean. If that were done the City of Constantinople would lose its fictitious importance and another of the danger spots of the world would be removed.

Our Point of View

A reader answers the question, what does Bourassa stand for? by answering nothing; he is a grandstander.

—o—

Essex will raise a French Canadian regiment of 1,000 men for the war. These Ontario chumps will not take Bourassa's advice on the school question.

—o—

The difference between Gen. Joubert of South Africa and Henri Bourassa of Montreal is that the former learned in a dozen years what the latter has not yet observed in over one hundred and fifty. Those Dutch are slow fellows!

—o—

Some farmers in Germany use roosters for hatching eggs and raising chicks. They take better care of the chicks than the hens do, even fighting hawks to protect them, and running with them much longer.

—o—

The report that the retreat of the Crown Prince of Germany's division on the right was responsible for the retirement of the Kaiser's forces from before Paris will be readily credited. The British bayonet is no respector of Kaiserdom.

—o—

During the year 1913, throughout the world, a total of 542 vessels of more than one hundred tons were lost or condemned—295 steamers and 247 sailing vessels. These figures, according to Lloyd's Register of Shipping are lower than for several years. During the previous year 720 vessels were lost.

—o—

On the Minnesota farms, says a careful statician, speaking of the fecundity of different races in America, only one Polish-American wife out of fifty-eight is childless; while as to other races, only one Irish-American wife out of thirteen, and one English-American wife out of twelve have no children.

—o—

Germany's ambition is to dominate the world. But the losses in the European war are so appalling, that one faces the serious danger of the white race of men being so decimated that China may seize her opportunity for world-wide expansion! China is also ambitious of dominating the world. She is adopting western civilization and culture and democracy, has a population of over 400,000,000, and is awakening to her possibilities as occasion offers.

SCIENTIFIC NOTES

Recent statistics credit Spain with more than 3,500,000 goats.

A novel umbrella is equipped with a storage battery electric light in its handle.

Cables linking British and North American ports convey about 30,000,000 words a year.

An adjustable attachment for a baby's chair to hold a nursing bottle has been invented.

Vinegar heated to the boiling point will soften paint brushes that have become dry and hard.

New suspenders are broadened at the front to resemble a vest, thus making two garments in one.

Argentine has the longest piece of straight railroad track in the world a stretch of 175 miles.

Paper circular saws have been invented which are said to work better in fine woods than steel ones.

A new Bohemian butter substitute is made of coconut oil, egg yolks and a small proportion of cream.

Ninety-five per cent. of the steel pens manufactured in the United States are made at Camden, N.J.

What is claimed to be an unbreakable telephone receiver has a steel skeleton within the rubber covering.

ATHLETICS IN FRANCE

In the matter of training her young men for athletics France is going ahead very rapidly. At Rheims the Marquis Polignac has established a wonderful athletic college. It is the most complete school of its kind in the world—in fact there is nothing like it the world over. Every appointment for the teaching of physical training is absolutely perfect and nothing else is taught. There are now hundreds of young Frenchmen being taught physical training, athletics especially, in the college at Rheims. A large number of these coaches—that's what they are—will be graduated from the Rheims college each year and sent out to take up their work throughout France. It's not hard then, to picture the result of this—a nation of wonderful athletes. The French are taking up football, golf, tennis and other outdoor sports to an amazing extent.

Pipes from the Garden

The Boers of South Africa, very carefully guarded calabash seeds, and high prices were obtained for the gourds to be used for pipes, before the seeds were introduced to other countries. A single African calabash vine yields as many as thirty or forty gourds. Care has, of course, to be taken to train the fruit into pipe shapes, and this is done by laying them during the growing period on small boards, manipulating it so that the gourds harden evenly. Taken when young and pliable the stem of the gourd can be trained into any pipe shape desired. Calabash pipes, as sold on the market, are, of course, fitted with fancy fittings, and the bowl is either made of meerschaum or plaster-of-Paris.

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness.

It's when sickness comes at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking.

LIKE WELLINGTON FRENCH GENERAL HELD GRIMLY ON

Till Night and Won Big Victory in Face of Terrible Odds—Captured Important Position Which the Germans Held All Day—The French are Brilliant

London, Oct. 1.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Amiens, under date of Sunday, in describing the heavy fighting around Peronne, which has been taken and retaken at various times, says it is impossible to hear of the dogged courage of the French troops without a thrill of warm admiration.

"At eleven o'clock one morning," he says, "the French advance was subjected to a terrible concentrated fire, and it seemed impossible for the troops to hold their ground. The French artillery had to abandon position after position.

"At 2 o'clock the shells began to fall around the crossroads where the staff was located, and the general in command was urged to quit. 'Ao' he said, 'so long as I stay here we cannot retreat, and we have simply got to hold on.'

"He said the same thing when three farms close by were in flames. He said it and meant it, and he saved the day. At 3 o'clock he was there still, and his men held their own. At 4 o'clock the German fire slackened a little, and an infantry attack was pushed forward.

"That evening the French guns were occupying the positions which the German guns had held all day. The general had held on."

LEARN TO RELAX

If You Are Troubled With Insomnia Rest Your Brain

Sleep is a habit. It is a very natural and beneficial habit, but one that can be easily broken through injudicious living and thinking. Poor sleepers are usually high-strung, nervous people, who have too active bodies or brains, or both, and who are ambitious and inclined to neglect themselves.

Insomnia cannot be cured by drugs. It is always dangerous to use drugs to produce sleep, and they should seldom be resorted to except in serious illness, and then only on the advice of a physician.

If you cannot sleep, and find that your sleeplessness is becoming a habit, begin immediately to go slower. Curb your ambition, leave off all unnecessary work and learn how to rest. Your body and your brain need repose and rest, but the trouble with the people who "cannot sleep" is, they do not know how to rest. They do not stop thinking, planning, worrying, and go to bed with active brains and only partly relaxed bodies and then worry because sleep does not come. Perfect relaxation of the body and mind is the first essential, and relaxation of either one helps to relax the other.

There is one exercise, which, properly practised, will be found beneficial in more ways than one. Stand erect, but without stiffness, arms hanging easily at the sides. Now very gently inhale air through the nostrils.

TO PREVENT CANCER

Indigestion Frequently Its Forerunner, Therefore do Not Neglect Stomach

Indigestion is one of the most common ills, and because it is so common many of us are apt to regard it as an inevitable result of eating for which medicine can do little good. We either suffer in silence or take a few home remedies, and let it go at that.

This is all wrong. Indigestion, however slight, should receive careful medical attention, for it is often the forerunner of gastric ulcer, and this in turn leads to a surprisingly large number of cases of cancer of the stomach.

Out of 566 consecutive cases of cancer treated at a leading hospital over 60 per cent. began with indigestion, and in nearly all of these this had been followed by chronic ulcer. Figures like these leave no doubt of the importance of giving due attention to even the most trivial derangement of the stomach. Indigestion, dyspepsia and gastric ulcer are the warnings which nature gives us in the order named of the approach of cancer.

Added support of this idea is found in the fact that cancer is more prevalent in the country districts than in the cities. It is in these districts that the most inddigestion is found. In the rural districts over-eating, too much fried food and rich pastry ruin more stomachs than the "high living" of the cities, which is generally supposed to be so harmful.

The length of time during which indigestion is suffered from before cancer of the stomach appears is, on the average, eleven years. One reason why many persons neglect their stomachs and lay themselves open to the danger of cancer is the common belief that cancer is a hereditary disease which can hardly be escaped if it is "in the family." The most reliable authorities at the present time, however, are agreed that there is no proof that heredity plays any part whatever in causing cancer. This conclusion, is of course, liable to modification, for cancer remains one of the diseases about which we have the least definite knowledge.

SCRIPTURAL NAMES

Puritans Were Fond of Old Testament Nomenclature

A certain set of Christian names taken from the Scriptures has been in use so long that we do not think of them as Adam, Moses, Samuel, David, Daniel, Solomon, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Others taken from the Saints, like Peter, Paul, John, Stephen and Matthew, originally given to children because they were born on the saint's day, are still so common that we think of them as English names.

These names antedate the use of surnames, as may be inferred from the fact that nearly all of them have given rise to patronymics, like Jacobson, Peterson and Stephenson. In the twelfth century missionaries used to baptise whole villages at once, and to save time invested all the men with the name of John or some other saint, and the women usually Mary or Martha.

To distinguish the Johns some additional name like Short or Strong or White or Black was given him by the neighbors, and so Christian names and surnames were united.

After the Reformation it became the fashion among the Puritans to give children the names of characters in the Old Testament and odd ones like Melchizedek or Barzillai were preferred. Among these were Abel, Levi, Jesse, Amos, Asa, Isaiah, Ephraim, Gideon, Malachi, Job, Abner, Hosea, Ezekiel, Jeremiah, Zechariah, Asher, Eli and hundreds of others.

Significance of Little Things

We love little things, we hate little things, we fear little things; our lives are knit up with little things from the time we are born to the day we die.

But things draw us up to heaven or crush us down to hell. Little things live beside us on earth, eat and sleep with us, laugh and grumble with us, catch the early train with us, or make us miss it, irritate and appease us—never leave us alone for a minute.

That is why they are so much more important than the big things—the things that only come once in a while, at long intervals, and even then are nearly always the result of a hundred and one little things combined.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). cf a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

MONARCHS AND THEIR WEEDS

King Edward VII., who was quite an exceptionally heavy smoker, favored cigars of surprising length and thickness. These cigars were made specially for him in Havana by the same manufacturer that the Kaiser patronizes. The cigar in which the Kaiser indulges, however, is much smaller than that which was smoked by his uncle, and much more moderate in price. The King of Spain is a slave to the insidious cigarette. He rarely smokes anything else, and his chief objection to Court functions is that he cannot attend them with a cigarette between his lips. The Tsar, too, is very fond of cigarettes, those which he smokes being made of a choice Turkish tobacco grown and selected exclusively for his own consumption. The Emperor of Austria is distinctly plebian in his taste for tobacco, the only thing he ever smokes being that long thin black cigar, which is to the working classes in Austria what the "fag" is in Britain.

The editor of a daily paper appearing at Gary, Indiana, after attempting to satisfy the demands of his polyglot readers by publishing news in Italian, Czech, Croatian, Polish, Hungarian, and English, was challenged to a three-cornered duel by two subscribers because he failed to print columns in Russian and Serb. Even in happy Indiana editors can't please everybody.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

COMMON SENSE TALK ABOUT AGRICULTURE

Dr. Creelman Said That Rural Schools Were Not Close Enough to Farm Interests

Dr. Creelman, President of the Agricultural College, Guelph, in the course of an address on the attitude of agriculture to the rural school said in part:

"Our educational system is a good one. Is it too good? Is it so perfect that they are afraid to break in anywhere with changes that our times and conditions demand?" The speaker went on to describe his own public school days, how he had attended school for years without securing any knowledge of vital import. "I spent seven years," he said, "learning about the battle of Hastings in 1066, and a lot of other trash. I was taught a little sing-song about the relative pronoun, which I know yet, word for word. What good is it to me? Listen"—closing his eyes, with the easy nonchalance of a boy "hacking his book," the President recited at express speed the old ditty about the rivers of Europe as we all learned it. Through the full gamut he ran it, from Petchora back to Ural, taking in everything but the minor tributaries. "There—I know it still," he exclaimed. "I can't get rid of it. All that trash is taking up space in my brain that should be filled with something of value to me. And that's the stuff I was taught. I was not taught a thing that was of much use to me till I went to college. Make every girl going out to teach a rural school possess a training in the principles of agriculture. Send her to the Agricultural College? Yes. Why not? What else? She has no right to teach a rural school without the training she would secure at such a college."

"Does every farmer in this hall weigh and test the milk yields of his cows?" he asked. "If not, how do you know whether you are making or losing money? The time has gone by when an ordinary careful farmer can go ahead without testing. The farmer who goes by guess is a guess-farmer, and should not be allowed to keep good cows. Go to work! It is possible for us farmers to get a start now such as we never got before in the history of the Province. The average cow—the average, mind you—in Ontario gives less than 4,000 pounds of milk per year. What about the poor cows; where do they stand? Compare that with one of our cows at the O.A.C. which gives over 20,000 pounds of milk each year. Let us quit talking about the high cost of living and look to the performance of our cows. Why are there not more 20,000-pound cows? You say that we have the Government at our backs. Nothing makes me so angry as that silly remark. What has the Government to do with the number of eggs our hens are laying? The Government doesn't feed and superintend our hens, I assure you. Our poultry men are the ones responsible for the work not the Government. The Government has owned those college hens for a long time, yet only a few years ago did we find that some of our pure-bred hens that went oftenest to the nest and cackled the loudest never laid an egg. That started things going, also some of the hens. We have now a pen of hens in which the birds average 259 eggs per year. Did the Government make that increase? Live stock is, in my opinion, the right arm of agriculture, and live stock is coming into its own."

TALK ON STORMS

R. F. Stupart Says Temperature is the Disturbing Element

Mr. R. F. Stupart, director of the Meteorological service of Canada, gave an interesting illustrated address before the members of the Canadian Institute, Toronto, on "The Canadian Storm-warning System." By means of charts, the distribution of atmosphere over the globe's surface and the resulting winds were explained. "The great disturbing element is temperature," said the speaker. "There is a difference in temperature between the Equator and the Poles of about 80 degrees, and in winter the difference is much greater. The air near the surface over the equatorial regions is greatly heated, and expands, with the result that over the Equatorial regions any given barometric surface is at a greater height above the earth than it is over regions both north and south, and in consequence of this the upper air flows away both north and south and surface air from north and south flows towards the Equator. The air in the upper regions, as it goes north and south towards converging meridians, accumulates between 25 degrees and 35 degrees, and the effect of this is the high barometer of this sub-tropical zone. Another important agency affecting the movements of air currents is the rotation of the earth, which causes a deflection to the right of the initial movement in the Northern Hemisphere, and to the left in the Southern. And this leads to the surface currents in the tropics being from N.E. instead of from N., and S.E. instead of from South. But in addition to the temperature difference between Equator and Pole, there are temperature differences between continent and ocean, which are reversed by the seasons, and with this latter system of variable air circulation [illegible] of the [illegible] make [illegible] [illegible] there is a [illegible] [illegible] of vast complexity; but one in which many of the disturbing factors are clearly discernible."

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

The island of Elba, it is said, was the first European point where the canary found a resting place. According to a tradition, a ship bound for Leghorn, having on board a number of birds, went down near the island, on which the birds, when given their freedom, found a refuge. They finally found their way into Germany, where canary breeding and training is now conducted on a large scale.

Regarding the breeding of canaries in Germany a fancier tells an interesting story.

"I went to school in Germany with a man named Schofert," he says "and in after years this man raised canaries to sell to the royalty. Several European rulers bought birds from him, for which he was paid a fancy price. His canaries were found to be such fine specimens that eventually he was told by the government that his selling of a bird outside of Germany, except with government permission, would constitute a penitentiary offense. In 1900 Schofert died a poor man, because of the curtailing of his sales. A year later a party taking much the same name came to America and located in an eastern city, claiming to be the original Schofert who sold canaries to the royalty of Europe. In three months' time he had sold half a million birds. It goes to show there have been just as many fakes worked with bird pedigrees as there have with dogs and other animals."

Those who sympathize with the little singer because it is caged should find comfort in the fact that it would really be "murder in the first degree" to give the canary its liberty. So accustomed has the canary become to captivity that the cage is its natural home. For generations back it has known nothing of the open skies, the changes in weather and season, the struggles for existence. Thrown out into the garden or meadow, it would be unable to find for itself the food which has been brought daily to its cage. In the struggle with other birds for a living it would make a sorry spectacle. Artificially trained, it is no longer afraid of man, and has become accustomed to having its health closely watched.

At 40 a man is a mere callow youth, just beginning to find himself.

Confession is never made easier by postponement.

A bad conscience is the result of poor digestion.

REV. DR. JUDSON

Dr. Edward Judson who has spent most of his life on Oriental mission fields, has found a new way to interest the heathen in religion. He is going to tell the story of the gospel on the screen. Some pictures will be used to instruct the pagan and others will inform civilised nations how the pagan lives at home.

Sheep as Warming-pans

The high temperature of birds enables them to resist cold more effectually than they could otherwise do. Whereas blood-heat in man is 98 degrees Fahr., it is 107 degrees in the domestic fowl, and more in some other birds. Nevertheless, they feel the cold very much, and display a remarkable amount of ingenuity in finding means to warm themselves. A farmer in the uplands of Lanarkshire one winter observed a number of chaffinches entering an outhouse where bullocks were stalled. He went in and found them nestling in the straw against the flanks of the reposing beasts. Birds are fond of using sheep as warming-pans, regardless of the risk attendant. Snuggling down into the long wool, they are apt to get their feet entangled, when the result may be starvation.

FORESTS AND NAVIGATION

Equality of Water Flow Dependent on Forest Cover

It has been urged that in the interests of navigation the Dominion Government should purchase such denuded forest land in the Eastern Provinces as might be necessary to reforest in order to prevent floods and the filling up of streams with sediment. In this connection the report on the Trent Watershed Survey, published by the Commission of Conservation, is of considerable interest. In this region of Ontario, as a result of fires, 150,000 acres are practically a desert and the report urges a policy of forest conservation under Dominion, provincial or municipal control, in order to preserve the usefulness of the Trent Valley canal, in which over $10,000,000 is invested. There are many such barren areas in the eastern provinces, which with the assistance of the Dominion Government might be made to produce valuable forest crops.

In Canada disastrous floods and low-water stages have been largely prevented by the timely action of the Dominion Government in setting aside as forest reserves the wooded slopes where the great rivers of the interior of the Dominion have their origin. On the east slope of the Rocky Mountains over 20,596 square miles of non-agricultural land have been thus reserved, for the double purpose of regulating the run-off and of providing a perpetual supply of timber to meet the ever-increasing needs of the prairie settlers. In the Railway Belt in British Columbia smaller reserves have also been set aside, chiefly for the purpose of maintaining a steady flow in the streams on which the fruit-growing industry is absolutely dependent.

New Head of Forest Laboratories

Mr. John S. Bates recently appointed Superintendent of the Dominion Forest Products Laboratories in connection with McGill University, was born at Woodstock, Ont., and is a graduate of Acadia University in arts and science. After leaving Acadia he went to Columbia University, New York, and graduated in chemical engineering, specializing in pulp and paper. He made a study of the utilization of Southern pine waste while at Columbia, and after the conclusion of a brilliant course there had practical experience with several big paper and chemical companies.

A Gruesome Legend of Lake Superior

One of the most gruesome legends of Superior relates to the "Frozen Ship," which recalls almost "the schooner Hesperus, that sailed the wintry sea." This trim schooner weighed anchor in Duluth just before [illegible] which made mariners run for cover. For six long weeks no tidings whatever was heard of the ship. Then, one day a lonely trapper making his rounds in the wilderness came across her on the shore. Frozen stiff in their bunks were two of the crew, and the fate of the others was surmised with a shudder as the trapper noted the tracks of wild animals on the snow-covered deck. And the annals of the Great Lakes contain the records of fully as many deeds of heroism, in proportion, as do the logs of old ocean, while millions of treasure lie hidden beneath the waters. When the time comes for the "sea to give up her dead," the great multitude which no man can number will be bravely recruited from the valiant souls whose bones lie at the bottom of Superior and its [illegible] fresh water seas.

The Canadian Match

Canada is a fine country, some day it will be a great country. Undoubtedly it will always remain a large country! And like most large countries its drawbacks are on a large scale. Take for instance the Canadian match. It is without exception the largest and most ornate match the world can produce. Wood being cheap and plentiful in Canada, each match is made on the reduced scale of a substantial fence post; the business end of it is adorned with a large and highly colored blob of some sulphurous compound chiefly noted for its inflammable qualities—anywhere but in juxtaposition with the strip of sandpaper pasted on the box, presumably for the purpose of igniting the said match. As a rule the match flatly declines to be lit on its proper place, but after you have scratched it on the box, on the stove, on the floor, on the door lintel, and on the sole of your shoe without any apparent effect, it will suddenly, and without any warning whatever, break in half and burst into flame. Whereupon the lighted end flies off into some inaccessible corner and continues to burn while you frantically endeavor to extinguish it with the extreme end of the broom handle, or the flaming portion thereof lodges upon your hand and holds thereto with a tenacity that is truly remarkable, never consenting to be displaced until it has burned a deep hole through the skin during the process of which the screams or curses of the victim (according to sex) and the mingled odors of sulphur and burning flesh add considerable excitement to the prearranged harmony of the family circle. Also, in order to carry out the general largeness of the idea, these matches are put up in large boxes, and suffer from a tendency to spontaneous combustion if inadvertently placed too near the stove.—Mrs. Donald Shaw.

JOURNALIST'S QUICK WIT

A London Editor's Retort to a Captious Neighbor

The late Archie Bremner, for many years editor of "The London Advertiser," was noted for his ready wit. For a long time his home was in one of the suburbs and next door resided a chronically cantankerous individual never happy except when in a scrap with somebody. One day after dinner Archie sauntered for the office with his old silk hat tilted at the regulation angle. But neighbor "Bone" was lying in wait for him leaning over his front gate.

"Mr. Bremner, are you aware that your line fence is two inches over on my lot?"

"Well, no, to tell the truth, I hadn't noticed that," was the diplomatic answer.

"It is then, and I want to know what you are going to do about it?"

"Well, now," observed the imperturbable Archie, lifting his pipe from his mouth, "if you are going to move the fence just put it full six inches over on my lot and then there'll never be any chance for trouble."

And there never was. Neighbor "Bone's" wrath flattened out more quickly than it had risen and he discovered a sudden engagement back in his own onion patch.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

DON'T HAWK, SPIT, SNEEZE, CURE YOURSELF! BREATHE "CATARRHOZONE!

Gives Instant Relief, Clears Out Nose, Throat and all Breathing Organs.

In this fickle climate, repeated colds very easily drift into Catarrh.

The natural tendency of Catarrh is to extend through the system in every direction.

Exposure to cold or dampness intensifies the trouble and nasal catarrh is the result.

Unless a complete cure is effected, inflammation passes rapidly to the throat, bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs—hence Consumption is practically incurable.

But Catarrh can be cured, except in its final and fatal stage.

Catarch sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone."

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages.

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists, germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed,—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills. Its pleasant, safe and guaranteed in every case. Complete outfit $1.00. Smaller size 50c., at all dealers.

Exchange of Compliments.

Last night a young man met a girl on George Street whom he did not know. He, trying to "make a mash," remarked to the young lady, "Oh you great big beautiful doll." The girl turned the switch on that "mash" by saying, "Oh you great big beautiful boob!"

Prominent County Men Here.

Yesterday Ex-Reeve Tucker, of Burleigh and Anstruther townships, Reeve Walsh of the township of Douro and Mr. Lean, Assessor of Burleigh township, were in the city on business and were guests at the Munro House.

Off For The War.

Mr. F. D. Thompson, a local reservist, sails for England in a few days to augment a mobilization at Aldershot for the war. Mr. Thompson served with the Strathcona Horse in South Africa. His brother was in the same regiment with Col. Gordon, who has been made a prisoner by the Germans, when the latter won the Victoria Cross in South Africa.

Another Disorderly House Case.

At yesterday's police court held in the afternoon a young man named Butcher, husband of Tinnie Butcher, one o the witnesses in a similar case against Mrs. Leavis and the man Nelson, pleaded guilty to conducting a disorderly house. It seems that whiskey is the cause of the trouble. He was sentenced.

Incinerator Trouble.

It would seem that residents living near the local Incinerator plant are not the only sufferers from the stench produced. The Incinerator plant itself is also a sufferer. Some time ago two of the brick arches that hold the refuse to be burned, fell down. Now two more of these arches have collapsed. This means that if another arch falls the plant will be out of commission. As it is now, a bigger supply than originally thought necessary of wood has to be used to consume the garbage.

Called Them Hogs.

We have heard recently of considerable lack of loyalty among certain residents in the vicinity of Hastings. Not only lack of lip loyalty but the real kind which would be prepared to make sacrifices for our country and empire in this war. We suppose most of this is due to ignorance, but we are sorry to say that in some cases it is nothing but the case of the parties being common hogs.—Hastings Star.

Local Man At The War.

Mayor Buller has received a letter from Mr. Louis Houdrey, of this city, who was recalled to France when the war opened. The letter was written from Rheims and was dated September 11th. It told of the developments in France at the time of the Battle of the Marne, and expressed an intense desire on the part of the writer to get to the front. He, we, with other French reservists, was in training preparatory to being moved to the firing line.

City Still Grows.

The assessment rolls for this year on which the taxes for 1915 will be paid, have been completed. The figures give Peterborough a total assessment of $16,493,080, and a population of 20,653. The increase in assessment over last year's figures is $2,077,566 and the increased population is 503. Of the $2,077,566 increase in the assessment $1,341,386 is in the centre ward. The number of taxable persons has increased in proportion with the population from 5,462 to 5,764.

A Family Row.

At yesterday's police court Kate McDonald was charged with assaulting Mrs. Alice McDonald. The latter said she went to Kate McDonald's house to get her husband, the son of Mrs. Kate McDonald. The latter struck her over the head thrice with a broom stick and chased her with the same weapon. Witness said her husband goes to Mrs. Kate McDonald's because the latter supplies her son with liquor. Her husband only gives her $3 a week. She, witness, works to keep the family going. The old lady, in the box said Mrs. Alice McDonald caught her by the hair and bruised her arms. She denied having whisky in her house. "No, sir," the old lady said. "I never hit her with a broom and that's the God's truth from Heaven." The charge was dismissed.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make it Thick, Glossy, Wavy Luxuriant and Remove Dandruff—Real Surprise for You

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

YOU'RE BILIOUS AND COSTIVE!--CASCARETS

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, means Liver and Bowels Clogged—Clean up tonight.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Colds, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep your stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

WEDDING BELLS

BOND—SHERRY.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's Church yesterday morning between Eleanor Gwendolyn, daughter of Mr. G. J. Sherry of McDonald St., and J. Percy Bond, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson. The bride who was given away by her father and unattended, was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of navy blue. The wedding march was played by Mr. Devey and immediately after the ceremony the chimes were rung. Immediate friends only were present. Mr. and Mrs. Bond left on the morning train for New York, and on their return will reside in this city.

GERNAM PLAN OF CAMPAIGN

final victory if the first great battle of the war can be deferred until the Germans are in the Aisne Valley. It will take the Germans much longer to get there than the three weeks we shall require to come into action, and it is not difficult to conceive situation in which the Germans might find themselves very uncomfortable.

On the other hand, there is a risk that the French Generals will not relish the idea of giving ground, and that they will strain every effort to meet the Germans before they have got off German territory. This will be to fight the Germans' battle, and to risk giving the colour to the whole war by an initial blunder due to military pride. They should make allowance for the conditions under which their allies can alone come to their help. Both England and Russia must be slow from different circumstances. Therefore France must be patient and give ground. Catinat is the General they should take as their model, and "reculer pour mieux sauter" should be their motto. The only way to baffle the German plan of campaign is to leave the development of its inherent difficulties to time and distance. The Germans will be far less formidable at Rethel or Vouziers, if no battles have been lost by the French before they arrive there, than they would be at, let us say, Libramont or even Sedan. It will no doubt be disagreeable to French sentiment to see the first battles of the war occur in French soil, but victories there would be better than defeats further north.

INTER-PROVINCIAL NEWS BREVITIES

London, Oct. 1.—A writer in the "Review of Reviews" in a brief history of the temperance movement in Great Britain, in which he comments on the marked decrease in consumption of alcoholic beverages and in drunkeness, adds that "in 1750, there was a public house for every 6 homes and to every 47 people. Now there is but one public house to every seventy homes and 380 people. Drunkeness too besides having virtually died out as a social accomplishment, has steadily diminished among all classes, despite the fact that no prohibitory laws exist in any part of the country." He attributes this success to education primarily and to the existing laws which while very liberal are stringently enforced both on the licensee and on his patrons.

New York, Oct. 1.—The "World" in an editorial under the caption "The Best War Correspondent" pays a great tribute to General French's ability to present a full and equally interesting report of the operations on the continent. It closes with the statement "But the report of Sir John French are so simply, clearly written that they strongly convey the impression of absolute reliability. They will form the backbone of the ponderous histories of the British participation in the war which will be presented by men with less real journalistic merit and literary talent."

Toronto, Oct. 1.—The universal respect in which the late premier, Sir James Whitney was held was shown by the vast concourse of people which all day Monday passed by the casket containing the remains as it lay in the legislative hall. It is estimated that over 30,000 were in the procession past the bier on which the casket lay among scores of floral tributes from all over the Dominion. The body was taken on Tuesday to Morrisburg for interment.

Paris, Oct. 1.—The war has not diminished the efforts of the new temperance party which recently came to life in the gay capital, and the walls have been placarded with notices which read :..."Do not drink essences, absinthe or anisette" but urges the people to drink beer, wine and cider in moderation.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 1.—After over 60 years of prohibition this city cannot only lay claim to being the most drunken city in "dry" Maine. but, according to the last annual police report, its arrests for drunkeness are treble of what they are in Milwaukee, the "city made famous" by its beer. In 1912 the figures showed that one in every 18 citizens had been apprehended for drunkeness. In 1913 one in every twelve was arrested for drunkeness, but this year the figures declare that one in every nine was arrested. Of course in very many cases, the same people were apprehended on many different occasions. In the very "wet" Milwaukee the arrests for drunkeness totaled one in every 160 of the population.

London, Oct. 1.—Statisticians who have been working out the cost of the war to all nations involved declare that hostilities are costing at the rate of $38,000,000 a day, adding that it is more than probable that this figure is really lower than the actual figure will be. It is also stated that the cost involved in the killing of each soldier is about $3,850.

New York, Oct. 1.—Dr. Wright, the eminent sociologist, has created a sensation by showing the increasing quantities of opium which are being consumed throughout the United States. He declares that the annual requirement for legitimate medical and other purposes is 60,000 pounds, but that last year no less than 460,000 pounds were brought in. In his remarks he said: "The use of cocaine, opium and other drugs is, I regret to say, largely on the increase all over the United States, especially in localities where the sale of liquor has been prohibited' Bishop Brent three years ago made the statement that the pure food laws were doing excellent work in the matter of patent medicines, but he insisted that the drug stores had taken the place of the hotel in many of the cities, adding "one of these days it may occur to the American public that it is paying too high a price for prohibition.'

Lindsay is thinking of appointing a Relief Officer for that town.

NEW PREMIER OF ONTARIO PROVINCE IS THE HONORABLE W. H. HEARST

His Cabinet Consists of But One New Face--Hon. Adam Beck Will Stay on the Hydro-Electric Board--A New Minister of Public Works Selected in Hon. F. C. Macdiarmid--Retention of the Old Cabinet is Just What the Public Expected

Toronto, Oct. 2.—Hon. W. H. Hearst has accepted an invitation from His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor to form a cabinet to succeed that of the late Sir James Whitney, and, after consultation with his colleagues of the Government, all of whom placed their portfolios at his service, he has announced the composition of the Ministry as follows:

First Minister and President of Executive Council and Minister of Lands,

Attorney-General, Hon. J. J. Foy,

Forests and Mines, Hon. W. H. Hearst

Minister of Education, Hon. R. A. Pyne.

Provincial Secretary, Hon. W. J. Hanna.

Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. S. Duff.

Provincial Treasurer, Hon. I. B. Lucas.

Minister of Public Works, Finlay G. MacDiarmid.

Minister Without Portfolio, Hon. R. F. Preston.

The members of the new Cabinet were sworn in today at the legislative buildings before Sir John Gibson

According to public expectations no general reorganization of the Cabinet toov place, and Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid, representative for West Elgin, is the only new member of the Government, being selected for the portfolio of Public Works in succession to Hon. Dr. Reaume who insisted on his resignation being accepted.

Stays on Hydro Board.

Hon. Adam Beck, who retires from the Cabinet, will still retain his position at the head of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in association with Hon. I. B. Lucas as the representative on the board.

The only bye-election that will be occasioned by the selection of the new Ministry is that in connection with Hon. Mr. Macdiarmid's appointment to the Public Works Department. As a new member of the Government administering a portfolio Mr. Macdiarmid will have to go back to his constituents for confirmation in his seat.

German Successes At Antwerp Denied By The Belgians

London, Oct. 2.—An official statement issued at Antwerp and sent by the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company says:

There has been a fierce artillery duel all day (Thursday) Some of the German batteries which ventured too close to the forts were demolished. The enemy moved in the direction of Wowre-St. Catharines, but were stopped by darkness.

London, Oct. 2.—In describing the attack of the Germans on Antwerp, the correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, writing from Antwerp under date of Thursday noon, says:

From the top of a gas tank at Hoboken (three miles southwest of Antwerp) last night was witnessed a scene of sombre grandeur. The line of attack on the city was defined in the clear night air very sharply by flashes of the enemy's great siege guns. Similarly the line of defence was shown in points of light which stabbed the night from the Belgian forts. It was almost possible occasionally to see the effect of the falling shells.

Firing at Outlying Villages.

The artillery duel continued throughout the night. The German fire seemed to be directed chiefly toward emptying the outlying villages, and every road into Antwerp was choked with refugees. There is no doubt that many alarming reports of the German operations will creep across the frontier to Holland. We cannot give definite information from here on account of prohibition against news which might be useful to the enemy, but it can be said, with official sanction, the position, while calling for the utmost vigilance and effort is not alarming.

The Belgians have suffered in some quarters while in others they have inflicted loss. The general balance inspires confidence.

All scouting officers agree, however, that the German attack is merely a demonstration which is not intended to be pushed home. No Belgian aviators have uncovered any great masses of German infantry.

$18,618 TOTAL COST IN EMPRESS RELIEF

Toronto, Oct. 2.—The report of the Social Service Commission regarding payments to sufferers from the Empress of Ireland disaster, was adopted by the Board of Control to-day.

The list includes 37 names, mostly children under 16 years of age, and the total cost of payments for relief until 1930, when they will cease, is placed at $18,618, at 4½ per cent. These payments range from $4 to $1 per week. The majority of the sufferers are the children of Salvationists.

CATHOLIC SOCIETIES URGE WORLD PEACE

President Denechaud Reports at Baltimore, U. S. A. Convention of Federation of Roman Catholic Societies--Protest Against Mexican Outrages

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 2.—The actual work of the thirteenth annual convention of Catholic Societies began this morning when President Charles I. Denechaud, of New Orleans presented his report. He said that the Catholic world looked to the assemblage that represented 3,000,000 members of Catholic societies for leadership and counsel.

"The Catholics of the United States should take the initiative for the creation and fostering of concerted action for world peace," said Mr. Denechaud. "Public sentiment should be quickened and Congress importuned to cause this nation to make the first overtures for a serious, sincere and lasting agreement among the peoples of the world for international peace."

Referring "to accredited reports of cruelties perpetrated by some Mexican authorities upon defenceless priests and nuns," president Denechaud said:

"The federation must raise its indignation protest at this inhuman persecution and respectfully request the government to secure legislation and reparation for the indignities and atrocities committed and for property despoiled."

HISTORIC BRITISH FLAG PRESENTED TO PATRIOTIC FUND BY MILWAUKEE CITIZEN

A British flag 140 years old, has just been presented under most inspiring circumstances to the Patriotic Fund. The donor, Mr. A. McD. Young, although a resident of Milwaukee, is a true hearted Britisher as the accompanying letter to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, testifies:

"Dear Sir Thomas:—I have been—as you are aware a resident here for fifty years, and yet, while gladly bearing witness that those among whom I have so long sojourned are as one a people as the sun shines on, the fact remains that I am still a British subject. This being so you will realise how intensely interested I am in the war now going on. I am anxious to do something for the fund Canada is raising. There was held in Milwaukee in 1864, a large Fair for the benefit of the then soldiers of this country, and at that Fair was exhibited a British Flag said to have been captured at Detroit in 1774 (the donator showing data to that effect). I was determined to own that flag and to that end bought practically all the tickets in the lottery covering it. I did win it and it has been in my possession ever since (50 years). When the Lornes were here, it was shown the Princess who wrote a very courteous note, telling me of the pleasure she had in viewing it. Well, now it struck me to send you this flag, the idea I have in doing so being, that your knowledge of conditions will enable the disposal of this souvenir to the best advantage, for I doubt, unless in some Museum, if there exists in Canada a flag of its age. Note the Indian cat gut attached to it."

Signed A. McD. Young, dated Milwaukee, September 14th.

At a Committee meeting the question of the disposal of this flag was discussed. It was felt that a flag of such historic value should not be subject to the vagaries of a raffle or auction, but should be preserved without question of a doubt for the National Museum at Ottawa. It was decided, therefore, that the flag shall be sent to Ottawa with an appropriate inscription recording the establishment of the Canadian Patriotic Fund and citing the gift of this flag as evidence or the world wide sympathy and generosity evoked by this patriotic appeal on behalf of the soldiers' destitute families.

German Invasion Of Poland A Great Disaster For The Kaiser

Cannot Resist Russian Attack and Are Retreating in Disorder Closely Pursued by the Unrelenting Cossacks. Russians Smashed the Tenton's Centre and Inflicted Terrible Punishment. The Big Eastern Battle is Being Waged Over an Extensive Front

Washington, Oct. 2.—Three distinct victories by the Russians in Russia Poland were reported to the Russian embassy today. A cablegram from Petrograd stated that the German army has continued its retreat in the Provinces of Suwalki and Lomsha; that the bombardment of Ossowitz was unsuccessful; and the German attack at Andresew, the despatch said, was so crippled that the Germans became panicky.

Petrograd, Oct. 2.—That the Germans are in full retreat in the Province of Suwalki, Russian Poland, was the announcement of the War Office to-day. It is stated that the German centre was broken when the attack on Ossowetz failed and that the combined Russian assault which followed greatly demoralized the Germans.

THE OFFICIAL COMMUNICATION.

The general staff has given out the following official communication:

"The Russian troops have continued to repulse the enemy from the boundaries of the Governments of Suwalki and Loma. The engagement has been very fierce west of Simmo.

"The German troops that were attacking Ossowetz, are retreating hastily to the north.

"Considerable forces of the enemy of which the bulk arrived from the west, are concentrating in the districts west of the Governments of Piotrkof and Kielce. The Russian cavalry and vanguard are reconnoitering through all the region, impending through vigorous attacks, the movement of the enemy. The Germans always endeavor to use the highways in Russian territory because the other roads, being rough, paralyze their artillery trains.

"An attack by the Russian cavalry against the German vanguard in front of Andrew, and marching on Kielce, was crowned with great successes. The German infantry was caught unawares, and is retiring in disorder, pursued by the Russian cavalry.

"The bombardment of Ossowetz did damage to only a few private dwellings and a few telephone lines, as the garrison was sheltered by numerous concrete walls.

"The offensive by the Russian troops marching through the forests of Augustowo was not covered by the artillery. South of Augustowo a hand-to-hand engagement took place. It was particularly fierce in the semi-circle between the Biolibiascon basin, which was crossed by a Russian column, and the Augustowo Canal near the Borki basin. The issue of this engagement was decided by an attack from Augustowo.

British Fleet Will Mine Certain Areas of North Sea

London, Oct. 2.—The official information bureau announced today that the British Government had decided to lay mines in certain areas as a counter-stroke to the German procedure.

The official information bureau has issued the following on behalf of the Admiralty.

"The German policy of mine laying combined with their submarine activity, makes it necessary on military grounds for the Admiralty to adopt counter measures. His Majesty's Government has therefore authorized a mine laying policy in certain areas.

"A system of mine fields has been established and is being developed on a considerable scale.

"In order to reduce the risks to non-combatants the Admiralty announces that it is dangerous henceforward for ships to cross the area between latitude 51.15 north and 51.40 north and longitude 1.35 east and 3 east. In this connection it must be remembered that the southern limits of the German mine field is latitude 52 north. Although these limits are assigned to the danger area, it must not be supposed that navigation is safe in any part of the southern waters of the North Sea.

BATTLE OF AISNE MUST SOON END

Paris, Oct. 2.—The laconic statements of the War Department gives but little idea of the furious battle which is being waged these days in the north of France in pursuance of the effort the great body of the Germans are making to force the allies' line. The left continues to be the storm centre, and from there the word is that the French continue to gain.

"Whatever the Germans seek and whatever are their hopes, it appears necessary that the interminable battle of the Aisne must soon have an end," says Lieut.-Col. Rousset, the military critic of the Petit Parisiene, commenting on the two last official communications.

"The two armies," says Rousset, "have fought for many days with fury on an enormous front, but while we have made progress daily upon two wings to the north of the River Somme and in the south of Woevre, the army of [illegible] is exhausting itself in vain efforts to check our advance, after having uselessly tried to break through somewhere.

LONDON SAYS THAT THE ALLIES ARE NEARING END OF ROUND TRIP

Von Kluk's Wing is Now Fighting With the Desperation Of Despair--The Germans Try The Offensive Time and Again, Only to be Thrown Back With Terrific Losses--Line of Battle Each Day Extending to the Germans' Disadvantage

Paris, Oct. 2.—An official bulletin issued today by the War Department states that terrific fighting continues incessantly near Roye, where the Germans have been strongly reinforced.

"On our left wing the battle continues with terrific fighting, notably in the region of Roye, where the Germans appear to have concentrated important reinforcements. The [illegible] extends more and more toward the north.

"The front of the battle line is now extended into the region to the south of Arras.

"Upon the Meuse the Germans attempted at night to throw a bridge across the river near St. Mihiel. The bridge was destroyed by our guns.

"In the Woevre district our offensive continues and progresses step by step notably in the region between Apremont and St. Mihiel.

"On the remainder of the front there have been attempted only partial operations here and there."

Germans Partially Flanked.

With both the German right and the allied left heavily reinforced, the battle on the north-west lines has now eclipsed in interest developments at every point of the long battle line.

The Germans, already partly flanked and with their lines of communication threatened, are declared to be fighting with the desperation engendered by despair to turn the tide in their favor. They are assaulting the allied positions with the utmost vigor, but slowly and inexorably the iron ring is being extended around them. The laconic utterances of the general staff merely emphasizes this fact.

The line of battle each day is extending farther and farther to the northward. The Germans essay the offensive, but only to be driven back with loss of time. At no point, military headquarters here again insisted this afternoon, have they succeeded in breaking the allied cordon.

The desperate character of the fighting now in progress is declared here to show definitely that the Germans fear a part at least of their forces in the triangle of the Aisne and Oise, are in danger of being cut off. And, because of this they are striving with every ounce of energy in their great war machine to drive their line of battle farther to the west, so that a clear way will be left for these troops to retire when the necessity for such a movement arises.

The London View.

London, Oct. 2.— The German armies in France or at any rate most of them are nearing the completion of their round trip. This, it is held here, is the only conclusion—and it is hinted at even in Berlin newspapers— to be drawn from the report, both official or unofficial of those on or near the scene of action.

It is evident that the progress of the allies' left is considerable, while the hole through which the Germans might have pierced the line of French fortresses on the Meuse River side had been stopped.

The fierce battling around the heights of Roye, to the north-west of Noyon, seems to have ended in favor of the French. The heights were captured by General Von Kluck's men on Wednesday, but on Friday, according to a French report, the allies regained control of the position.

Antwerp, temporarily the Belgian capital, ought to be capable of maintaining a longd defence. King Albert is a romantic figure of the war in this quarter. He constantly goes into the danger zone, and his determination, fearlessness, and activity recall those of Stadtholder William in the historic siege of Leyden

That the battle of Cracow, which opened yesterday, will be a long and arduous struggle is no one questions.

General Von Hindenburg, the German commander who scored notable successes in Eastern Prussia against the invading Muscovites, has taken supreme command of the combined German and Austrian forces. These undoubtedly are a formidable army, though the alleged total of two and a half millions of men may be freely discounted.

Berlin's Version of Fighting.

Berlin, Oct., 2. (by wireless to Sayville, L.I.,).—According to announcement made in Berlin today, the great battle in France is still undecided. The Germans are described as hammering the French positions at numerous points by their heavy artillery. The attempts of the allies to break through the German lines have been repulsed. The heaviest losses have been in the Argonne region.

Flooded Germans Out Of Trenches At Chalons, France

London, Oct. 2. The correspondent of The Times, writing from Chalons, France, under date of Monday, says:

The Germans are gone and Chalons is rejoicing in the good news. The latest reports seem to indicate a general retirement from the strong lines of defence which the Germans constructed to the north of Rheims and to the east and west.

Their trenches on this line are wonderful works of art. Dug to a depth of six feet they are covered and protected in many cases with layers of reinforced concrete. This work was executed by the forced labor of the inhabitants to form a defensive position in case of need while the troops were still fighting on the Marne.

Flooded Them Out.

Up to this line the French worked their way foot by foot until in places their front was not 100 yards from the German trenches. The condition of these undrained trenches when examined will be found to be terrible. The wounded as well as the dead lie where they fell amid the wet and filth. The French in the advanced trenches could hear cries at night when the firing paused coming across the narrow belt over which the two armies fought.

These terrible conditions as much as the French fire dislodged the Germans from their miniature forts. In some of the trenches on the heights above Rheims the French had to drown the Germans out. Lines of hose were laid from the town and the fire pumps worked until the water stood breast high.

GOLF LOOKS EASY UNTIL YOU TRY IT

Fascination of the Game and Its Effect on the Player

What is the secret of its fascination? Probably at bottom that it looks so easy and is so hard. Nothing can well seem simpler than hitting a stationary ball with a club. But in actual fact the human body proves to be curiously ill-adapted for any such task. The problem of dispatching that insolent ball in the desired direction becomes suddenly terrifying. Weak little men with hardly an effort send it flying a sixth of a mile. Huge burly fellows, with a blow that would shake St. Paul's, hit it 30 yards. It is the most baffling, tantalizing, vexatious of games.

But if the sorrows of golf are great, so also are its rewards. There is a feel and a glow about a clean-hit drive, or an approach that dribbles up to the hole, that very few strokes at polo, cricket, lawn tennis, or billiards are able to evoke. In the course of a two hours' round a player has every variety of chance to cover himself with glory or disgrace. It depends altogether on his own skill and nerve and self-control. One suffers for one's own shortcomings; one profits by one's own prowess—with just enough luck and chance thrown in to remind one of the mutability of life. And to many people this sense of standing on one's own merits or defects, and of being solely responsible for victory or defeat, is part of the attraction of golf. It comforts the diffident, it inspires the self-reliant; and the essential companionableness of the game saves it from egotism. Judgment and concentration and the courage never to submit or yield, and evenness of temper; these are all tested and disciplined by golf; while as a physical exercise it has the supreme virtue of being equally good for the young, middle-aged, and the old of both sexes. A veteran of fifty-five with a touch of lumbago defeats a champion of twenty-seven; a boy of twenty disposes of famous and seasoned masters of the game who have been playing it longer than he has been alive. People may point at the golfer as a but too typical product of our soft and leisurely age; but golf itself, so long as it remains a game and does not grow into a disease, needs no excuse.

USES CATS AS HOUNDS

Big Felines Trail, Point and Retrieve Like Hunting Dogs

T. G. Nimmo, of Missouri, probably has the strangest "pack of hounds" in the world. It consists of two huge domestic cats, which he has been training for more than three years until they trail, point, and retrieve small games as well as any dogs ever seen in his district. The cats are named Tom and Jerry, and are used principally in hunting rabbits, tree squirrels and quail, though they have tracked and helped kill opossums and raccoons, both of which are plentiful in that part of the South.

According to their owner, who began training the cats when they were kittens, on sight of a rabbit, squirrel or quail they assume rigid positions, like that of a pointer, except that they move their tails slightly, and wait for him to come up and shoot the game they have found. They have never, since he finished their training, rushed forward to kill the game themselves, or to attempt to stalk it. When the shot is fired they retrieve the fallen animal or bird, and if it is not quite dead give it a quietus by biting it in the neck.

The especial value of these cats, Mr. Nimmo says, is in their ability to trail, capture, and kill wounded squirrels which flee to the tree tops after being shot.

Yacht Fortunes

Few men have spent so much money on racing yachts as Sir Thomas Lipton, and few have won so many races as he has. The cost of racing yacht construction varies considerably, depending a great deal upon the kind of material used in the hull.

Racers are built up nowadays of wood, composite bronze, aluminium, and steel. A racing yacht of composite construction—steel frames planked with wood and sheathed with copper—will, if of 20 tons measurement, cost, roughly, $10,000; of 40 tons, $17,500; of 90 tons, $35,000.

The suits of canvas required for racing yachts generally need renewing every season, and the cost often runs into big figures. The cost of a racing season, inclusive of fitting out etc., would be: for a 20-ton boat, $3,000; 40-ton boat, $6,000; 90-ton boat, $10,000.

Huge Sums For Racing

Statistics relative to prize money allotted by the various racing clubs of Australia show the great strides made in the Commonwealth of late years. For one racing season the prize money amounted to a grand total of $3,111,165, while the combined race clubs of Great Britain and Ireland disbursed $2,792,935, a record amount.

In Japan girls in spinning factories work on an average thirteen to fifteen hours, and those in weaving factories fourteen to sixteen hours.

Austria has seventeen trade unionists per thousand inhabitants.

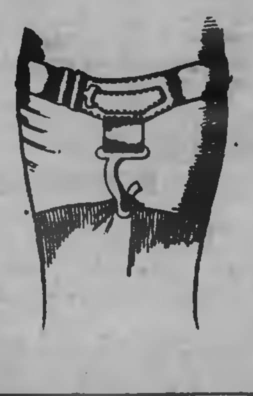
WHITE LEGHORNS ON FARM

Upon close analysis it will be found that Leghorns are better adapted to artificial conditions of poultry keeping than are most other breeds, says M. A. Jull in Weekly Witness. They are a small, active, breed with a nervous disposition, and they will stand crowding more than will general purpose or meat breeds. Under average conditions they will give better success when artificial conditions of hatching and rearing are employed than with heavier breeds. The chicks are easy to raise. For two years in succession we have raised far more White Leghorn chicks in proportion to the eggs set than can be said of our utility classes of poultry, so that, all things concerned, the White Leghorn will probably stand a little rougher use and more careless treatment than other breeds, although this is not to be considered as a distinct advantage. On the other hand, it is doubtful if the Leghorns will stand our winter weather quite as well as our Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or White Wyandottes. I think they should be given warmer houses, and then they will do practically as well. We have had some White Leghorn cockerels with some Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels in a colony house 8x12 feet, and it dropped to 20 below zero in the house during our cold snap. The Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels had their combs frozen, while the Leghorn cockerels had their combs frozen off almost entirely.

The chief value of the White Leghorn lies in its ability to produce broilers quickly, and more especially to produce a large number of eggs rather cheaply. Leghorn, of course, is not a good table bird except as a broiler, and the broiler business must be considered as a side line in poultry keeping. No attempts should be made to fatten Leghorns for roasting purposes, as such attempt usually results in loss of time and money. The great asset of the White Leghorn is its egg-laying ability, and this is the factor which should be considered chiefly in keeping of White Leghorns on the farm or on commercial poultry plants. Then, above all, more important than breed is the strain, and by all means great care should be taken to select and breed as good a strain of Single Comb White Leghorns as is possible to obtain.

Top of Stocking is Caught in Slot of Metal Hook

Now comes a new type of garter. To the casual observer it would seem to have no particular advantage over several kinds now in use, but, at least, it is different. There is, of course, the usual elastic band to fit around the upper part of the calf of the leg and prevent slipping. From the center of this band depends a metal hook with an open end and a narrow V-shaped slot formed by this end. The feature of this garter would appear to be its simplicity, for the fastening of the stocking in it is the matter of an instant. A little end of the stocking top is gathered up, slipped into the slot of the hook, and there you are. The inventor claims that a stocking fastened in this way will not pull out and will not be damaged in the least.



VERY SIMPLE TO FASTEN.

DEVELOPING THE OYSTER

The Industry is Important in Prince Edward Island

The Government of Prince Edward Island leases 30,000 acres, chiefly in Richmond Bay, to oyster culturists. They pay one dollar per acre. The product per acre when in condition is fifty barrels, therefore the normal yield is 1,500,000 barrels, which at $2 per barrel amounts to millions of dollars.

A great deal of work is required to develop the oyster. The spat has a leg with a gelatinous foot, with which it adheres to solid substances. It will not affix itself to anything slimy; consequently it has been found necessary to take the shells on shore, let the rain and sunshine clean them and replant them before dropping the spat.

A lump of sugar saturated with vinegar will cure hiccoughs.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 131.

After the Teapot Tempest.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

AT breakfast we were both pretty tired and downcast.

Mary made a sprightly effort at conversation, but it was plainly an effort and I didn't follow her lead. Why talk when you feel all in?

"Wasn't Mr. Alvin funny," she said after a while, "when he rapped on the wall last night with the broom handle? I suppose the sound of our voices did bother him."

"He's an old bear," I said savagely, "and I know darn well he stole my milk this morning. It was gone."

"Maybe the milkman only left one bottle," said Mary.

"Well, why should he take it?" I insisted. "It was as much mine as his and likely it was on my porch."

We haggled a bit about Mr. Alvin and the milk, in the fashion of people who carefully avoid some forbidden subject and wander all around it.

There was just one thing, however, that I wanted to know, and presently I pushed back my coffee, and the newspaper I had been trying to read, and took the bull by the horns.

"Mary," I said, "you're not going to borrow money from your mother again, are you?"

"I—I don't suppose so," said Mary in a faint voice.

"You're going to promise," said I. "We'll have to fix it that way. You'll promise?"

"Yes."

"And you won't permit her to give you any or lend you any? We must abide absolutely by our decision to divide what's left at the end of the month, and simply make that do for personal expenses and clothes."

Mary looked flushed and uncertain and unhappy again, as she always does when we get on the subject of economy, but she was tired and subdued this morning and a little more tractable than I had seen her in months. She said, in a still small voice that was inclining somewhat to tears, that she would do her best and that she hoped I'd apologize to her mother. This latter hope I ignored. If Mary and I began to row again it was unlikely I'd get to business that day.

I asked for some more coffee. Mary poured it and looked languidly out of the window.

"Tell me, Mary," I said after a while, "what was the meaning of that unearthly silence of yours last night? If you'd only said something! If you'd just flared up and lost your temper at first, instead of preserving that deadly calm, likely I wouldn't have told the maid to tell Mr. Alvin to go to the devil."

Mary flushed.

"Peter," she said, "it—it all came of reading an article in a newspaper about how when you're angriest it's best to keep silent and count. And I think I counted most a million backward and forward, and I kept getting angrier. And the angrier I got the more I'd count. The article said that when your husband was in a silly temper it was much better for a wife to maintain a dignified silence and not lower herself by bickering with him—that men love to quarrel and always went about with a chip upon their shoulders."

Who writes this sickening philosophy with which women bolster up their secret convictions? Mary devours all the sentimental advice to young wives and I reap the benefit. We've had one or two other startling times as a result of advice she's read.

Spenser's Sweetheart

SEVERAL of the English poets were objects of the tender regard of some very beautiful women. Though Spenser's Rosalind dismissed him in favor of a dull and commonplace spouse, he found in the south of Ireland a fascinating maiden who yielded up to him her heart and hand after an ardent siege of several years. Spenser resided at the time in a castle situated in the vicinity of Cork, and owned a large extent of property taken from the native Irish and handed over to him by the English government. His lady love was a Cork lassie, the daughter of a merchant, but as proud of her beauty as a Lady Howard could be of her birth. Their marriage took place in 1594, on which occasion he wrote his own epithalamium, glowing with raptures over the virginal innocence of the bonnie bride to whom he had just given his name. Spenser celebrated his wife's fascinations in his well known work, "The Faerie Queene," where she is the sovereign and he plays the role of Colin Clout, who piped on his oaten reed. His wedded life was a brief, but happy one.

Three years after the union the former owners of his property set fire to and sacked the castle and one of his children perished in the flames. He and his wife and family returned to England immediately afterward, where he died two years subsequently, leaving his wife a widow of 25 summers. Though her hand was sought in marriage by various noble suitors, she remained faithful to her first spouse to the end of her career.

THE ENGAGEMENT RING -:- -:- -:- By Michelson

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

NO use trying to be casual and off-hand about a thing like that—OFF-HAND really would be GOOD about an engagement ring if any one could contrive it! On the contrary she is immensely conscious of it from the moment it is fitted, and particularly when she comes into the group where it is most important to show it.

Then the chorus of exclamations! If you are an extraordinary person, particularly the kind of extraordinary person that knows all about the feminine heart, you will be able to guess what every girl in this group MIGHT be thinking. If you can guess that you're a WONDER.

Of course there would be as many kinds of thought as there are kinds of girl in the group, and—yes—the thoughts would depend on lots of things. O YES!

A Secret Engagement Is a Criminal Folly

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am secretly engaged to a young man whom I love dearly. He says just as soon as he works himself to a standing where he can provide for me as I have been provided for at home we will announce our engagement.

Since then he has had a promotion which keeps him busy most of the evening. He said he would be awfully tired until he got used to it and that he would stay home and rest, instead of coming out. But, instead of resting, he went down town and my brothers saw him. He was with some other friends. My brother went over to his house Thursday to see him and he was gone to the show. Don't you think that if he loved me he would come to see me more?

Several times he has acted unmanly and afterward asked forgiveness, and I forgave him. I also humor him, I afraid, a little too much.

One of our lady friends is giving a musical entertainment and my sweetheart and I are invited separately. But I find I am not able to attend, so I sent my regrets. Now, my sweetheart was very anxious to go. But it wasn't arranged for him to come for me.

Please tell me if he should go anyway. How should I treat him when I see him again? If he should come to see me instead of going, how shall I treat him then?

IGNORANT SHIRLEY.

WHY, you poor, dear child you—do you live all alone somewhere on a desert island way out in the middle of a great big, lonesome ocean?

Haven't you any mother—or big sister—or maiden aunt—or even just a nice, comfy, middle-aged friend? Find one, dear child, find one—and talk these things over with her.

I'm afraid you are in serious need of a real friend—and I am so far away, and know so little about you—how can I do for you what I would like to do, you dear, foolish little girl you?

The first thing you must do and do at once is this. Break that engagement. Don't shilly-shally—don't "maybe," and "maybe not." Break it, and break it now—if your heart breaks with it.

Why should you have a secret engagement with a man who is ashamed to have people know that he's engaged to you? Why should you keep your engagement secret, pray tell? There's just one reason—the man is making a convenience of you—that's all—and I'm afraid he's a good deal of a sneak. Some men are sneaks, you know, and this one seems to have a good many of the earmarks of the tribe.

Don't be at home the next time your "secret" sneak comes to see you. When you meet him in the street or anywhere else speak to him as if he were just an ordinary acquaintance, and get away from him as soon as you can.

As to the little entertainment and whether you go or he goes, and what you're to do about it, that's of no importance whatsoever. The important thing is for you to get rid of this creature—and get rid of him at once.

What's the matter with your mother—won't she "understand?" Oh, yes she will, little girl, mother will "understand" better than anybody else in the whole world. Mother wasn't always 40, you know; once she was 18, too.

And, perhaps, you got your soft eyes and your trusting heart right straight from mother, and she can advise you what to do with them as nobody else on earth can. Just you go to her today and creep into her lap and tell her the whole foolish story, and see how she will help you and comfort you and stand by you.

You've kept it all a secret from her, haven't you, because he wanted you to? Of course, he wanted you to. He knows what would happen to him of your mother knew the sort of creature he is.

She ought to know—today, this very hour—see to it that she does.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Finches Win Big Prizes By Their Trills

By TEMPLE MANNING

IN the north of France and in that part of Belgium called Flanders the little finch, whose longer name, chaffinch, is less known to us, is held in the highest esteem. In nearly every farmhouse finches are to be found, and all through the summer finch "concours" are held in the neighboring villages. It was by good luck that I happened to be present at the first "concours" of the season held in a little Flanders village last year.

I had asked my host to call me for the contest, and just at daybreak we found ourselves at a tiny inn, where the finch owners had already opened headquarters. They were taking the cages out of their traveling boxes when we arrived, and soon they all went out and set the covered cages against a wall that lined the street. Long tally sticks were handed to the owners, and then each owner was assigned to judge some other owner's bird.

Judging the Contest.

At a given word the covers were lifted from the cages and the finches began to sing. Only perfect trills were counted—"chuic, chuic, chuic, chuic, chuiay" was required. By the fifth part of the warble the whole trill was judged. If the final "chuiay" was not heard the tiny contestant was not given a chalk mark to his credit. One hour was the time allotted, and promptly on the second the contest closed. Five hundred and six perfect trills was the winner's record.

A poor little country boy owned the winning bird, and when he stepped up to receive the 100-franc prize every one was glad that he had won because he was so happy.

How to Keep Food Fresh During Hot Weather

By Ann Marie Lloyd

DESPITE the many advantages of the warm weather, it has one serious drawback which causes the housewife much perturbation and harassment. The warmer the weather the greater chance there is that when the housewife goes to the larder she will find a large part of the food turned sour and unfit for use.

If a little forethought is exercised, however, much of the food can be prevented from turning rancid and sour.

As a general rule, a dish of charcoal should be placed on a shelf in the pantry to help keep the food sweet and fresh. The charcoal should be changed once a week. It is also wise to have some strips of butter muslin, weighted at each corner, to come right over each shelf to keep the food clear of dust.

Sour milk is perhaps the greatest of all aggravations in the summertime. If a couple of tablespoonfuls of limewater are put into each pint of milk, the latter will keep sweet much longer than it would otherwise.

A pinch of bicarbonate of soda will often keep milk from turning sour. On no account should different lots of milk be mixed.

A good way to keep butter cool, firm and sweet-tasting is to place the butter on a plate, then cover it with a clean flower pot. Wring a piece of flannel through cold water and wrap it round the flower pot in such a way that the hole in the pot remains uncovered. If the flannel becomes dry, wring it through cold water again.

Never try to freshen meat that is tainted; it is most injurious and dangerous to do so. To keep meat fresh it should be hung in a cool, dark place directly it comes from the butcher.

If it has to be kept very long, though it should be put into an earthenware bowl, covered with hot water, and the surface of the water covered with pure oil. Treated in this way raw meat can be kept fresh for several days, even in the hottest weather.

Bacon can be kept from turning rancid by being placed in a wooden tub and covered with oak sawdust such as can be obtained from a sawmill, and stored in a cool, dry place.

Boiled ham is a most useful and popular summer dish, but it is inclined to get hard and dry when stored. To prevent this, spread over the cut portion a thin layer of butter, then a layer of flour paste, and the ham will keep beautifully moist.

Fish also turns quickly in warm weather if it is simply stored in the usual way. Most kinds can be kept fresh, though, if the fish is put into a basin and well sprinkled with salt.

About a quarter of an hour before the fish is required for cooking wash off the salt in lukewarm water.

Vegetables usually keep fresh if they are stored in a dark corner of a stone-floored cellar and covered over with a damp cloth. To ensure them keeping absolutely crisp and fresh, place some water in a shallow vessel and stand the root end of the vegetables an inch deep in the water.

To keep cheese fresh avoid getting a very large piece at a time, and wrap it in a clean, damp cloth before putting it away.

Cakes and bread should be stored in airtight tins, and if a piece of cut bread be put into each tin it will do a great deal to prevent the cakes and bread becoming stale.

By following these instructions many hot weather troubles will be avoided. And surely it is worth while to do away with anything that spoils our enjoyment of summer.

Secrets of Health

Why Our Hats Are the Cause of Baldness

By Dr. L. K. HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

DR. HIRSHBERG

WHEN the Duke of Wellington, who out-Napoleoned Napoleon, saw the first Reformed Parliament of England, he thought them such a sickly, sorry-looking lot of representatives that he remarked: "I never saw so many bad hats in my life."

Dr. Holmes in the Autocrat says of the hat: "It is the 'ultimum moriens' of respectability."

The Quaker loves an ample brim, a hat that bows to no salaam; and dear the beaver is to him, as if it never made a dam. Hats really make or mar a man's fortune, while the character of a woman can often be judged by the hats she wears.

Men have been wearing hats only a few thousand years. The round felt cap like a nightcap, with little or no brim, lying close to the temples, called a "pilleus," was the mark of fishermen, sailors and artisans. Castor and Pollux, Odysseus and Charon are always thus covered in art and statuary.

The ancient upper classes wore these caps only as we do a golf cap, namely, to travel, in the country or at sport. The Roman populace wore it at the Saturnalia. The freedmen wore it as a sign that they were free. It is the "liberty cap" of modern times.

The Tight Band.

The Thessalians introduced the flat hat with a broad round rim into Greece. It was used by the better classes to protect the head from the sun's rays, especially in the amphitheatre and at the seashore resorts, two thousand and more years ago.

The people of those times thought it silly to wear hats for any other than health or defensive purposes. Caesar's legions, as well as Macedonian, Persian and other primitive hosts, wore hats and helmets made to safeguard the head from open wounds and blood-poisoning.

Hats worn by men are made today, as they were then, to wit: with a tight, constricting band to prevent them from being blown off. Even Egyptian mummies have hats tied thus about the brow, while the eternally feminine have them pinned, sewn and stuck on to the hair.

Outfitters for men, haberdashers and hatters to their various majesties have, time out of mind, tried to save themselves from the medical finger of accusation which claims the tight hatband is more to be censured for baldness than all the vices and ills of the less deadly of the species.

Briefly, the necessity for a hat invention has long existed, but no satisfactory offspring from this alma mater has been born. No hatter has, as yet, devised a hygienic hat.

Women and Baldness.

True enough, there are cork hats, tropical helmets, openwork straws, perforated derbies and well ventilated felts, yet the vise-like sweatband maintains its felonious sway. It suppresses a fresh blood stream to the scalp, chokes off the pabulum that feeds the hair bulbs, and otherwise is adjudged guilty of hair slaughter and hirsute assassination in the first degree.

Moreover, hats, irrespective of all cosmetic adornment, have a pernicious influence upon women. Not only do they jab themselves with the pins and infect the scalp with warts, dandruff and sores, but tugging at the pins and sliding these back and forth destroys the color, shape and texture of the hair.

A hitherto unobserved or disregarded influence of my lady's millinery is the nervous efforts produced by fumbling and fixing the dishevelled and unbalanced headgear. To try on many hats in shops is often the source and fountain head of gray hair and baldness.

Gray hair, despite the "authority" of an American weekly medical journal, may come on very quickly. Certain nervous affections, microbic invasions, and local maladies like "seborrhoea," or dandruff, not only injure the hair and cause it to fall out, but also turn it gray.

Answers to Health Questions

Miss LILLIAN—1—What is good to remove warts on hand? Cannot stand much burning.

2—What is good for falling hair?

3—What is good for red hands?

1—Bathe warts in hot vinegar two or three times a day and put collodion on at night. To one ounce of collodion there should be added 10 grains salicylic acid.

2—Balsam of Peru, one-half dram, resorcin, one dram; salicylic acid and glycerine, one dram each; sulphur, one ounce; castor oil, three ounces. Massage in well three times a week.

3—Hold the hands high above head every five or 10 minutes. This exercise will allow blood to leave extremities. Washing hands in benzoin tincture or peroxide will also help. A tonic is an additional aid. When massaging the hands rub toward the heart, never away from it.

INTER-PROVINCIAL NEWS BREVITIES

London, Oct. 1.—A writer in the "Review of Reviews" in a brief history of the temperance movement in Great Britain, in which he comments on the marked decrease in consumption of alcoholic beverages and in drunkenness, adds that "in 1700, there was a public house for every 6 houses and to every 47 people. Now there is but one public house to every seventy houses and 380 people. Drunkenness too besides having virtually died out as a social accomplishment, has steadily diminished among all classes, despite the fact that no prohibitory laws exist in any part of the country." He attributes this success to education primarily and to the existing laws which while very liberal are stringently enforced both on the licensee and on his patrons.

New York, Oct. 1.—The "World" in an editorial under the caption "The Best War Correspondent" pays a great tribute to General French's ability to present a full and equally interesting report of the operations on the continent. It closes with the statement "But the report of Sir John French are so simply, clearly written that they strongly convey the impression of absolute reliability. They will form the backbone of the ponderous histories of the British participation in the war which will be presented by men with less real journalistic merit and literary talent."

Toronto, Oct. 1.—The universal respect in which the late premier, Sir James Whitney was held was shown by the vast concourse of people which all day Monday passed by the casket containing the remains as it lay in the legislative hall. It is estimated that over 20,000 were in the procession past the bier on which the casket lay amidst scores of floral tributes from all over the Dominion. The body was taken on Tuesday to Morrisburg for interment.

Paris, Oct. 1.—The war has not diminished the efforts of the new temperance party which recently came to life in the gay capital, and the walls have been placarded with notices which read:..."Do not drink essences, absinthe or anisette" but urges the people to drink beer, wine and cider in moderation.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 1.—After over 60 years of prohibition this city cannot only lay claim to being the most drunken city in "dry" Maine, but, according to the last annual police report, its arrests for drunkenness are treble of what they are in Milwaukee, the "city made famous" by its beer. In 1912 the figures showed that one in every 18 citizens had been apprehended for drunkenness. In 1913 one in every twelve was arrested for drunkenness, but this year the figures declare that one in every nine was arrested. Of course in very many cases, the same people were apprehended on many different occasions. In the very "wet" Milwaukee the arrests for drunkenness totaled one in every 162 of the population.

London, Oct. 1.—Statisticians who have been working out the cost of the war to all nations involved declare that hostilities are costing at the rate of $50,000,000 a day, adding that it is more than probable that this figure is really lower than the actual

"At War With Germany, At Peace With Each Other"

During the present crisis in our Empire history, all right thinking men will agree that there should be a "truce to party strife." Canada, as a part of the great British Empire, is really in a state of war, and this is no time for political recriminations. Let us, like the Irish, declare a truce, and stand shoulder to shoulder, all classes, all creeds, men of all political shades, determined to down the Teutonic foe of liberty, progress culture and truth. And, like the Irish, we can, after having triumphantly emerged from the world's present titanic struggle, resume again whatever political strife may have been left undecided, without danger of stiffening the backs of our enemies with the false hope of dissention within the Empire. One sublime task is today dominating our Empire, and that is the elimination of militarism, absolutism and tyranny from Prussian Europe, which we are going to accomplish with the aid of our brave allies and the help of God.

In the present crisis, surely we who stay at home have enough to do in preparing for possible eventualities, reaching after German trade—to have and to hold—and in rising above that general depression created by the "Butcher Tremendous" in Europe, without indulging in political wordy strife. It is the duty of Canada as a whole, to support the Borden Administration in the most trying situation any Dominion Government was ever called upon to handle.

Hydro-Electric

The City, in absorbing the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant, is now in full control of its own electric light and power distributing system, under the popular name of "Hydro-Electric." Consumers of light and power must accordingly deal with the city, under contract. Of course, citizens are rejoicing at the thought that at last they own their own light and power plant, and are to get service at a very reduced rate. Still, for all that, there are some present drawbacks to the deal, which has culminated at an unfortunate financial period. One hundred thousand dollars had to be borrowed at an increased rate of interest owing to the tightness of money. This amount has been paid as a deposit on the purchase price of the Peterborough Light and Power Co's. plant. What the exact purchase price is going to be is not yet known; that has to be fixed by arbitration. It may be more; it may be less; very probably the former. Then the Public Utilities Commission, who are in control of this branch of the city's service, will require capital to install meters and make such changes as are necessary to assure citizens Hydro-Electric service at the Hydro-Electric reduced rates promised by that Commission. This capital our Public Utilities Commission apparently has not to hand, and it may be difficult to secure same at any price. At present, it looks as though such needed funds will have to come out of the light and power revenues. Therefore consumers of light and power must not expect immediate sweeping changes and reductions, but must bear with our Commissioners in their difficult task of making such changes are necessary for substantially reduced rates from time to time as occasion and capital to hand offers. The department is in capable hands, and will be administered to the best possible advantage at this unfortunate period of universal depression and financial stringency.

Do Long Breaths Hurt

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY.

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs!

Probably got overheated—cooled too fast now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy.

Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt much that I thought I had pneumonia. always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

MAKING STEEL PENS

This Industry Has Developed In About a Century

The advent of the steel pen dates back to about 100 years ago, when steel pens of the barrel type—that is with the holder and pen in one piece —were made and sold for 50 cents.

To James Perry belongs the credit of bringing steel pens into general use. He began pen-making in Manchester in [illegible], and ultimately developed the pen trade in London before the prominent Birmingham makers, Mitchell, Gillot and Mason, caused a revolution in the trade by machine made pens.

The greatest improvement to the manufacture was the adoption of a screw hand press for the cutting out of pens. By means of this process one man can cut as many as 15,000 blanks a day.

The shape is given to the blanks, of course, by the dies in the press, and there are many different types of pen to be made. As a matter of fact, a leading pen maker has a catalogue containing 5,000 varieties of pens, while it has been estimated that no fewer than 10,000 different shapes and sizes are on the market.

The great objection to the steel pen when it first came into general use was its stiffness. There was not that "give" and spring in the metal pen which characterized the old fashioned goose quill pen. This was remedied however, by the side splits we see in pens to-day, and for many years the method of slitting the pens by means of a press was kept secret by those famous pen makers, Gilliot and Mason.

Briefly, the method of manufacture of a steel pen to-day may be described as follows: The blanks are pierced and the slits cut, after which the pen requires to be softened by annealing. Then they are raised and hardened, scoured with acid, colored, varnished and dried, girls afterward looking over the pens, throwing aside the faulty ones and packing the good ones into boxes ready for sale.

Germs in Salt

We deem salt, of all minerals, to be an essential to health, as well as a vital necessity in the preparation of our food. Yet the pure, white, refined salt consumed by millions of people is alive with germs—mud germs. A famous physiologist states that salt is one of the most germ-ridden foods we consume.

Grey salt is made a delicate tint by the addition of mud that has gone through no refining process whatever, and which contains from 6,000 to 75,000 bacteria per gram. The refined salt is not in a much better condition. It lies in a refinery under a blanket of clay; its refinement consists of a sea-water bath. It is then dried and heated until crystallised. This latter process fails, however, to remove or destroy the 2,000 or 3,000 bacteria per gram that have been imbibed from the clay blanket.

Hole in Bottom of Sea

It is said that a hole nearly a mile deep was formed in the bottom of the sea off the coast of Panama by Central America earthquakes. As a result of these earthquakes, a submarine cable was broken, and a cable ship was sent out to make repairs. The ends of the cable were found to be buried under enormous masses of material, and, where the Government charts published in 1904 shows a depth of 1,000 feet, soundings made from the cable ship found a depth of 5,000 feet. This remarkable depression is located off Los Santos Province about 15 miles from the mainland, and is about half a mile wide.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Oil Stock is a speculative investment which gives the largest return on the amount invested that it is possibleto obtain. This Statement is verified by the fact that the largest fortunes in the United States were made from speculation in oil.

The WHITE STAR OIL COMPANY. Ltd. have taken every precaution to eliminate the hazardous features which usually accompany this kind of investment, viz

Each one of our different properties were approved before their purchase by an expert geologist with a great deal of experience in selecting well sites in this field.

Our holdings comprise 1000 acres which are located in the three proven districts of the Alberta Oil Field, namely: The Monarch. Okotoks and Sweet Grass districts where scores of wells are now being drilled.

The Directorate of our Company is composed of substantial business men whose success in other lines of business is sufficient to warrant the stockholders a sound adminstration to the company's affairs.

Our Stock is now selling at 10c per share, par value $1.00. All prospective investors may obtain further information from our representative at 246 Antrim Street. Our advice is to buy while you can get in on the ground floor before the first issue is exhausted.

Feature Attraction Coming Here

On Wednesday evening next, Oct. 7th, Guy Brothers Celebrated Minstrels will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, and it is one that can be depended on to please the patrons. Mr. Geo. R. Guy always carries a first-class production, and this season will retain the name won years ago. This company is the oldest on the road, this making the thirty-ninth year of continued success. The minstrel shows of to-day are made up to last one year, while Guy Brothers will live forever, as they always have a clean, refined and wholesome performance, and one which you can go to and enjoy a good hearty laugh. Thirty-five people are carried to make the company complete, and they are the best of soloists, musicians, acrobats, jugglers, dancers and comedians in the business. Every one will be pleased to hear good music and the kind put up by Guy Brothers' famous Silver Concert Band and Orchestra is always of the very best quality. Don't miss seeing this attraction next Wednesday evening. Secure your reserved seat tickets now at Box Office. They don't cost any more.

GERMAN RIGHT WING IS BENT BACK AND DISASTER THREATENED

Von Kluk's Army Rendered More Precarious by the Forcing Upon Him of Reinforcements He Cannot Take Care of--A Brilliant Enemy's Commiserat Fails to Meet Unexpected Pressure Upon its Source--Peril of Envelopment Grows Daily

London, Oct. 2.—Again in the official Paris despatch today occurs the statement that "the action extends more and more towards the north," which would seem to indicate a persistent effort on the allies' part to get up around the top of the German formation and force it to retreat eastward. And that the foe's lines are actually being bent back is strongly indicated by a correspondent of the Central News at Calais who has returned to that city from a tour in the vicinity of the allies left. He says:

"Without disclosing military secrets, I can say that I have seen many thing to remove any misgivings as to the outcome of the battle. The moment is near when the curtain will be lifted on the greatest drama ever seen in war

"The position of the German right wing on Wednesday was such that a portion lying between Lassigny and Chaulnes was in extreme danger. Above Chaulnes the German lines which a few days ago faced westward, are now facing north-west and have been bent back on the line of Chaulnes, Cambrai and Valenciennes. On Sunday a German patrol was captured near Chaulnes. The fate of the Germans was due to a shortage of horses. The men said that they had had nothing to eat for some days. They belonged to General Von Kluck's command.

"It has been apparent throughout that General Von Kluck's right was made more precarious by the crowding on him of reinforcements from the centre and left, by the German general staff. His commissariat failed. This might have been avoided if the Germans had been prepared to sacrifice their carefully-selected position in the Noyon region, but they staked everything, holding that the peril of an envelopment was becoming more imminent daily."

WARRING NATION'S ORDER FOR FLOUR

Large Quantity to be Supplied in St. Louis From American Wheat But to Whom is Unknown

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—A rush order for 110,000 barrels of flour was placed with a local company yesterday by representatives of one of the warring European nations, the identity of which was not disclosed. This is the largest single sale of flour ever made here. The flour will be made of Kansas wheat and will require 540,000 bushels. Shipments from Kansas fields to St. Louis will begin within a few days, and the flour will be rushed to New York as fast as made. The price was not made public.

Truss Torture
Once Thought Necessary, but Now Your Search for Relief is Ended.
Wonderful Method Retains Rupture Without Knife, Danger or Pain.
J. Y. EGAN, Specialist of Toronto

Old-fashioned truss torture is no longer necessary. Galling, slipping trusses and barbarous methods of treating rupture are done away with by the wonderful invention of a specialist who has devoted fifty years to this one affliction. The marvelous new EGAN "CURATIVE" gives to the ruptured instant relief, rest and security where all others fail. It stops all irritation and restores every part to its natural position as soon as it is used and for all time and old style trusses are thrown away.

"EGAN'S CURATIVE" cures are absolutely without operation and the cost is small.

Multitudes of cured men, women and children testify. Also endorsed by many physicians.

Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Nothing complicated, no pain or irritation, but just a natural retentive method.

Eleven Cruisers Conveyed Our Canadian Contingent

Montreal, Oct. 2.—A writer in the Daily Mail has sent from Rimouski the following description of the departure of the Canadian troops from Quebec:

Thirty-one ships were required to carry the men, the guns, the horses and the supplies of the overseas expeditionary force. To convoy that number of ships a fleet of eleven war vessels was requisitioned, the whole movement being the largest and most important ever effected on the Atlantic. It was carried out in a splendid manner. The movement from Valcartier was affected in fine style, and the embarkment and sailing followed as part of a well ordered plan. The movement of 31,300 troops and 8,000 horses was the biggest war action that Canada has ever undertaken and it was performed almost faultlessly,

All Out in Eight Days.

The movement from Valcartier started with the mustering of the left half of the 12th Battalion, which was sent to Quebec to perform guard duty and ended with the departure from camp eight days later of the right half of the same battalion. The troops that moved in took possession of the wharves and the breakwater, and when they disappeared in one day the red coats of the 87th Regiment replaced the khaki serges of the men of the 12th Battalion.

In this eight days the division had moved out of Valcartier. Horses, artillery and transport wagons came over the eighteen miles of road, while the troops were sent by train.

QUEER INSURANCES

Beyond the fact that we can insure our own lives, few people know that quite legal insurances can be taken out in many ways. For instance, every subject of the King has an insurable interest in the King's life, and may insure him. A creditor can legally insure the life of a debtor for the amount of the debt, and, even when the debt is paid, the creditor may lawfully continue the insurance. An employer of labor can insure the lives of his workers, the insurable interest, which alone makes the policies legal, being that he is liable for fatal injuries received in the course of their work.

Mere relationship does not create an insurable interest. Husbands and wives can insure each other, and a child can insure its father; but a brother cannot, generally speaking, insure his brothers and sisters. Life policies can be sold or assigned, with notice to the company and an acknowledgment, but fire policies are not transferable without the company's

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

LOCOMOTIVES TOW SHIPS

Forty "Electric Mules" Will Operate at Panama Canal

The forty towing locomotives for hauling vessels through the locks of the Panama Canal weigh 82,000 pounds; measure 32 feet 9½ inches long by 8 feet wide by 9 feet 3 inches the greatest height over the cabs; have an available tractive effort as high as 47,500 pounds, and a windlass rope pull of 25,000 pounds, and four of them, two on each side, will ordinarily propel steamships through the locks. Sometimes six engines will be needed to handle extra large vessels; in every case two astern, acting as a brake on the ship's movements, will give direction to her course. No vessel will be allowed to enter the locks and go through on her own power. The locomotive is propelled by means of a rack rail while towing and while going up or down the steep grades from one level to another at a speed of two miles per hour. While running idle or on return tracks the speed is changed to five miles per hour, and the machine is propelled by the regular traction method, the track pinion being entirely released. This change is effected by manually operated clutches located in the gear mechanism in connection with a lever in each cab similar to a steam locomotive. The locomotive is driven by two 75 horse-power totally inclosed motors of the mill type, one being direct connected through reduction to each axle.

The tower and its installation cost $42,000, a sum five or six times less than that which would have been needed for an ordinary stone structure.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Electric Passenger and Freight Elevators, Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M. on Friday, October 9, 1914, for the installation of three (3) standard passenger and one (1) standard freight elevators, in the Langevin Block, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to this Department, at the offices of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Toronto, Ont., and Mr. R. L. Deschamps, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

PRESERVING TOOLS

Hints That Every Farmer and Mechanic Should Know

Some general directions for the care and preservation of tools will not be out of place, as even the best tools become useless if they are not cared for. The following hints will no doubt be appreciated by every mechanic who desires to make his tools last as long as possible, and who always wishes to have them in good condition.

The wooden parts of tools, such as stocks of planes and handles of chisels, are often made to have a nice appearance by polishing, but this adds nothing to their durability. A much better plan is to let them soak in linseed oil for a week and then rub them with a cloth for a few minutes each day for a week or two. This produces a beautiful surface and exerts a solidifying and preservation action on the wood.

Coutchouc oil has proved very efficient in preventing rust on iron; this has been used by the German army. It only requires to be spread with a piece of flannel in a very thin layer over the metallic surface and allowed to dry. To remove it, the article has simply to be treated with caoutchouc oil again and washed after 12 or 24 hours. A solution of benzine has been used for years as a coating for steel, iron and lead, and has been found a simple means of keeping them from oxidizing.

All steel articles can be perfectly preserved from rust by putting a lump of freshly-burned lime in the drawer or case in which they are kept. If the things are to be moved, as a gun in its case, put the lime in a muslin bag.

To keep tools from rusting, take one-half ounce of camphor, dissolve in one pound melted lard; take off the scum and mix in as much fine black lead (graphite) as will give it an iron color. Clean tools and smear with this mixture. After 24 hours rub clean with a soft linen cloth.

To remove dust cover the metal with sweet oil, well rubbed in, and allow to stand for 48 hours; smear with oil applied with a piece of cotton wool after rubbing the steel. Then rub with unslaked lime reduced to a fine powder.

Immerse the article to be cleaned for a few minutes, until all the dirt and rust are taken off, in a strong solution of potassium cyanide, say, about one-half ounce in a wineglass of water; take it out and clean with a tooth brush with a paste compound of potassium cyanide, castile soap, whiting and water.

The Tabooed Tango

There is nothing new either in the tango or the opposition to it. As long ago as the December of 1627, the Archbishop of Buenos Ayres excommunicated one Senor, de la Cueya y Benavides, governor of the city, for dancing the tango in public. Even then the dance was anything but new. An authority in the Argentine states that the tango is named after a province in Indo-China, and that it originated there more than two thousand years ago. It was the gipsies who took the dance to Spain, from whence it reached the Argentine. One definition of the tango—given in a glossary of South American Spanish—is "Gathering of dance of gipsies." The dance has not been improved by being civilized or modernised. As danced by the up-country Argentines and the Spanish gipsies it is exceedingly graceful, which is more than can be said for it as performed in many places in Canada.

MRS. GRACE WILBUR TROUT

This woman is devoting all her spare time to instructing other women how to vote and why to vote, but not what to vote.

She says the business of suffragists, just now, is to make women familiar with all phases of registration and election day; in other words, the curriculum of voting. "If we make them understand why they need to vote and then familiarise them with the system so that they will not have any hesitancy when the time comes, we can safely leave the matter of what they vote to their own intelligence and good sense," says Mrs. Trout.

She is the president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association.

Copper Jumps

"In The Land of Poco Tiempo"

Production of Copper in New Mexico Jumped from 1430 Tons in 1911 to 28,000 Tons in 1913

THE SIGNIFICANCE of this is that people are coming to realize that "The Land of Afterwhile" is full of opportunity and that now—having been asleep for 300 years—it is awakening to the fact that somebody is going to make enormous sums of money down there, right away!

How About YOU?

So long as copper was simply a by-product of a few mines—a plaything for the Indians—nobody took New Mexico Copper Mining very seriously—but

Those days are past. As a Copper State New Mexico is coming into its own on the jump!

The big, quick fortunes in the copper business are made by the men who get in first.

Here is Your Chance--

The Republic Mines Company offers you an interest — as much as you care to acquire — in its enormous tonnage of excellent Copper, Gold and Silver Ore ready to take out and sell, at a price to return you handsome profits upon your investment.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

As light as lager,
but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

HUMAN NESTS STIRRED UP

Text: As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead him.—Deut. 32:11-12.

Mythology says that the swan lives to a great age. Just before death it sings a wonderful song, and dies. So Moses, living to the ripeness of a hundred and twenty years, sees his end approaching, and before he climbs to the mountain's summit he sings this, his swan song, which we may read now, three thousand years afterwards, in the thirty-second chapter of Deuteronomy. The man who, on Horeb, had complained of his slow and clumsy tongue, becomes most eloquent on Nebo; so magnificently eloquent that this, his farewell address, deserves a place among the masterpieces of oratory.

His song is all about God. The old statesman has passed beyond the petty things of time and place, and sees only the eternal glories of the Infinite. Somebody writes interestingly about a night spent at Hawarden during the last years of Mr. Gladstone's life. When family prayers were announced, the aged host himself sat down to the piano to lead the singing of a hymn. The visitor was curious to see what kind of hymn the great statesman would select. Soon the whole household was following the leader in singing.

"From all that dwell below the skies,
Let the Creator's praise arise;
Let the Redeemer's name be sung
Through every land, by every tongue."

So the theme of the aged statesman of Israel was God:

"Give ear, O ye Heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth. My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass. Because I will publish the name of the Lord: ascribe ye greatness unto our God. He is the rock, His work is perfect, for all His ways are judgment: a God of Truth and without iniquity, just and right is He."

Then he speaks so gratefully of God's dealings with Israel, tells of God's providence all the way from the Nile to the Jordan, how God found Israel in a desert land and in the waste, howling wilderness, how He led him about, instructed him, kept him as the apple of His eye. And having mentioned the miracles, the chastenings, the blessings, yea, even the reproofs, he cries:

"As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead Israel."

USES DOG AS CADDY

Scarcity of Boys Causes Innovation on English Links

An innovation was made by a player on the Tyneside golf course at Rytown, England, which is likely to be adopted on other courses. At Rytown, in order to overcome the difficulties created by a scarcity of caddies, the player in question trained his dog, a Labrador retriever, to carry his clubs and hunt for lost balls. The experiment was so successful that it may not be long before the professional caddies on most of the golf courses will find their occupation gone. The inventor of the idea first taught his dog to hunt for balls. After a few days this proved so successful that the retriever not only brought in the ball he had been bidden to find, but others which had been missing for months.

The dog's next lesson consisted in learning to carry the clubs. A strap four inches long with a hook in the end was sewn to the mouth of the club bag. The hook was then attached to the dog's collar, and the bag was hung in place by a girdle encircling the dog's body and the bag. In speaking of his dog caddy, the golfer said:

"It is curious that the idea has never been developed before. There is no question that my dog's caddy work is much superior to that performed by any human caddy I have ever used. The dog being used to shooting, keeps well in "at heel," so that I can snatch the various clubs from him without any difficulty. When I lose a ball I merely have to order him to "find dead bird." If he has to range a good deal I unhook the golf bag so as to give him more freedom in his movements. Since I have been using my retriever as a caddy I have never lost a ball, and my game has been much swifter.

"From every point of view the dog is so much the superior of the boy as a caddy that I expect to see dogs used universally in the future. With a dog as your caddy there is no one to hear you swear, and no one to make fun of your play."

IVANKA CHRISTITCH

Servian soldiers will miss the ministrations of Ivanka Christitch, the "Florence Nightingale of the Balkans," for Ivanka has changed her Red Cross uniform for the habit of a nun. The Servian nurse is at Tyburn convent on "Tyburn hill" in London, preparing for her consecration as a nun. She will be known as Sister Elizabeth, but as she is entering a cloistered order she will devote her time to teaching rather than nursing.

Brotherhood

That plenty but reproaches me
Which leaves my brother bare;
Not wholly glad my heart can be
While his is bowed with care.
If I go free, and sound and stout,
While his poor fetters clank,
Unsated still, I'll still cry out,
And plead with Whom I thank.

Almighty: Thou who Father be
Of him, of me, of all,
Draw us together, him and me,
That whichsoever fall,
The other's hand may fail him not—
The other's strength decline,
No task of succor that his lot
May claim from son of Thine.

I would be fed, I would be clad,
I would be housed and dry;
But if it be my heart is sad—
What benefit have I?
Best he whose shoulders best endure
The load which brings relief,
And he shall have his joy secure,
Who shares that joy with grief.

TEETH AND APPLES

The Use of the One as Food Will Preserve the Other

Dr. Sims Wallace, late dental surgeon to the London Hospital, voices the astounding belief that there are [illegible] teeth in Great Britain ruined through eating sweets. He urges the adoption of a diet containing a good quantity of farinaceous food in a form which will stimulate mastication—brown bread, and the eating of fresh fruit with every meal.

The importance of the proper care of teeth during childhood is becoming universally recognized, and the London County Council established a centre for the treatment of dental troubles of schoolchildren with X-rays.

According to investigation it was found that about 39 per cent. of the children of well-to-do parents have bad teeth, as against 27 per cent. from poorer homes. This is probably accounted for by the fact that, as the latter have more coarser food, their teeth have more work to do, and are consequently stronger and cleaner. Their sweets are also fewer, and are mostly of the cheap, boiled sugar variety. These sweets break up cleanly in the mouth, whereas the caramels and chocolates eaten by the children of indulgent parents cling to the teeth and ferment.

Boys and girls should be given fruit in preference to sweets. Nuts and all hard fruits encourage mastication. The best fruit for this purpose is the apple. Eaten at the conclusion of a meal it leaves the teeth and mouth sweet and clean.

Our Debt to Negroes

We gladly gulp down the soothing drug the doctor brings us, but we rarely wonder in what romantic way it first came to light, or who took all the risks of testing it upon himself.

It was Humboldt, the great discoverer, who many years ago brought to light the fact that the South Americans and Indians could bear fatigue and hunger to an extraordinary extent by chewing the leaves of a certain shrub. The name of that shrub was coca, from which we now get the wonderful drug cocaine.

And how many of the millions of invalids who have been indebted to the tonic virtues of quassia know that we owe its discovery and name to one Quassi, a negro slave, who had successfully experimented with it during the terrible fevers in Surinam?

It was in the early part of the seventeenth century that the wife of the Viceroy of Peru was attacked by a severe ague, and the natives induced her to try quinine, with such surprising success that she brought the good news to Europe.

Some Schoolboy Howlers

"The people of India are divided into casts and outcasts."

"The seven great powers of Europe are gravity, electricity, steam, gas, flywheels, motors, and Mr. Lloyd George."

"Tennyson wrote a beautiful poem called 'In Memorandum.'"

"During the interdict in John's reign, births, marriages, and deaths were not allowed to take place."

The following were given as examples of the uses of ships: "To go to teach countries and teach savages how to dress"; "To poets, who can get their living writing about ships"; "To take Mrs. Pankhurst to a lonely island"; "For the god-parents of a child who is to be confirmed to send a letter to him."

Sheet Rubber in Armor

The British admiralty is experimenting with warship armor composed of thin sheets of steel with a sheet of rubber between, the theory being that the rubber will stop shells as sand bags stop bullets.

Convertible Wagons

Children's wagons can be converted into sleds by the use of new runners with clamps to engage the wheels.

Nature's Aeroplane

For experiments with model aeroplanes a French inventor mounted the wings and tail of a crow on a wire frame.

CATARRH NEVER STOPS IN SAME PLACE REACHES THE LUNGS - DEVELOPS CONSUMPTION

To Stop a Cold Quickly And Prevent Catarrh, Use "Catarrhozone."

Nothing more serious than the common cold.

If it gains headway you can't stop it from running into Catarrh, deafness, or serious throat trouble.

Catarrh spreads very fast.

From nose to throat it goes in a day. Soon the Bronchial tubes are affected—and before you know it, unless very healthy the lungs are hit, and it's too late.

While you have the chance, drive colds and Catarrh right out of the system.

You can quickly do so by inhaling the rich pine- vapor of Catarrhozone. Right to where the living germ of Catarrh is working will the healing fumes of Catarrhozone go in ten seconds.

No liquid medicine can penetrate to the deep recesses that Catarrhozone bathes with its soothing vapor—that's just why it proves so wonderfully effective.

The health-laden vapor of Catarrhozone cures the worst of coughs and hoarseness. The uttermost parts of the bronchial tubes are reached. Bronchitis is cured—every cell in the head, throat and nose is treated by Catarrhozone's wonderful fumes.

You can't beat Catarrhozone for huskiness, weak throat, sore nostrils, catarrhal and bronchial trouble of any kind. Get the complete $1.00 outfit. Smaller size 50c. Trial size 25c., at dealers everywhere.

The work on the addition to the local post office is nearly completed, and only awaits the laying of a hardwood floor. This will be attended to as soon as Contractor Bogue finishes some urgent work in connection with the Lakefield post office.—Lindsay Post.

Col. Sam ,or England.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 1.—An impression prevails here that before proceeding with the organ,zation of a second contingent or the recruiting of reinforcements for the first oversea force., Hon. Sam. Hughes, Minister of Militia may take a short trip to England to formally transfer the Canadian force to the Imperial authorities.

A Good Mess of Coons.

Mr. James O'Brien, a well-known trapper, whose domicile is on the shores of Long Beach, Sturgeon Lake, was a very much surprised man one day last week, when he spied no less than four coons in one tree. Being a good marksman he had very little difficulty in bringing down the entire four. He was also successful in disposing of the four coon hides to a Lindsay dealer, for the customary price.

Hydro-Electric.

Yesterday morning the last load of Light and Power Company property was removed by the city from the George Street office of the company. It consisted of office fittings, desks, stools, partitions, etc., and marks the actual taking over of the operation as well as the ownership of the company's property.

Loudry on Suspended Sentence.

At the County Court House yesterday morning the young man Loudry who pleaded guilty to perjury was allowed by His Honor Judge Huycke to go on suspended sentence. It will be remembered that Loudry, a Indian-lister swore that he had procured his liquor at Lindsay and then admitted he had not been in Lindsay on the day in question.

Former Local People Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayley of Stauffer, Alberta, who formerly resided in this City, have returned from an extended trip to England. They say that at the opening of the war extensive work was done along the sea coast of England. Entrenchments were dug and barricades erected. It will be remembered by those who know her that Miss Clarissa Clementi of this city was married to Mr. G. St. J. Bayley, also of Stauffer, a son of the first named former local residents.

Local Joy Riders in Trouble.

On Monday evening two Peterboro young men journeyed to Lindsay in a car, and spent a portion of the night with certain parties. They evidently labored under the impression that they could run their car at any speed over the thoroughfares without being interfered with, and let out their machine at a forty-five-mile-an-hour clip on Kent and Lindsay-sts. Constable Woods was on the job, however, and chalked down the car number. Chief Short has made out the necessary papers and the speed fiends will be brought back to Lindsay and taught a lesson.—Post.

Mr. Widdifield Was Out.

Before the police court opened at 2 p.m. yesterday Mr. Widdifield again contended that the Magistrate would exceed his perogratives in sentencing the man Nelson who waited summarily on the charge of operating a disorderly house, to one year in the prison. This was opposed by Mr. Weating, for the Crown. William Nelson was fined $100 and three months in the county jail. If the $100 is not paid Nelson will serve three months in addition.

Godfrey Was Lucky.

At police court yesterday afternoon John Godfrey, charged with "procuring" in the case of Mrs. Alice Butcher was up for sentence. The magistrate remarked "It is simply a case of a dirty man bringing a dirty woman to a dirty house." He was allowed to go on suspended sentence on payment of court costs amounting to $10.50. The magistrate remarked, "if it had not been a soiled dove to that house I would have punished you heavily."

Three Sent to the Mercer.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the police court the three women Mrs Alice Butcher, Mrs. Green and Miss Margaret Tucker were sentenced to 6 months in the Mercer Institute charged with being inmates of disorderly houses. Matron McElheeny spoke for the women and asked for a more leinent sentence offering to write to the respective husbands of Mrs. Green and Mrs. Butcher. The magistrate however was obdurate.

Light Punishment.

Yesterday morning at the county court the two short change artists Barr and Rose were up before Judge Huycke for sentence. His Honor made an affecting address to the prisoners. He noted that their names were not Barr and Charles Rose. As they were convicted under these aliases for their families' sake he would not divulge their proper names. Their parents had made restitution of the sums they, the prisoners, had stolen. Barr had been convicted on three charges of short changery. He was given eighty days on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently. Rose was given eighty days on his one conviction. His Honor said as there might be an ultimate chance of their reform, he would give them light sentences so that their respective fathers might meet their sons when they left jail and take them to their home for Christmas.

No police court was held yesterday morning.

The Bell Telephone Co., staff of Lindsay, will tribute one day's pay to the Patriotic Fund.

We would like to ask an E. E. C. where they borrowed the title of "Short Change Artists?"

It would seem, that judging by yesterday's police court experiences, as told by the Times, that even "soiled doves" can take wing for the Mercer

There is no cause for fear that local consumers of light and power under the Hydro System will have to pay more, let alone as much, than they did before.

The German generals say they are retreating from unimportant positions A similar case was seen here last evening when a young man retreated from a strategic position on Charlotte Street when the girl's mother came out with a dipper full of boiling water.

It was generally admitted by those "in the know" that the man Nelson who has been keeping the woman on Brock street, Mrs. Leavis, under drugs for years, and who has been proven to bring men and girls to the house for immoral purposes was let off too lightly with a three months' sentence and $100 fine.

BRIDE, 17, ELOPES WITH HER HUSBANDS BROTHER

Both Men Charged With White Slave Conspiracy Against the Girl —Husband Bought the Tickets for the Eloping Paris Railway Journey

New Orleans, Oct. 2.—The second chapter of the white slave charges against Claire and William Chennault, of Franklin parish, opened Monday morning when William's 17-year-old wife, formerly Annie May Griffin, of Lamar, La., was summoned before the Federal grand jury in session here. Mrs. Chennault was accompanied by her brother, Otis Griffin, also summoned before the jury.

The case is the outcome of the elopement from Baton Rouge some weeks ago of Claire Chennault with his brother's bride. The couple were traced through Chicago and later arrested in Berlin, Wis.

Investigation after the arrest led to the arrest of William Chennault, the girl's husband, on similar white slave charges. He was arrested in Delhi, La., and released on $2,000 bond.

These investigations, it is alleged, disclosed a conspiracy against the girl by the brothers and that the marriage was part of the plot. It is alleged that she was the victim of Claire Chennault before her marriage to William, and that the latter was fully aware of it. As Claire Chennault had a wife and child, it is charged by the government, he couldn't marry her himself.

The prosecution is said to hold that William, at his brother Claire's instigation, married the girl, took her to Baton Rouge and turned her over to him. It is even alleged that William Chennault, the husband, purchased the tickets upon which the eloping couple traveled to Chicago.

The specific charge against the husband is white slavery, by aiding, abetting and assisting in transportation.

There was some question as to whether the jurisdiction was in the Western or Southern Federal District, but as the case was finally brought here, it was evidently decided that the case originated in Baron Rouge.

The Chennault family is well known in North Louisiana. Claire Chennault at the time of his alleged relations with Anna May Griffin, was principal of a consolidated school, and the girl was pupil. Until recently William Chennault was student at the Louisiana State University.

Claire Chennault still is in jail at Shreveport in default of bail.
